REVOLUTION OUSTS GREEK GOVERNMENT; PANGALOS IN POWER

Army and Navy Coup at Athens and Saloniki Triumphs Without Bloodshed.

BRIEF FUSILLADES ARE FIRED

PRESIDENT KEEPS OFFICE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, June 25.—General Pangalos brought off his threatened coup d'état this morning. The rest of the army has joined him and he has taken charge of the War Office and announced as chief of the revolution that he will brook no half measures, but will himself take control of the situation.

The Cabinet resigned in order to avoid the threatened bombardment of official buildings, and leaders of the revolution are being consulted on the formation of a new Government.

Rumors of unrest in the army have been current in the last few days, and Athens awoke this morning to hear rifle fire in the neighborhood of the post-office. It was found to be in the hands of revolutionaries, who had displaced the guard stationed there overnight by the Government. Soon it became apparent that things were not as usual, owing to the presence of a number of troops in the streets.

At 10 o'clock General Pangalos, who had taken up a position between Athens and Piraeus, sent an ultimatum to Admiral Konduriotis, head of the State, demanding the resignation of the Michalakopoulos Cabinet before 4 o'clock this afternoon. A similar communication was sent by Admiral Hajikiriakos, who had assumed command of the fleet, hoisting his flag on the Averoff. The messages intimated that if the Government did not immediately withdraw and hand over authority, together with the money in the Treasury, the infantry in barracks, the Presidential Palace and War Office would be bombarded.

As soon as these documents were received Prime Minister Michalakopoulos with the rest of the Cabinet, together with M. Kaphancaris, General Gonatas, General Kondylis and chief of the General Staff, General Petsas, waited upon the head of the State and handed in the Cabinet's resignation in order to avoid bloodshed.

A conference of party leaders followed at the Presidency and it was decided to ask ex-Premier Papanastasion to get in touch with General Pangalos and Admiral Hajikiriakos and consult them regarding formation of a new Government. M. Papanastasion accordingly went on board the Averoff with this object.

Troops Join the Revolt.

The rapid success of the Pangalos coup d'etat made a great impression on public opinion. The Government's troops, including General Kondylis's famous chasseurs, realizing the extent of the revolution and the futility of opposing the superior forces at the disposal of Pangalos, joined the movement.

It appears that the revolution was precipitated by the Government's decision to accept Kondylis's advice to take energetic measures to restore army discipline beginning with the arrest of the leaders of the unrest. Pangalos and his supporters thereupon decided at a meeting Tuesday night to strike without further delay.

Admiral Hajikyriakos, who was present, declared he had assurances that the whole fleet would support the movement. The news of this decision was telegraphed to the adherents of Pangalos at Saloniki. They were asked if they were ready to dismiss the authorities there and assume the administration.

A telegram in response was received from Saloniki yesterday, wherein General Tseroulis deputed Major Papaioannou to intimate to the Government that he demanded its resignation failing which he would dismiss the local authorities at Saloniki and the Cabinet would find itself faced with a Macedonian revolution in the morning.

Premier Michalakopoulos asked for time, pleading that the overthrow of the Cabinet by a military coup d'etat would entail adverse consequences.

Since midnight events followed with great rapidity. The hour fixed for the revolution was 4 o'clock this morning and at that time it broke out simultaneously in Saloniki, Patras and Athens.

The revolution so far has been bloodless. Shops and banks are closed and all is quiet.

Brief and Harmless Fusilades.

ATHENS, June 25 (AP).—The Greek Government under the premiership of Michalakopoulos has been deposed and a new Government under military control is installed at Athens. The revolutionary movement started at dawn simultaneously in Athens and Saloniki, when anti-Government forces, after a brief and harmless fusillade, seized the telegraph offices and cut communications.

A semi-official statement issued this evening announces that the revolution has been successful throughout the country, that all the garrisons have given

THEATRE WRECKED, SOME DIE IN RUINS

POSSIBLY TWENTY VICTIMS

Patrons of Restaurant on the Ground Floor Believed to Have Been Trapped.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 25 (AP).—Several persons are believed to have been killed and more than a score were injured, some perhaps fatally, when an explosion and fire that followed destroyed the Gillis Theatre, a low-priced burlesque house, here tonight, while a show was in progress.

A newspaper reporter, who rushed to the scene from Police Headquarters near by, estimated that fifteen or twenty persons were trapped in the building and killed.

At midnight Chief Henderson said there were "several" persons buried in the ruins. This was ascertained by firemen who were working in the ruins.

The explosion occurred in a restaurant underneath the theatre, and a portion of the main floor collapsed. Thirty minutes after the explosion the south wall of the theatre caved in, crushing adjoining storerooms. The known injured at this time were a fireman and a chorus girl.

The west wall of the theatre later collapsed, and it was believed two firemen were buried in the debris.

A policeman who arrived just after the explosion said he saw many persons rushing in panic from the theatre, some of them bleeding.

A woman who was rescued from the restaurant said about fifteen persons were trapped there.

The audience in the theatre was reported to have been a small one.

Spectators declared the entire roof of the theatre was blown off. Debris rained down on the streets, sending spectators to cover. The entire north end was shaken by the blast. Hurtling bricks and debris broke windows a block away.

Many of the injured were victims of the falling balcony of the theatre, members of the audience declared. It broke into splinters and the flying pieces cut the patrons as they scrambled to escape.

The cause of the explosion could not be determined. A porter declared he smelled gas in the basement half an hour before the explosion.

Henry M. Schraeder, who was seated in the theatre and escaped, said the whole building seemed to crumble. The floor and roof seemed to give way at the same time, and all he could see was wreckage and people scurrying about screaming and shouting.

Members of the audience who escaped said a motion picture was being shown. In the midst of a love scene on the screen there was a terrific crash, followed by the falling of the ceiling.

Will Sandy said the floor gave way as the ceiling fell. He said the ceiling came down more rapidly than the floor, which enabled him to seize an iron beam in the ceiling and pull himself hand over hand to safety.

Three firemen were injured when a hose cart turned over on the way to the fire.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Friday, June 26.—Following the explosion which wrecked the Gillis Theatre tonight, a Kansas City dispatch to The Chicago Tribune says police and firemen began taking the injured to hospitals in Police and Fire Department cars.

Three actresses of the company playing in the theatre were treated at the General Hospital. They were Mrs. Pearl Hall of Los Angeles, Mrs. Myrtle Fletcher of Cushing, Okla., and Mrs. Ethyl Louise Sartor of Terrell, Texas.

Several actresses and shops in the theatre building were buried in debris. An unknown number of patrons and employes were in the place at the time.

JEROME RESERVOIR SITE TAKEN OVER FOR CITY'S MUSIC CENTRE

COST TO BE $15,000,000

Will Be Built in Conjunction With Two Public Schools Planned for Same Area.

CRAIG DOES NOT CAST VOTE

Hylan Favors Transfer Since Opposition Forced Abandonment of Central Park Project.

The Sinking Fund Commission yesterday definitely assigned as the site for the proposed Music and Industrial Art High School, which is to be made the nucleus of a great municipal educational centre at an ultimate cost of about $15,000,000, the remainder of the unimproved area known as the Jerome Park Reservoir tract. The tract is bounded by Strong, Jerome and Goulden Avenues and by West 205th and West 206th Streets, the Bronx, and comprises about 200 acres of land.

Though Controller Craig refrained from voting for the transfer of the site, it was adopted following the recommendations of a special committee headed by City Chamberlain Berolzheimer. The plan upon which the city now embarks is the one which has found most favor with the Mayor, the City Chamberlain and the associates since persistent opposition forced their abandonment of the project to establish the music and art centre in Central Park.

Project Explained in Letter.

In a letter addressed to Mayor Hylan by Mr. Berolzheimer and Joseph Haag, assistant to the Mayor, the present status of the Music and Art Center enterprise was set forth, in part, as follows:

"In furtherance of the plans for a municipal Music and Industrial Arts High School in the City of New York, a meeting was held on Friday, June 19, 1925, to consider preliminaries incidental to the establishment of such an institution.

"There were present at this meeting the following: Philip Berolzheimer, Chamberlain; Joseph Haag, assistant to the Mayor; Dr. John A. Ferguson, Commissioner of the Board of Education; Dr. William C. Carl, director of the Guilmant Organ School; Dr. Gustave Straubenmuller, Associate Superintendent of Schools; William H. Compert, Superintendent of School Buildings; George H. Cartlan, director of music of the Board of Education; Francis T. McEneny, Chief Examiner of the Board of Aldermen, and Morris Warschauer, Executive Clerk of the Board of Education.

"The general consensus indicated a strong preference for the Jerome Park Reservoir site as being best suited to the requirements, because of its area and the fact that it is in possession of the city.

"As to the site referred to, may we quote from a report from Superintendent Gompert to Chamberlain Berolzheimer?

"'At the southerly end of this tract of land a site has been assigned to the Board of Education for Public School 86, the Bronx, and also for an athletic field in connection with this school. This elementary school site is bounded by West 195th Street, Jerome Avenue, Strong Avenue and Reservoir Avenue.

"'At the northerly end another school site has been assigned to the Board of Education for the DeWitt Clinton High School and an athletic field. This site is bounded by West 205th Street, Gaynor Avenue, Mosholu Parkway and Goulden Avenue.

Central Site Is Favored.

"'Between these two public school sites a large area still remains which at present is unassigned, and therefore consideration was given as to what portion would best serve for the proposed Music and Industrial Art High School.

"'Consideration was given first to the advisability of requesting only a portion of the site, but due to the fact that it has already been determined to erect two important school buildings on the tract of land, it was considered that the erection of a High School for the study of music and industrial arts would offer a splendid opportunity for the establishment of a great educational centre. It was therefore decided to recommend that the city retain ownership in this entire plot for all time and that the proposed Music and Industrial Art High School should be so placed on the

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., June 25.—The Summer home of James Shewan Jr. on Ox Pasture Road was entered by a thief last night and two pearl necklaces valued at $32,000 were stolen from a jewel case in the dressing table of Mrs. Shewan's bedroom. The thief was seen by Miss Rita Brown, Mrs. Shewan's sister, who slept in a room on the same floor as her sister and brother-in-law. Evidently he came from Mr. and Mrs. Shewan's room to Miss Brown's room in search of more booty.

Miss Brown was awakened by a light flashing in her face and on looking up saw the thief. She begged him to go and he ran out of the room. Miss Brown at once rang her bell and the whole house was alarmed. By that time the thief had made his escape.

All of the windows on the floor where the robbery was committed are protected by screens and none of these were disturbed. The pearls were the only jewels worn by Mrs. Shewan last night and on retiring she placed them in a jewel case which, in turn was put in a drawer in the dressing table.

Mr. and Mrs. Shewan came to their country place about the end of last month. County and town police, as well as private detectives are investigating the robbery.

Only three days ago it became known that Mrs. James Shewan, mother of Mr. Shewan, was held up in the library of her town house, at 18 East Seventy-sixth Street, on the night of April 16 last and robbed of two diamond rings valued at $2,500. News of the robbery became public when the police arrested William Homan, said to be an ex-convict.

Mrs. Shewan was alone in the library when the man, whose face was partly covered by a handkerchief, entered. She handed over the two rings, but when he attempted to tear a diamond pin from her dress she screamed and he fled. Homan was arrested in a furnished rooming house on Monday.

COOLIDGE ENTERS BUTLER CAMPAIGN

HARD FIGHT COMING IN FALL

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 25.—President Coolidge is going to exert his influence in Massachusetts to have William M. Butler, Republican National Chairman, kept in the Senate, and may test his strength in the elections in Wisconsin and North Dakota, where vacancies in Senate seats exist.

This was decided today when it was arranged, at President Coolidge's request, to include Senator Butler in the gathering of Republican leaders and editors next month. Senator Butler is serving as the successor to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge. He has never gone before the electorate of the State and the President has consented to ask him because of reports that ex-Senator David I. Walsh, who will be the Democratic nominee, is very strong. His strength was shown last year when he was defeated for re-election by Frederick F. Gillett, by only 25,000 votes when President Coolidge had a majority of about 400,000 and Governor Fuller was elected by a majority of 200,000.

President Coolidge does not believe he can be criticized for helping his friend and campaign manager of 1924. What he may do elsewhere in a political way is still undecided. Political activity in his own State, the President believes, can not cause adverse comment such as might result from interference in other States.

His first move was the suggestion that Senator Butler should be invited to attend the meeting of independent Republicans and editors which will be held at Lake Attitash early next month. President Coolidge formally accepted the invitation to be the chief speaker and urged that the other honored guests and speakers should include Senator Butler and Governor Fuller.

Hopes to Placate Lodge Followers.

This suggested program has been arranged by Ralph S. Bauer, the Progressive Republican, at whose country home the assemblage will gathe.. Mr. Bauer is now the Republican candidate for Mayor of Lynn on a "clean the house" ticket. He has always been one of the powers in the Lodge organization and resented the treatment meted out to Senator Lodge at the Cleveland convention when the Butler machine refused him honors and humiliated him in his final days.

The old Lodge followers, reported to be none too favorable to Mr. Butler, will predominate at the political meeting next month, which is now expected to establish harmony and formally launch Mr. Butler's campaign for the Senate.

There will be another political get-together meeting before President Coolidge returns to Washington. The Essex County Republican clubs are planning for an affair of State-wide interest to which all the Republican county chairmen and others will be invited. President Coolidge is expected to attend this although he has not yet definitely accepted the invitation.

The rain and a cold damp wind blowing from the sea kept President Coolidge within doors most of the time on his second day in the Summer White House, but despite a heavy fog and an accompanying drizzle Mr. Coolidge had his morning walk, the only exercise he ever takes aside from the shake-ups he gets from his electric horse.

When the drizzle had ceased for a time Mr. Coolidge ventured out soon after 9 o'clock and walked two miles before another shower forced his return. He escaped without a real wetting. At that hour the thermometer was at 53, where it continued throughout the day, making furnace and hearth fires necessary in White Court.

During a lull between showers the President found time again to stroll down the shore drive late this afternoon and walked about four miles. This he has been advised to do as much as possible by his physician, who does not approve of the big meals the President has been eating during his train journeys. Major Coupal, the White House physician, says that the President is in excellent physical shape and only needs a few weeks in this climate to bruce his nerves.

ANDERSON TO HIDE WORK FROM INQUIRY

NO EVIDENCE FOR A JURY

Says Body Will Not Have Writing for Hostile Officials to Lay Hands On.

All contributions to William H. Anderson's new organization—the American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance—will be personal gifts to William H. Anderson, for which he will be accountable to no one, according to a statement yesterday by the former State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

To give its enemies no grip on it through the law or otherwise, Mr. Anderson said that the "A. P. P. P. P. A." would have no members, no charter, no books, no rules, no regulations, nothing that a Grand Jury could subpoena, nothing that a petty jury could consider as evidence.

The policy of keeping everything on an oral basis has been adopted, according to Mr. Anderson, to make the organization persecution proof and uninvestigable. Nothing will be trusted to pen and ink except statements to the public, advertising, and propaganda. All financial and other transactions will be kept on file only in the memory of William H. Anderson.

Claims Strong Associates.

Mr. Anderson said that he had strong men associated with him, but that their identity must be a secret. Asked to name them, he declined.

"Have you any funds in the treasury as yet?"

"That I do not care to discuss."

Mr. Anderson said he hoped to devote his life to his new cause and that he expected to see it grow into a powerful nation-wide organization, doing much good. He declined to discuss the present size or the immediate progress of his organization. He gave out yesterday what he described as "The Second Instalment," which was as follows:

"'The American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance' will have several unique features, based on illuminating experience.

"It will have no 'members' or membership. Therefore it will be beyond the reach of any legislation inspired by anti-Protestant zealots, directing the publication of lists in order to boycott or intimidate them.

"It will have no oath which can be used as a pretense for prying into its internal affairs.

"It will not be incorporated, so that it will not be compelled to give any information to, or be in any respect at the mercy of any anti-Protestant public official. It is possible that later, with due reference to this measure of protection, it may incorporate, where it can be done most advantageously, some subsidiary activities.

"It will have a secret Advisory Council which will be so constituted that it cannot be thrown into confusion, and for all practical purposes either be captured and the organization used by the anti-Protestants or be rendered speechless and impotent, if one or more of the members by any chance should get scared or turn yellow and run out, or if some ambitious traitor assistant who has been trusted not wisely but too well, conspires with the enemy to grab control.

Contributions are Gifts.

"It will accept contributions only as outright personal gifts to William H. Anderson, its founder and General Secretary, to be used in any way he sees fit, to enable him to promote and further the objects of an American Prohibition Protestant Patriotic Protective Alliance. This precaution is for the double purpose of defense, against any anti-Protestant who may try to contribute as the basis for a demand for an accounting, and against any anti-Protestant official anywhere in the country who may demand to inspect its books on the basis of alleged complaint from some named or unnamed enemy alleging that the movement is not being conducted in accordance with its published purpose."

BALTIMORE, Md., June 25.—Leaders in both the Anti-Saloon League and the Ku Klux Klan here gave William H. Anderson's new organization, the A. P. P. P. P. A., little consideration today. Frank R. Beall, head of the local klan, said: "I don't place much confidence in it." At the dry League's offices it was said that no interest was being taken in the Anderson "alliance."

LIGHTNING SHATTERS ST. PATRICK'S CROSS; ALSO HITS MUSEUM

VIOLENT FREAKS OF STORM

A bolt of lightning struck the south arm from the cross on the north spire of St. Patrick's Cathedral at 5:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon and sent the fragments crashing down upon the edifice. At about the same moment another bolt shattered a five-ton ball of granite which surmounts the southwest tower of the American Museum of Natural History at Seventy-seventh Street and Columbus Avenue and showered the roof, the museum grounds and the Columbus Avenue elevated structure with chunks of granite.

Elsewhere cornices were chipped, fuses blown out and other damage done by the lightning which for a short time hissed, crackled and exploded over the city with concentrated violence which has seldom been equalled.

While the sky was shot through and through with lightning, rain fell so heavily for a few minutes that gutters were filled, railroad cuts turned into lakes, basements flooded and many automobile accidents caused by skidding.

During this time there was not a breath of air stirring, and a strange effect was produced, as the rain poured down while in the background lightning was raging across the low skies and thunder was crashing and rolling insistantly.

Took Refuge in Cathedral.

Starting suddenly after threatening all day, the storm quickly cleared the sidewalks. A crowd of about 500, mostly from Fifth Avenue, took refuge in the cathedral. For a few minutes the lightning glimmered far off on the horizon. Then it came to grips with the city. Everywhere the flashes were so near at hand that a wrathful snapping and sizzling could be heard before the main claps of thunder.

The crowd in the cathedral were congratulating themselves on being well out of it when there was a tremendous crash directly overhead, followed by minor crashes, a burst of flame which glared vividly for a fraction of a second through the stained glass saints, a shiver of the whole building and a shower of plaster.

The marble arm, weighing about 200 pounds, had been shattered into fragments, which rattled over the roof and down upon the Fifth Avenue and the Fifty-first Street sidewalks.

The white flash which enveloped the cross traveled down the lightning rod affixed to the cross and steeple and gave another great burst of white flame as it reached the anchorage of the rod on the Fifty-first Street side of the Cathedral.

As the skies cleared a few minutes later the mutilated arm of the cross was visible from the street. An examination showed that the cathedral had suffered no other damage beyond the falling of plaster. It was thought at first that fragments of the cross had been shot through the ceiling, but it was found that this impression was due to the falling of the plaster. The lightning had barely ceased before a crowd began to pick up bits of stone from the street and sidewalk as souvenirs.

Museum Ball Smashed.

In the meantime the lightning had given a still more impressive display of its powers at the American Museum of Natural History, where it smashed the five-ton granite ball and marked a radius of 100 feet with its fragments.

Ordinarily the area which the lightning sprayed with granite shrapnel would have contained a number of pedestrians at this time of day. The employes' entrance is on the ground floor right under the tower. At 5:30 o'clock they are ordinarily leaving work in large groups. The storm, however, kept

Wisconsin Names La Follette For National Hall of Fame

MADISON, Wis., June 25 (AP).—The Wisconsin Legislature has chosen Senator Robert M. La Follette as the subject for the State's second statue in the National Hall of Fame at Washington.

Sufficient appropriation was made to carry out the plan and a resolution was passed putting the selection into effect.

Senator La Follette's will, offered for probate today, names his widow, as sole beneficiary and executrix. The Senator's debts, including the mortgage on the homestead, are estimated in the petition at $20,000, his personal property at $20,000, and his real estate which is the homestead, at $48,000.

3 KILLED, 43 INJURED IN STREET CAR CRASH

MANSLAUGHTER IS CHARGED

Motorman Says He Did Not See Accident Ahead Till Too Late for Brakes to Serve.

Three persons, one of them a woman, were killed and forty-three others were injured during the rush hour late yesterday when a crowded one-man Pavonia Avenue trolley car became uncontrollable on the steep incline near Ninth Street and Hoboken Avenue, Jersey City, and crashed into a derailed car filled with passengers at the foot of the hill.

The forward car jumped the track at a spot on the curve which had been covered by water, and the passengers did not see that the oncoming car was a runaway in time to jump. The impact of the collision was so great that the forward car was hurled against the stone wall of the incline and shattered with the second car, which telescoped nearly half its length. The passengers on each were thrown against the stone wall and into tangled masses of metal and wood.

John T. Grandy of 232 Webster Avenue, Jersey City, operator of the runaway car, was charged last night with manslaughter, and was paroled in the custody of the Public Service Railroad Company for arraignment today. He was slightly injured. Henry Irvin of 205-A Beacon Avenue, Jersey City, driver of the derailed car, sustained a fracture of the skull and was taken to City Hospital.

THE DEAD.

ZEBROWSKI, JOSEPHINE, 447 Henderson Street, Jersey City.

Rain Submerged Track.

Irvin told the police the car had become derailed when it ran into the pool and, he said, he reversed the motor in an effort to get it back on the track, but failed.

Grandy came into sight with the second car a few minutes later, and, although the persons on the forward car could see by its speed that something was wrong with it, they did not have time to jump.

Later in a statement to the police Grandy said he left Hoboken to go down the incline about 5 o'clock and noticed then for the first time that something was wrong with the car's brakes.

"I gave my car a few applications of air," he said, "but it did not take, then plugged it, but that didn't work.

Tax Surplus for Year May Reach $250,000,000 Due to Expected $50,000,000 Excess in June

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Income and profits tax receipts for June are far in excess of Treasury Department estimates, and the budget surplus for the fiscal year, which ends June 30, will be at least $240,000,000, and possibly $250,000,000. President Coolidge, in his address Monday, gave $200,000,000 as the probable surplus. At that time it was not known that June income and profit taxes would exceed estimates by $40,000,000 or $50,000,000.

The last calculation of income tax receipts for the year by the Treasury, made Tuesday, showed an excess of ordinary receipts over expenditures chargeable against them of $233,818,749.49.

It is accepted as certain that the revenue for the rest of the month will carry the surplus on June 30 to $240,000,000 or better.

The heavy receipts of income and profit taxes during June have surprised the experts. Income tax payments for June were forecast at $350,000,000. But on Tuesday with seven days to go, the receipts had reached $364,835,631.41. The new estimates for the month now is $370,000,000 And it is probable that that figure will be larger.

Income and profits tax collections for the year to Tuesday—six months under the 3 rates with the 25 per cent. horizontal reduction of six months under the new rates—totaled $1,737,838,377.66, or about $78,000,000 above early estimates of the year's receipts.

The unexpected increase in the amount of taxes paid in June has come within the last few days. Efforts to explain the unexpected development seemed to go back to the conclusion that taxable incomes have increased more rapidly than had been expected and that earnings of many corporations and individuals were more substantial than had generally been revealed.

The manner in which tax payments have exceeded estimates has caused much satisfaction to Administration aides, who take it as an indication that receipts for the fiscal year 1925-1926 will also be larger than estimated, and that the surplus of $250,000,000 for that year, forecast by President Coolidge in his budget address, will be exceeded by a considerable amount. It is hardly too optimistic to say that the surplus next year, judged by the receipts now coming in, will be at least $400,000,000 if no tax reductions are made in the meantime.

It is upon the prospective surplus for 1926 under the present rates that possible tax reductions are predicted.

Nova Scotia Conservatives Win in Landslide; Liberal Overturn Follows Colliery Strike

HALIFAX, N. S., June 25 (AP).—An unexpected conservative landslide today ended the forty-three-year reign of the Liberal Party in Nova Scotia. Only one Liberal has so far been elected, while twenty Conservatives have been elected, with twenty-two seats in doubt and Conservatives leading in sixteen of them.

Since 1882 the Liberals have been continuously in power, and for only one period of three years since 1867 has Nova Scotia had a Conservative Government.

Premier E. H. Armstrong went down to defeat with his Government. The Hon. E. N. Rhodes, who will be called on to form the new Conservative Government, was elected by a comfortable majority.

Only one Labor candidate was reelected, and he ran under Conservative support.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, June 25.—The overwhelming defeat of the Liberal Party in Nova Scotia is so astounding that many persons predict the Federal Government will not go to the country this year. The New Brunswick election will be held in July and the same result is now predicted in that province.

Much dissatisfaction with the Liberal Government's attitude toward strike conditions in the Cape Breton colliery district of Nova Scotia has been manifested since early in the year. This dissatisfaction was increased on the recent outbreak in the colliery district, following a sanguinary battle between strikers and police of the British Empire Steel Corporation at New Waterford, of pillaging and burning. Complaint was made that the Government, despite petitions, declined to use its endeavors to end the strike, which had affected the industries of the district for five months.

Republicans Will Pass Their Own Measure and Hold Obsequies Over Governor's Program.

Special to The New York Times.

Promises Thayer Bill Veto.

In this statement the Governor made it plain, in the following words, that he would veto the Thayer bill for the second time, unless it is changed:

"I wonder if by any chance the Westchester delegation has anything to do with the insertion of the same old joker in this bill that appeared in the Thayer bill at the last session? I mean the joker that exempts Westchester County from the supervision of the Land Board and leaves practically all the other park authorities under this supervision. I am told that this joker helped to pass the bill at the last session. Do the Westchester delegates think, by any chance, that I will now sign a bill which I have already vetoed once before, subjecting the other commissions of the State to control by an obsolete political agency unequipped for the work, a control which the Westchester people refuse to have exercised over them?"

His parting shot at his political opponents was embodied in a formal statement issued from the Executive Chamber, in which the Governor asserted that before the extraordinary session convened Senator Seabury C. Mastick of Westchester had promised that the Governor would have his support and that of his county colleagues for the Park Council bill. The Governor added that he even had reason to believe, as a result of the Senator's own statements, that he would become sponsor for the measure.

"Too much pressure," according to the Governor, was pleaded by Senator Mastick for going back on his promises and in explaining why he would find it necessary to support the Thayer bill.

Mastick Denies Making Promise.

Senator Mastick and other Westchester representatives tonight denied they had ever been pledged to the Governor's program. The Senator said that he had merely promised Robert Moses, head of the State Park Council, to do all in his power to bring his fellow Republicans around to his own views of the park problem which were in accord with those of the Governor. After a trip around the State, the Senator said, he had found that as a Republican he would be in a minority of one should he persevere in his support of the Governor.

Senator Walter Westall, Mr. Mastick's Republican colleague, said he had never been in favor of the Governor's proposal. On behalf of William L. Ward, Republican leader of Westchester, a spokesman said that there never had been any justification for the report that he would swing the Westchester delegation into line for the Governor's bill. And he had said, it was stated, was that he would do nothing to prevent the Westchester lawmakers from approaching the legislation sought with an open mind and full freedom of action.

"I noticed in the newspapers," the Governor said in making his statement public, "that the Republicans are boasting that tomorrow will witness my political funeral. They never made a bigger mistake. It may be a funeral all right, but it will not be mine."

Governor Smith's Statement.

The Governor declared the action of the Westchester delegation constituted a direct challenge to the theory of representative government and that their constituents had every reason to feel thoroughly ashamed of them. The statement follows:

"One of the most disappointing features of the extraordinary session has been the palpable weakness and cowardice of certain legislators, delegations and political leaders to carry out the agreements and assurances made when the session was called.

"The most striking illustration of this has been in the case of Westchester County. In this case members of the Park Council talked with the leaders and with representatives of this county and received the most definite assurances that this county, through its delegation in the Legislature, would support to the limit the principles advocated by the State Council of Parks for the expenditure of the bond issue funds. They went further and agreed to do everything they could to persuade others in the State to take the same view and suggested that no compromises should be adopted which did not retain the principle of supervision of park activities by the non-political park authorities.

"The leaders in Westchester County designated Senator Seabury C. Mastick to represent them and to confer with others throughout the State. Senator Mastick assumed this responsibility. He visited other sections and discussed the matter with legislators and others. He expressed himself as emphatically in favor of retaining the principle above mentioned and sought to obtain an agreement which would retain this principle and still meet the demand of the Legislature for further supervision and coordination of park activities.

"Not many weeks ago I spent a day on Long Island inspecting the park system. Senator Mastick was present by invitation of the park authorities. We reviewed the whole park situation with me and assured me of his support and that of the Westchester delegation. He specifically mentioned the hearty support of the chief Republican leader of Westchester County which I was ready to believe was based to a considerable extent upon his enthusiasm and knowledge of parks and his plan for the development of a great park and parkway system of his own county. In discussing the legislative situation Senator Mastick clearly indicated that he and his delegation could be counted on to support the Park Council's program.

Says Mastick Admitted Threats.

"When the Legislature convened it was found that the Westchester delegation had quit and that their leaders had broken their promises and run out on the park program. Senator Mastick doomed to introduce the Park Council bill and when interviewed by representatives of the council, including the Chairman of his own county commission, stated that too much pressure had been brought upon him.

"He said that while he believed in the program and the principles as advocated by the Park Council, he could neither introduce the bill advocated by the council nor support it. He said that he would even have to vote for the Thayer bill, though he did not believe in it. He indicated that his leaders had told him that he would not be permitted to introduce the council bill nor to vote for it and that his political career would be at an end if he did so.

"The entire Westchester delegation has taken the same view and no explanation has been given by the leaders in the county. Why should there have been a change of this kind and why should promises be broken? Is it any wonder that I have been for three days talking about outside influences controlling the action of the members of the Legislature?

"Here is a delegation of men from a powerful and growing county of the State that by the language of their own spokesmen are voting in the Senate and Assembly against their own fixed principles and doing it in fear of the political consequences they may have to suffer if they represent, by their vote, the wishes of the constituency that sent them to Albany as their agents. Democratic government is so eternally right that it can stand many shocks, but the attitude of the Westchester delegation is a challenge to the whole theory of representative government. The whole citizenship of Westchester County have abundant reason to be thoroughly ashamed of the delegation that represents them in the Legislature.

Asks About Westchester Joker.

"I wonder if, by any chance, the Westchester delegation had anything to do with the insertion of the same old joker in this bill that appeared in the Thayer bill at the last session? I mean the Joker that exempts Westchester County from the supervision of the Land Board and leaves practically all the other park authorities under this supervision. I am told that this joker helped to pass the bill at the last session. Do the Westchester delegates think, by any chance, that I will now sign a bill which I have already vetoed once before, subjecting the other commissions of the State to control by an obsolete political agency unequipped for the work, a control which the Westchester people refuse to have exercised over them?"

When the Thayer bill leaves the Legislature tomorrow it will be a no-called "thirty day" bill thus giving the Governor ample time for considering his course. But many persons here would not be surprised if he vetoed it within an hour of its arrival in the Executive Chamber.

Both branches of the Legislature will meet at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. According to the leaders the business before the House should take not more than five hours, although there is certain to be a lot of oratory on particularly acrimonious character before word is sent to the Governor that the extraordinary session has completed its labors and is ready to adjourn.

The Republican leaders and lawmakers feel that they can throw caution to the winds in the almost total absence of pressure from their constituents, despite the radio appeals of Governor Smith and Judge Cleaver. The letter boxes of the Senators and Assemblymen have remained practically empty. They are open to view by all who pass through the "midway" on the third floor of the Capitol. When public sentiment has been aroused they do not begin to hold one-half of the day's mail that every lawmaker receives.

Thinks Circus Show Better.

Governor Smith, with members of his family, attended the circus last night. This morning when the newspaper correspondents called he appeared to have forgotten all about the park controversy in thinking about the circus.

"How did it compare with the legislative show?" a correspondent asked.

"Oh," said the Governor, "there is no comparison. The animals are very intelligent.

"We would have a better show up here, if 'Al' didn't make such a bum clown," said Senator Hewitt, Republican Chairman of the Finance Committee, when he heard what the Governor had said.

City Club Urges Compromise.

The City Club announced yesterday that it had sent the following telegram to legislative leaders at Albany:

"It is reported that the legislative leaders are unwilling to discuss anything but the Thayer bill. We do not believe the Thayer bill meets the wishes of those who approved the park bond issue by so overwhelming a majority. The City Club believes that the compromise suggested by the Council can be made the basis of legislation that would be generally acceptable and earnestly urges that every effort be made to reach an agreement before adjournment."

PLEADED WITH WARD IN VAIN

Westchester Park Head Found Leader Immovable.

Special to The New York Times.

YORKTOWN HEIGHTS, N. Y., June 25.—W. Delavan Baldwin, President of the Westchester County Park Commission and a member of the State Park Council, said today at his home that his efforts to swing the support of the Republicans of Westchester County to Governor Smith's park program had failed.

Mr. Baldwin, who has been an adherent of the Governor's park campaign, said that he had talked over the telephone with William L. Ward, Republican leader of the county, but that he would not change his viewpoint.

"I am very much disappointed with the Republicans of Westchester County and with Mr. Ward," said Mr. Baldwin. "I think their attitude is all wrong. I have done everything I could to bring about a settlement of this controversy. I guess I don't understand politics. I do not talk the language."

WADSWORTH COMMENDS THAYER PARKS MEASURE

Senator Says Board It Provides Is People's Trustee—Urges Unity Against Tammany in City.

United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., in a speech last night in Public School 55, St. Paul's Place and Washington Avenue, the Bronx, defended the stand of the Legislature against Governor Smith's parks program. The Senator commended the Thayer bill, which seeks to place the State Land Board in a supervisory capacity over the State Park Council. He denied that partisan politics had ever entered into the conduct of the Land Board.

At the end of his speech, New York's senior representative in the upper branch of Congress expressed a hope for solidarity among the city's 606,000 enrolled Republicans in the Mayoralty campaign. He said that the right kind of administration for this city was a matter of concern to all the State.

The veto of the Thayer bill and the extra session of the Legislature hold public attention just now, he said.

"The bill provided the necessary funds for the present expansion of the parks. There was no difference of opinion about the sums appropriated. And it should be remembered that the money appropriated, not only for the acquisition of land, but also for improvements in the parks.

"The contention is made that putting the Land Board into the picture will throw the whole State park program into politics, that the board is not competent to review the acquisitions, that only park commissioners are to be trusted. Here we encounter a very grave matter of public policy. Shall an appointive body be clothed with unrestrained power to acquire large tracts of land by condemnation? Shall we deny to the people and communities immediately affected all right of appeal to a higher and independent body?

Calls Land Board Trustee of People.

"These questions can be asked without in any way reflecting upon the good people who make up the Park Commission. And it makes not the slightest difference whether they are Republicans or Democrats. But the power to condemn land and homes and buildings is an immense one. I hope we have not reached the point in the growth of bureaucracy at which these principles will be denied and at which we are willing to confer such exclusive power upon appointive bodies."

Senator Wadsworth pointed out that the Land Board was composed of elected officials of the State, with all its members responsible to the State and, generally speaking, "the board is the trustee for the people of the State in the matter of the lands of the State."

"Some contend that because the members of the board are elected by the people," he said, "partisan politics will be injected into the whole park program. This is the equivalent of arguing that because an official has been elected by the people he cannot be trusted.

"The facts, and the whole history of the Land Board proves, that partisan politics does not enter into its operation. I can make this assertion because I served as a member of the board for five years. During three of those years the board was solidly Republican. During two of them I was the only Republican in it, all the rest being Democrats.

Says Extra Sessions Do Not Pay.

"It seems to me that the provisions of the Thayer bill are consistent with the long-time policy of the State and with the best of American traditions. It is a matter of sincere regret to me that the Governor was persuaded to veto the bill. And I might add, merely as an observation based upon some experience, that extra sessions do not pay."

The Senator praised the selection of Charles D. Hilles to lead the Republicans in the New York City campaign. He added:

"And not all the perplexities confront the Republicans at this hour. Will Tammany renominate Mayor Hylan on the regular Democratic ticket in the coming primaries? If so, why? If not, what will they do? It is doubtful that they can give us the answer at this time. They are trying to screw up their courage to make a decision and it is a somewhat painful experience. And whatever the decision, it will be of, by and for Tammany—nothing else.

"You may not make your final arrangements until they make their decision, but when you make them in a spirit of service to the city above everything else, as I know you will, you will command the sympathy and applause of Republicans all over the State. Republicans who want you to succeed in your effort to provide decent government in the great metropolis."

Douglas Mathewson, former Bronx Borough President, criticised the "extravagance" of the City Administration whose course, he said, was "devoid of business common sense and judgment." Mr. Mathewson assailed the proposed Rockaway Boulevard and the extensions to the walk at Coney Island as things the city could not afford.

MILLS SAYS LAND BOARD SHOULD BUY PARK SITES

Representative, Again Writing to Governor Smith, Upholds Republican Majority's Course.

Representative Ogden L. Mills, in another letter to Governor Smith, declared yesterday that he believed the Republican majority of the Legislature was right in insisting that the acquisition of land for State parks should be supervised by some other body than the Park Council.

Mr. Mills said that an analogous case was that of the Board of Managers of the State Hospitals, which was not empowered to expend the $50,000,000 voted for State hospitals, but that the expenditures were supervised by the State Hospital Commission, a body composed of paid State officials appointed by the Governor. Mr. Mills continued:

"In making his land purchases, which run into many millions, the Conservation Commissioner is responsible to the Land Board. The State hitherto has pursued the wise policy of providing in all cases of expenditure of the State's money by boards and commissions for a careful check of these expenditures by responsible public officials. Why should the Park Commissions claim an exemption which has hitherto been denied to all similar bodies, and what reasonable objection can they have to general supervision by a body of public officials, who, with the exception of the Speaker, are elected by a State-wide vote and derive their authority directly from the people?

"That's all there is to the proposition as I see it. Are the Park Commissions, in accordance with established State practice, to be supervised, or are they to spend millions of money free from all control? The Legislature takes the former position; you take the latter. I think the Legislature is right.

"You say that the Land Board is not the appropriate body and that it may be abolished in January. Under our existing framework of government I do not know of a more appropriate one, though it is probable that some commission, similar to the State Hospital Commission, would be better fitted to carry on the work. But it would be obviously absurd, pending the people's decision on the proposed amendment to the Constitution, to create a new body at this time and it seems to me that in the interim the Legislature is pursuing the wise course in electing to entrust the work of supervision to a body already in existence."

Representative Mills added that Governor Smith's assertion that the Republican opposition to his park plan was due to a few wealthy residents of Long Island was "a little demagogic and insincere."

SMITH SUGGESTS DATE FOR BOND ISSUE DEBATE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 25.—Governor Smith has suggested that the proposed joint debate between himself, former Governor Miller and Representative Mills on the $100,000,000 bond issue be held at Carnegie Hall on the evening of July 9. The Governor is willing to take on both Republican heavyweights on the same night.

The offer was made in the following letter to former Governor Miller, made public at the Executive Mansion this evening:

My Dear Governor:

I am writing to suggest to you and Congressman Mills that the debate on the $100,000,000 bond issue be held at Carnegie Hall on Thursday evening, July 9. It seems that this hall can be obtained on that date and that the radio people, who have expressed a desire to broadcast the speeches, can make the proper arrangements at that time. I would also suggest that Judge Hughes be asked to preside at the debate.

In order to decide finally upon the necessary arrangements for the meeting, I have requested Mr. John G. Agar to represent me and to confer with a representative designated by Congressman Mills and yourself.

Will you be kind enough to confer with Congressman Mills and to let me know if the date and place suggested are satisfactory, and if so, whom you have selected to meet with Mr. Agar?

Sincerely yours,
ALFRED E. SMITH.

SMITH SAYS EARLE ERRS ON PARKWAY

POINTS TO SCENIC BEAUTIES

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 25.—Governor Smith made public tonight a letter in which he took issue with Henry M. Earle, a resident of the Wheatley Hills section of Long Island, with regard to the proposal to construct a broad parkway through it as a scenic route which would connect with the projected so-called pipe line boulevard over a right of way owned by New York City on the south shore.

Mr. Earle, in a letter which he sent to the Governor and gave out for publication, contested a statement made by Governor Smith that the proposed northern parkway at some points would afford a view both of the Atlantic and Long Island Sound. The Governor said that he had been over the route, knew what he was talking about and pronounced it one of unusual beauty.

Governor Smith's letter to Mr. Earle follows:

Mr. Henry M. Earle, 62 Cedar Street, New York City.

My Dear Mr. Earle: I have your letter of June 23. As to the northern parkway, am very happy to know that some residents who have been objecting to this route are ready to accept and, if necessary, to make sacrifices uncomplainingly if the parkway is necessary. I am entirely convinced from my review of the matter that the route as laid out by the engineers and approved by the Long Island State Park Commission is not only necessary but is a scenic and beautiful route of a most unusual character. I went over myself with the commission and its engineers only a few weeks ago, after studying it on paper and with a background of a considerable knowledge of Long Island over many years in the past.

I do not know who ever made an indiscreet boast that the Wheatley Hills people were going to be taught a lesson. I am sure that no one connected with the Long Island commission ever made any such statement, and I should like very much to know your authority for it.

The Long Island park report very clearly sets forth the reasons for the location of this parkway. It is part of a looped parkway system, one branch going north through its hills and one going south through the city water supply properties. One parkway would not get us anywhere. The shore is reached by cross roads and cross highways and boulevards. Both of these parkways will operate to protect and to beautify the sections through which they pass and will keep them free from trucking and from objectionable advertising signs, garages, &c.

Points to Fine Views of Sea.

You go on in your letter to point out what you consider to be errors in my statements. You say the northern route is not a scenic route. I really do not see how that point is arguable. You know where the hills are on Long Island and you know that it is only by going over the ridges and hills that any views of the landscape can be obtained. Practically every estate I know of in the Wheatley Hills and Manetto Hills sections were located there because of just their scenic features.

You say that the ocean and Sound cannot be seen from the parkway. As a matter of fact the very finest part of the parkway passes over the northern part of Manetto Hills and around the so-called farm of Robert W. Roosevelt. This takes in High Hill, which is the highest point on Long Island and affords one one of the most magnificent views I have ever seen, looking all the way over to the Sound and across South Bay to Honey Point. The parkway is within a very short distance of this highest point, which, as a matter of fact, ought to be in the future part of the parkway system.

Could anything be more absurd than to argue that a parkway should not go through these hills, where one single owner has over a thousand acres absolutely unoccupied of the finest and highest land on Long Island, assessed at only $100 an acre?

There are some other very good views further west. What, for instance, is the matter with the view from in front of J. Morgan place in the Wheatley Hills? That is another one of the high points on the island.

It is a curious fact that residents of the Wheatley Hills and adjoining sections raised a substantial fund to make plans for the Nassau Boulevard in New York City. It is my understanding that one of the principal reasons for their interest in this subject and in securing the city to adopt the work was to get them home faster over a ridge and hilly country in Queens County which corresponds to Wheatley Hills and Manetto Hills in Nassau County.

The fact of the matter is that the parkway is nothing but the continuation of the Nassau Boulevard, which the City of New York is about to construct at a cost of about $5,000,000 and which some Wheatley Hills residents propose should end at a narrow road in Nassau County or be shunted down the middle of the island on the flat land where there are no trees and where at most a wide boulevard and not a parkway could be constructed.

Sees Property Values Enhanced.

I disagree with you entirely as to the parkway destroying the property in the Wheatley Hills. All the evidence about parkways is in the other direction.

I disagree with you also as to the parkway route passing through uninteresting farm land. How can you reconcile this statement with the statements repeatedly made by some of your neighbors and by those opposing the parkway that the land is too fine and too valuable and too attractive to be destroyed by a parkway? You yourself in your letter speak of the "practical destruction of the Wheatley Hills development." If there is no development, what is there out there to destroy?

You say that polo, golf and hunting would be disturbed by the parkway, and that this is not a consideration in the opposition to it. From the information I have received you certainly are wrong about this. The opposition on the score of interference with fox hunting was actually made to the Long Island commission at meetings and by correspondence. Several of the people living along the parkway objected solely on the score of interference with fox hunting.

Perhaps they were not sincere in this objection. The joking reference which I made to fox hunting and to the dogs going through specially prepared caverns or caves going through the parkway was based on an actual occurrence, this very matter having been discussed by the chief engineer of the Long Island Park Commission with one of the ladies resident in the Wheatley Hills, after a meeting between the commission and certain local residents of the Meadow Brook Club. I can give you the name of the lady if you wish it.

As to the matter of selfishness, you must have noted that I have always very carefully stated that a large number of people, residents in this section, have heartily cooperated with the commission and their only criticisms were directed solely against a small group that had been making an amount of trouble and noise entirely out of proportion to their numbers.

I am going to take the liberty of reporting to the Long Island State Park Commission that even at some inconvenience you are ready to cooperate with them if the public interest demands it.

Sincerely yours,
ALFRED E. SMITH.

HUNTER HIGH SCHOOL HEARS PLEA FOR PARKS

A plea to keep the city's parks from spoliation was made by Mrs. John C. Kerr, President of the Women's League for the Preservation of Riverside Park, at the commencement exercises of Hunter College High School, held in the Hunter College Chapel, Park Avenue and Sixty-eighth Street, yesterday afternoon. Diplomas were awarded to 261 girls, many of whom received prizes for scholastic and extracurricular activities.

"When we look at our city parks we realize that 'peace-time patriotism' is a dead letter," said Mrs. Kerr. "It is so easy to be patriotic in war time, with the bands playing and the flags flying, but 'peace-time patriotism' has its own responsibilities. Those who litter our parks with paper and perform acts of vandalism forget their duty toward their city. New York will be more prosperous if we all unite in making her more beautiful.

Among the prizes and honors bestowed at the graduation was a plaque given to Madeleine Russell, President of the General Organization, as the student who stood highest in "leadership, service and personality." Miss Russell also won the Pi Mu Epsilon award for the highest record in mathematics, as well as the school award for service as President of the General Organization. Beatrice Schrumpf received a set of Shakespeare, in memory of Dr. Thomas Hunter, founder of Hunter College, for having the highest scholastic record of any girl entering Hunter College from the Hunter High School. Miss Schrumpf also received the Leon Prize, for excellence in German, and the bronze medal of the New York Classical Club for the highest record in Latin.

The senior essay prizes were won by Florette Heisman, Ruth Fine and Elizabeth Zoeb. The Leon Prize, for the highest record in English, went to Marie Robak. Medals given by the Alliance Française of New York for excellence in French were awarded to Christine Fava and Muriel Leahy, President of the graduating class. Service awards, given by the General Organization, were granted to Madeleine Russell, Cora Liebermann, Clemencia Hand, Muriel Leahy, Eleanor Imbelli and Diana Frankfurt.

Mrs. Maxwell H. Elliott, a trustee of Hunter College, awarded the prizes, while the diplomas were granted by Dr. Ruth Lewinson, also a Hunter College trustee. An address to the graduates was delivered by the Rev. Walter Howlett, Secretary of Religious Education of the Greater New York Foundation of Churches.

URGE WOMEN INTO POLITICS

Speakers Tell Suffolk Voters They Should Join Parties.

Members of the Suffolk County branch of the New York League of Women Voters, meeting in their fourth annual convention at the country home of Mrs. Frank McDowell Leavitt at Smithtown, L. I., were urged by several speakers yesterday to join a political party.

Mrs. Caspar Whitney, First Vice Chairman of the State League, told of the necessity for joining a party, while Miss Dorothy Straus, sister of State Senator Straus, spoke for the Democrats; Miss Lucy Jeane Price for the Republicans, and Miss Anna McIntyre of New York spoke on international relations.

Mrs. Leavitt was re-elected County Chairman of the League for the fourth time. Mrs. Peter Sexton of Fort Salonga, was made First Vice Chairman; Mrs. George W. Bacon of St. James, Second Vice Chairman, and Mrs. William H. Weodin of Easthampton, Third Vice Chairman.

HEAR COOLIDGE MESSAGE.

Conference for Advancement of Negroes Congratulated on Progress.

DENVER, June 25.—A letter from President Coolidge in which he referred to "The manifest advancement in the fortunes of the colored people which has taken place in recent years," was read at tonight's session of the conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The President's letter follows in part:

"I have your request for a message of greeting to the annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People to be held in Denver the last week of the present month.

"The request is one with which it is a pleasure to comply because of my strong conviction that this organization has had an important part in bringing about the manifest advancement in the fortunes of the colored people which has taken place in recent years. The evidences of the advancement are so numerous that a mere recital of them would require a voluminous document. Many factors have contributed to bringing about this change for the better and I join in your own feeling of confidence that the improvement will continue under the wise leadership of the real friends of the colored race and because of the sincere efforts of the colored people themselves in accomplishing the results they so earnestly desire. Most sincerely yours," axis of West Bedford Parkway as to form the nucleus of a great educational centre.

BRONX SITE PICKED FOR MUSIC CENTRE

"The placing of the Music and Industrial Art High School at this location would provide ample space for the erection of museums and other buildings incidental to the Music and Art High School, as well as the DeWitt Clinton Academic High School, and these buildings could be erected on lines radial from the Music and Industrial Art High School in such a manner that they would bear their proper relationship to the main buildings for both administrative and utilitarian purposes.

"The new subway route along the Grand Boulevard and Concourse which has just received the formal approval of the Board of Estimate will add to the transit facilities now available along the Jerome Avenue subway line, and the completion of the Concourse route will undoubtedly make the site under consideration most accessible from practically every part of the entire city. The topography, however, in its present condition is not ideal and considerable grading will have to be done.

"It is recommended that the Board of Transportation, in its contracts for the construction of the subway route, provide for depositing the fill on the plot proposed for the Music and Industrial Arts High School.

"Superintendent Gompert has prepared a birdseye view of the Music and Art High School showing the possibilities of the development of the portion of the Jerome Park Reservoir lands, the design being of the classical style, which appears suitable for the purpose.

In connection with management and control of such an institution as may be finally decided upon, it is asked that only so much of the property requested by the Board of Education for the proposed Music and Industrial Arts High School be turned over to the Board of Education, and that the remaining be continued under the custody of the Sinking Fund Commission to allow the inclusion of features that are not under the supervision of the Board of Education, such as buildings for industrial art, a stadium for outdoor concerts, &c.; also that the Music and Industrial Art School of the City of New York should be incorporation as an independent institution under the jurisdiction of a board of trustees appointed by the Mayor."

GERMANS COMPLETE MILITARY TOUR HERE

Members of Reichswehr Sail After Apparently Secret Inspection of Army Posts.

GOT PRE-WAR COURTESIES

Thank War Department and Pay Tribute to Advance in Aeronautics and Automotives.

The first German military mission to visit the United States since the war sailed home yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner, Deutschland, after an eight weeks' tour of inspection of United States Army military posts and camps from the Atlantic to the Pacific. All the courtesies of pre-war days were accorded to the visiting German military officers, including Major H. Wilberg, Captain L. Vogt, Captain A. Baeumker, and Captain F. W. Nagle.

The four officers are members of the Reichswehr, a German reserve organization which in pre-war days was a kind of bulwark for the standing army. The arrival of the military mission from Germany was unannounced, and apparently its tour of inspection was guarded with secrecy.

Efforts to find the members of the German Military Commission aboard ship before they sailed failed. Late in the afternoon, however, after the Deutschland had sailed, a radio message signed by the four members of the commission was received at the offices of the line in response to a request by newspapermen. The message conveyed the thanks of the members of the commission to the War Department for having afforded them an opportunity to visit American Army posts and to make a study of the army's operations at posts and camps.

They explained in their message that they were particularly interested in aeronautics and paid a high tribute to American aviators in both the army and navy. They praised the advanced technique of the air department in both offensive and defensive tactics.

The wireless message also explained that the German officers were interested in American progress in the automotive field, which they described as nothing short of marvelous in its advancement. They also expressed the hope that an American Army commission might visit Germany in the near future and afford the German officers an opportunity to reciprocate the hospitality and courtesies shown to them in the United States.

Dr. Ernest Bromberger, Professor of Languages of the Berlin School of Berlin, Paris and London, who suggested upon his arrival in America that English was the logical international language of the world, sailed on the Deutschland. He said that if English had been the official language of the Versailles Peace Conference it would have obviated all the controversies that have arisen from the language of the Peace Treaty of Versailles.

"French is a language," he said, "that is rather indefinite and a thing may be said in it intended for one thing and yet twisted with ease into meaning something entirely different. When the Versailles treaty was prepared French was the medium. The French text was translated into the German, and the Germans held out for their version of the French text and the French held out for their version of their own text; the result is that there has been continual misunderstanding.

"English, on the other hand, is a language which will not permit of alteration of a thought or an expression. If a phrase is put down it has a meaning that cannot be either changed or distorted."

SHOTS RAKE HARLEM IN HUNT FOR ROBBERS

One Suspect Wounded Thirteen Times—Two Other Men and a Woman Arrested.

Three men and a woman were arrested yesterday after a running pistol battle between bandits and police in which seventy-five shots were exchanged and one prisoner wounded thirteen times. The arrests followed an attempted hold-up in the restaurant of Louis Mittia at 340 Pleasant Avenue.

The wounded man, Walter Russell or Russo, was shot by police while crawling around a ledge on the outside of an apartment house in which he lived at Columbus Avenue and 110th Street. The other prisoners were: Stephen Misanek of 60 West 121st Street, Frank Grauwiler of 238 East Ninety-fourth Street, and Lillian Burns of 416 East 124th Street.

Just after midnight a touring car containing five men drew up in front of Mittia's restaurant. Three men entered the building with pistols drawn and demanded the $2,000 which was in the cash drawer. Two large dogs sprang at the robbers, scaring them off, and Mittia's cries directed the attention of the police to the touring car as it drove away.

In 120th Street, between Seventh and Lenox Avenues, three police cars came abreast of the robber machine, which had broken down. The occupants had scattered through apartment houses in the vicinity. A cordon of police was thrown around the block and several minutes later, when Russo tried to reach his apartment by crawling along the ledge, he was shot and captured.

The other two men were found hiding in a coal bin in the cellar of an apartment house a few hours later. The search led to the apartment of Lillian Burns, where the police say they found a revolver and a quantity of narcotics.

CAPTAIN IS DEMOTED IN POLICE SHAKE-UP

The detective division of the Police Department received another shake-up yesterday from Police Commissioner Enright and it was reported at headquarters that further changes would follow shortly.

The move which excited the most comment in police circles was the transfer of Acting Captain John Archiopoli from command of the Fifth Detective Division in Brooklyn to headquarters to become head of the Gangster Squad with the rank of lieutenant. He was the Commissioner's interpreter on the sixty-day trip to South America last Winter. Lieutenant Daniel Curtayne succeeded him in command of the Fifth Division with the rank of acting captain.

No explanation was offered by the Commissioner, other than the usual "for the good of the service."

Another change made was the demotion to patrol duty of Detective James St. Jacques and Michael Reilly of the Morrisania Station, the Bronx. It is understood that this action was taken because of recent criticism of the men by Assistant District Attorney John MacDonell.

The Police Commissioner also suspended Detective Omar Ames of the Alexander Avenue Station, the Bronx, pending disposition of a charge of beating a prisoner he had arrested. Ames was held in $1,000 bail in the Morrisania Court Wednesday on a complaint of felonious assault.

Another change that the Commissioner is reported ready to make is the abolishing of the Broadway Squad of ten men under the command of Lieutenant Patrick Fitzgibbon. The lieutenant is also head of the Police Glee Club and the Police Band. The squad was formed about eight months ago to keep watch on cabarets and hotels for thieves, especially those who made a practice of preying on women.

The men were chosen for their appearance. They wear evening clothes while doing their patrols at night along Broadway. Some even don formal afternoon wear for work along Fifth Avenue and in the more fashionable hotels.

CALLS LOS ANGELES UNSUITED FOR POLE

Dr. Eckener Declares That Her Radius Is Not Great Enough for Arctic Exploration.

By W. B. YBARRA.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 25.—Jacob (Iould Zeppelin ZR-3, now the Los Angeles, unsuited for polar exploration," declared Dr. Hugo Eckener, the man who piloted her across the Atlantic, when he came here today to confer on plans for airship exploration in the polar regions. Dr. Eckener based his assertion on the belief that the Los Angeles's radius of action would be too limited for North Pole flights, despite her great success in crossing the Atlantic last Autumn.

Dr. Eckener confirmed what he had already stated regarding having made plans with Captain Roald Amundsen, when both were in New York recently, for a future joint polar expedition. He considers an airship of the Zeppelin type the best for such work, and expressed the hope that the Zeppelin works at Friederichshafen would soon build an airship for scientific instead of warlike purposes.

For this, however, he pointed out that special Entente permission was necessary. But he did not foresee special difficulties in obtaining it, since he believed that the scientists of all nations would support a request from Germany for permission to build such a Zeppelin.

Dr. Eckener said that Dr. Nansen, the noted Norwegian explorer, was interested in the project. He pointed out that the idea of polar exploration was nothing new among members of the Zeppelin Company. Years ago, before the World War, Count Zeppelin himself was interested, said Dr. Eckener, to such an extent that a large sum was collected in 1911 for building a polar airship. The war, however, nipped Count Zeppelin's plan in the bud.

"We, his survivors, consider ourselves Count Zeppelin's heirs in carrying out the project," said Dr. Eckener today.

REVOLUTION OUSTS GREEK GOVERNMENT

their adhesion, that the public is satisfied and complete calm prevails everywhere.

Admiral Kondouriotis, the Provisional President summoned the leaders of the various parliamentary parties to discuss the situation, and it is stated that former Premier Papanastasiou has undertaken to form a Cabinet, but it is still believed probable that General Pangalos will become Premier.

The military movement had been foreseen for several days, but up to the last minute the Government had declared itself master of the situation and was absolutely convinced of the loyalty of the troops.

At o'clock this morning, however, General Pangalos, who was a former Venizelist one of the Greek army and held the office of Minister of War for a short time, with a number of officers occupied the barracks of the regiment of engineers and forthwith issued an ultimatum to the Government, demanding its resignation and holding the Military responsible for any bloodshed.

At the same time an ultimatum was issued by Admiral Hadjikiriakos, former Minister of Marine, who was aboard the warship Averoff, and by the commander of the troops at Salonika.

The whole of the Athens garrison did not at first declare in favor of the revolution, and Premier Michalakopoulos and his Cabinet remained in session in the Parliament Building, guarded by loyal troops.

In the afternoon General Pangalos and his staff took up quarters at the War Ministry, where he assumed the attitude of leader of the revolution and issued orders accordingly. Admiral Hadjikiriakos assumed command of the fleet and is expected to become Minister of Marine. It is understood that Admiral Condouriotis intended to resign the Presidency, but was dissuaded.

Clash of Troops Is Avoided.

Though there were possibilities of a really serious situation had a collision between the troops of the two parties occurred, the revolution from a military standpoint was a mild affair, and, except for a few blank cartridges fired, nothing that seemed like war happened. Revolutionary troops are protecting public buildings, and General Pangalos received offers from Salonika that troops would be sent to the capital if he so desired. This was not necessary.

The populace seems strangely unmoved by the event, and is evidently becoming accustomed to such coups, which have been increasingly frequent in recent years.

Pangalos issued a manifesto declaring that in acting as he did he was merely carrying out the wish of the people, who demanded the redemption and purification of the country.

The care with which the revolution was engineered is evidenced by the elaborate preparations made in the principal garrisons throughout the country, where agents of the revolution seem to have found fertile soil to work upon. The adherence of the entire fleet has put the seal of success upon Greece's latest coup d'état.

The discontent of the officers in which the movement was chiefly due was caused by the feeling that the Michalakopoulos Cabinet had not paid sufficient attention to the reorganization of the military forces, and had neglected to develop the national riches of the country, while its foreign policy had achieved only failure, notably with regard to Bulgaria and Turkey. The officers further complained that too great concessions had been accorded foreign capital, making Greece financially tributary to foreigners.

All the leaders of the military movement are strong Republicans and are anxious to set up a more democratic Government.

Text of Ultimatum to President.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The terms of General Pangalos's ultimatum to the President is given by The Daily Express's Athens correspondent as follows:

"The army and navy have risen for reasons of which you and the Greek people are well aware. The Government has failed in internal and foreign affairs and no longer represents public opinion. Unfortunately the National Assembly was incapable of meeting the situation. The Government has lost the support of the army and navy and only in fear elements of the Athens garrison remain to support them. As spreading even a single drop of blood among brothers in arms would be a crime, Greek soldiers and republicans will hold the Government and their supporters responsible for anything of the kind.

"You are requested to obtain the resignation of the Cabinet and regulate the situation in conformity with the desire shown by the people, the army and the navy.

"The same Athens correspondent interviewed General Pangalos on the cause of the revolt in his quarters in the suburbs whence he was directing the revolutionary movement surrounded by a large number of devoted officers.

"The objects of this rising, which already possesses the unanimous support of the Greek Army and people," he said, "are to insure good government with equality and justice for the country. We intend to make war on abuses of military administration which are a disgrace to our country. We will save the public money and put the people on an equal footing in respect to taxation, which is now crushing the middle and lower classes. We will guarantee internal order and security for public and reorganize the national forces so as to safeguard national honor and prestige.

"Today received telegrams from all the provincial towns announcing the success of the movement everywhere, happily without any bloodshed.

"Tomorrow we will undertake to form a new Cabinet maintaining, if possible, the Parliamentary system of Government."

Revolt in Saloniki.

SALONIKI, June 25 (AP).—The newspaper Independent announces the Saloniki garrison decided to demand the immediate resignation of Premier Michalakopoulos because of his alleged inefficiency in offices, and for the purpose of forming a military Government presided over by General Pangalos.

The communique of the revolutionists said their movement was opposed nowhere in Greece.

STOCK EXCHANGE SEAT SELLS FOR $116,000

Membership of Samuel F. Streit Brings the Highest Price Ever Paid.

The New York Stock Exchange membership of Samuel F. Streit, President of the Stock Clearing Corporation, was sold yesterday to Otto B. Reimer for $116,000, the highest price ever paid for an Exchange seat. This compares with a previous high price of $115,000, paid during the inflation markets of 1920.

Several other Exchange memberships were posted for transfer yesterday. The seat of Felix Hersfeld was sold to Bernard B. Hyman for $114,000 and the seat of Herbert A. Tucker was sold for $112,000 to Everett G. Speyer. Prior to yesterday Stock Exchange seats were quoted at $110,000.

In addition to establishing a new high price the sale of Exchange seats yesterday attracted attention in the financial district because of the records of the principals involved. Mr. Streit acquired his seat on April 5, 1899, when Exchange memberships were quoted between $30,000 and $40,000. Mr. Hersfeld became a member on March 25, 1880, when seats were quoted between $14,000 and $20,000. Mr. Tucker joined on May 16, 1904, when seats ranged between $31,000 and $40,000.

At the Stock Exchange it was stated that Mr. Streit would continue as President of the Stock Clearing Corporation and also as a special partner of H. T. Carey & Co., with which firm he has been connected since shortly after he joined the Stock Exchange. It was added that as Mr. Streit gave most of his time to the operations of the Stock Clearing Corporation he had little occasion to use his floor membership, and therefore decided to dispose of it.

Mr. Streit served for a number of years as a member and later as Chairman of the Committee on Clearing House. In February, 1914, he went to Europe as a representative of the Exchange to study the clearing systems on the Continent, in order to meet a request of banks in this city for the formulation of a clearing system which would reduce the demands for banking accommodations.

Mr. Streit's recommendations upon his return were adopted by the Board of Governors and he was appointed Chairman of a Special Committee on Clearances to prepare a clearance plan. Mr. Streit later organized the Stock Clearing Corporation, which has been operating successfully since April, 1920. In twenty-six years Mr.

SHEPHERD DEFENSE MAKES LAST APPEAL

MAKES FUN OF CHARGES

Jests of Accused's Lawyer Cause Mirth in Court—Case May Reach Jury Today.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 25.—The defense closed its arguments in the trial of William Darling Shepherd for the death of "Billy" McClintock this afternoon, and after State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe talks tomorrow the case will go to the jury, probably in the afternoon. A quick verdict is expected by those who have listened to the case from the beginning.

Most of William Scott Stewart's argument today was devoted to an analysis of the testimony of Charles C. Faiman, head of the National University of Science, whom he called a "dirty, dangerous, deceitful little rat."

"Judge Crowe put that man on the stand. He did not say to him, 'Faiman, what is our bargain? 'Faiman, what did I promise you?' He said, 'What was your understanding of my talk with you?' Judge Crowe did not even trust him to carry out the deal as made by him and Judge Crowe."

When Faiman said he understood he was to get immunity, and he was not contradicted by the State, he felt more sure of himself, said Mr. Stewart, and came back to the stand in a new suit of clothes and with confidence that he would have immunity, not only in this case, but for his "quack" school in the future. And, said Mr. Stewart, he has always had an ace in the hole, for if the State ever attempted to try him for the murder of "Billy" McClintock on his confession, Faiman would deny that he ever testified that he gave Shepherd typhoid germs.

Attacks Faiman's Testimony.

Contradictions in Faiman's testimony were also brought out. At one alleged meeting between Faiman and Shepherd, Shepherd said, according to Faiman, that "Billy" was about to become of age. He already was of age at that time, Mr. Stewart pointed out. At another meeting Faiman said that he told Shepherd he ought to make some arrangements because of "Billy's" desire to marry Miss Pope in a short time, and at that time, according to Faiman's story, Shepherd already had the germs.

Mr. Stewart read from Miss Isabelle Pope's letters to show that she was prejudiced in the case, and that according to her words to "Billy" she got along very well with Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd. He dismissed her with very few words, saying that he thought it unfortunate that she had received bad advice.

"All you can give Shepherd now," said Mr. Stewart, as he swung into his peroration, "is his liberty from this persecution. All you can do is to say: 'Go on home, Mr. Shepherd. Go back to your family. Go back to your home, where your boy has died and left you. You cannot give him back his ages and days of suffering in the county jail. You cannot give him back the name that he once bore. He has been ruined in this community. And by what sort of testimony?

Says Shepherd Asks No Sympathy.

"We ask you not for sympathy. We are not asking for that. We have asked you for a fair trial, and we know we will get it at your hands; but we ask you to remember in drawing your conclusion that you should do as far as is within your power what is right by this man and acquit him."

After Mr. Stewart had concluded, his partner, W. W. O'Brien, took up the argument, and made an interesting point with regard to the $50 letter. He said that Miss Luella Rhuebell, business manager of Faiman's school, had testified in 1924 she and another woman had gone through the files of the school and destroyed every letter of 1923 which did not seem worth keeping for "follow up" purposes. He pointed out that although the files had been in the hands of Judge Olson, and that many persons had looked through them, no letters of 1924 had been shown to indicate that perhaps the $50 letter had not been destroyed, if it ever existed.

"Oh, how Olson would have broken down the door coming in with some letters sent to the National University of Sciences previous to 1924, to show that those letters were not destroyed as Miss Rheubell said," said Mr. O'Brien.

Mr. O'Brien satirized the testimony of the State. He was formerly an actor, and he kept the jury hard put to it to maintain their gravity. Two bailiffs were continually rapping for order as he talked.

Ridicules Poison Theory.

"Talk about circumstantial evidence," he said, lowering his voice to a tragic whisper, "if you believe in circumstantial evidence it might be possible that 'Billy' McClintock was killed by an oyster which was poisoned and which they administered to him. Remember that Sbarbaro, the oyster man, says that Shepherd asked him if he could tell where the poison was in an oyster. Suppose Shepherd asked him to find the poison in an oyster, and suppose he was looking for it and finally got it and then he slipped it to Shepherd, and Shepherd put a rubber band about it, and took it out and gave it to "Billy" McClintock, and then Sbarbaro in his honest, manly way went up and made a confession to Judge Olson that he had given this poisoned oyster to Shepherd.

"The chances are that Shepherd got one of Sbarbaro's oyster stews and asked Sbarbaro where the oyster was, and Sbarbaro says, 'What do you think this is, a restaurant?' And he never forgave him for that. Just for that he remembers ten years that Shepherd said, 'Where is the poison in the oyster?' and as for motive, remember that Sbarbaro (the Assistant State's Attorney) is an undertaker."

Cog Railroad to Top of Pike's Peak Is Sold; Has Carried Thousands of Tourists Since 1891

The famous cog railroad to the summit of Pike's Peak has been sold by Z. G. Simmons, head of the Simmons Company of this city, to Spencer Penrose, a brother of the late United States Senator Penrose, it was announced yesterday. The purchase price was not stated. Mr. Penrose is said to have bought the road as a speculation and will continue to operate it.

The cog road was built by the late Z. G. Simmons, grandfather of the present head of the Simmons Company, thirty-five years ago, and since his death in 1910 it has been operated by his estate. Going up the cog road is still considered part of the trip to the Peak and it has carried thousands of tourists from all parts of the world, of late years competing successfully with the automobile highway which has been built to the top of the mountain.

From Manitou, Col., the cog road runs eleven miles to the summit of Pike's Peak, which is more than 14,000 feet in altitude. The road was opened to travel on July 1, 1891, after the tracks had been laid at a cost of more than $1,000,000. For nine miles the climb continues, rising one foot in every four. Each train consists of a specially built engine, constructed so that the boilers will be on the level when the train climbs the 25 per cent. grade, and one car with wide windows to permit an unobstructed view. The engine pushes the car up the mountain at a maximum speed of eight miles an hour, and precedes it on the descent.

Three stops are necessary on the trip up to replenish the engine's supply of water. The road prides itself on never having injured a passenger.

CHANGE OF VENUE FOR MACRI GIRL

STATE DESIRES FAIR JURY

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 25.—The second trial of Olympia Macri for murder in the first degree will not be held in New Haven County, according to a decision rendered today by Judge John R. Booth of the Connecticut Superior Court. It will be transferred to Litchfield or Windham or New London County. State Attorney Alling prefers Litchfield and Joseph Koletsky, counsel for the girl-mother, prefers Windham, where Judge Christopher Lavery, who presided at the former trial, will be again available. Decision regarding the county will be given tomorrow. Litchfield County has expressed violent newspaper protests against the transfer of the trial to that aristocratic section of the State.

Mr. Koletsky's objection to Litchfield is that there will be no Superior Court session there until October, and he wishes the retrial immediately. The finding of Judge Booth, the first of its kind in the history of Connecticut, that a fair and impartial jury cannot be secured in the county where the crime took place, was based, he said, upon a series of extraordinary incidents during and since the trial. He exonerated newspapers of the charge of intentionally publishing items relating to the case which affected the meting out of justice, and said that general interest was high and that newspapers tried to meet the demand.

He overruled the claim of Mr. Koletsky that the Court had no legal right to order a change of venue and stated that he accepted as a fact statements of distinguished citizens made yesterday that a fair-minded jury cannot be secured for this case at present in New Haven County. He denied that the person charged with crime had a constitutional right to trial in the county where the crime took place.

Mr. Koletsky stated that he is eager that Miss Macri be admitted to bail, that certain friends be admitted to see her and a speedy trial be obtained. He will not protest the transfer of the trial, he said.

MRS. BROKAW LEAVES HER ESTATE TO FAMILY

Mrs. Elvira Gould Brokaw, who died at her country home at Long Branch, N. J., on June 19, at the age of 85, and who was the widow of Isaac Vail Brokaw, founder of Brokaw Brothers, leaves her estate to her children, grandchildren, a sister and a maid, by her will filed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday. The total value of her estate was not determined, although more than $30,000 in specific bequests are disposed of in the will.

Mrs. Elvira Brokaw McNair of 5 East Seventy-ninth Street, a daughter, receives all jewelry, laces, books and certain household effects and the entire residuary estate. George T. Brokaw, a son, of 1 East Seventy-ninth Street gets a portrait of her husband painted by Chase, one of herself by Story, family heirlooms and other personal effects, while Howard C. Brokaw of 984 Fifth Avenue gets a portrait of his father done by Story. Julia Eloise Brokaw and Minna Elvira Brokaw of 984 Fifth Avenue and Elvira McNair Hutchinson, granddaughters, each get $5,000 to purchase a pearl necklace as a memento. Josephine Haight, a sister, of Milford, Pa., gets $5,000, and Minnie Kuhn, a maid, $2,000.

G. W. MERCK SEEKS DIVORCE

Drug Manufacturer Charges Wife With Desertion in Jersey.

George W. Merck of Merck & Co., drug manufacturers, has filed suit for divorce against Mrs. Josephine Wall Merck in the New Jersey Chancery Court, charging desertion, it was learned yesterday. The couple have two sons, 4 and 6 years old, who are now living with Mrs. Merck in her New York home at 1,158 Fifth Avenue.

The husband charges that Mrs. Merck left him in January, 1923, and that since that time the desertion has been "wilful, continued and obstinate." Papers have been served on Mrs. Merck. She would not comment on the suit last night.

Mrs. Merck is the daughter of Albert G. Wall of Llewellyn Park, West Orange. He is President of the New Jersey State Bar Association and a member of the law firm of Wall, Parey, Haight & Hattpence of Jersey City. Mr. Merck's father is President of the drug company. His home is also in Llewellyn Park.

The couple were married on Sept. 22, 1917, in West Orange. The wedding was one of the social events of that year in New Jersey. Mrs. Merck was 19 at the time.

BIND AND GAG WATCHMEN

Blow Open Safe and Take $150 in Cash—At Work in Building Two Hours.

Seven armed robbers raided the plant of the United Radio and Electric Company at 418 Central Avenue, Newark, last night, bound and gagged two employes and escaped in a truck with 50,000 radio tubes, valued at $1 each, and $150 in cash from the safe.

John Walsh of 12 North Fifth Street, Harrison, the watchman, and Henry Weitz of 112 Watson Street, Newark, were alone in the plant, a three-story brick structure, when the robbers came in quietly. The employes turned around to find themselves face d with seven pistols.

"Make a move and we'll bump you off," said one robber.

The employes were taken to a room in a corner of the building, gagged and bound to chairs. The robbers then went to the storeroom on the ground floor and with keys taken from the watchman opened the door. The 50,000 tubes were lying in orderly piles. While four of the robbers started carrying them to a rear door, the other two backed in a truck. The rear entrance could not be seen from the street.

The robbers worked for over an hour loading the truck with the tubes. Walsh and Weitz said that they could hear the thieves going across the floor and tried to break the ropes that bound them, but without avail.

When the truck had been loaded and the storeroom emptied of tubes the robbers went to the office on the floor above and blew open the safe. They strewed paper over the floor and took the cash from a drawer.

Two robbers went back to see that the employes were safely bound and then all drove off in the truck toward Second Street.

As soon as Walsh and Weitz heard the car leave they redoubled their efforts to free themselves. It took them nearly two hours to complete the job.

They notified Police Headquarters in Newark and detectives started out in automobiles to search the neighborhood, but the robbers had too good a start. Alarms were sent out to near-by cities and towns to watch the main motor roads for the truck and the bandits.

He has been in the restaurant business there for thirty-three years and his place has become a meeting place for politicians and business men of the neighborhood. He started the fund while the firemen were still fighting the flames on Sunday and contributions from his customers and friends have come in rapidly since then.

Manny Wolff gave the fund his own donation of $100. Magistrate Max S. Levine, who was appointed Treasurer of the fund, also contributed. Other prominent contributors were Senator James J. Walker, Congressman Christopher D. Sullivan, Alderman Graubard and Assemblyman Frank Galgano, all of that district; Harry Perry, Clerk of the City Court; Judge Koenig of the Court of General Sessions, Justice Henry S. Schimel of the Municipal Court, Harold V. Norris and Charles B. MRS. WEITZENKORN SUICIDE

Granddaughter of General Franz Sigel Ends Life by Gas.

Mrs. Mabel Weitzenkorn, 31 years old, the former wife of Louis Weitzenkorn, a writer, was found dead from gas early this morning in the living room of the apartment at 200 West Eighty-sixth Street, where she had a room.

She was seated in an armchair in front of an open gas jet and rags had been stuffed in the windows and doorjambs. This and a letter addressed to Mrs. Mary Siegel, her mother, indicated she had committed suicide. Dr. B. B. Clarke, who lives on the ground floor of the building, said she had been dead two hours.

Mrs. Weitzenkorn was a granddaughter of General Franz Sigel and had a ten-year-old son in boarding school.

In the Chamber a night session will be held and the bill pushed through before morning.

At the basis of the solution of the Treasury difficulties which M. Caillaux is seeking is the conception that the situation must not be considered merely in terms of paper money circulation but in terms of the whole liability of the Government. The Treasury is faced with the necessity of having to meet bond maturities on July 1 amounting to more than 3,000,000,000 francs and further redemptions in September and December of more than 3,000,000,000. With a circulation limited to 46,000,000,000 francs it is impossible for the Treasury to meet these payments except in two ways—either by increasing the circulation or by offering new bonds more advantageous than the old.

M. Caillaux's argument has been throughout that so long as the total of bonds and circulation are the same it made no difference how much was bonds and how much was paper money. His conception is described in French as a "plafond unique," or single ceiling.

To the wholesale reimbursement of bondholders by an increase of banknote circulation there are, however, serious objections. It is recognized that, whatever the justness of the argument, it would cause inevitable weakening of confidence in the franc, with a consequent further fall of gold value. It is understood, therefore, the Finance Minister, while asking for a certain latitude in the matter of a special banknote issue for redemption of the bonds, will create a special new bond issue, exchangeable for the old bonds, which will help consolidate the immense floating debt, the main source of Treasury difficulties.

This new issue will bear a reduced interest, certainly of not more than 4 per cent., but will have the advantage of a value to be guaranteed on the basis of dollar parity with the franc on the date of issue, thus insuring subscribers against loss through depreciation of French currency. It is believed holders of maturing bonds will take eager advantage of this method of insuring their holdings and that the call for cash repayments will consequently so small the banknote increase need be only most limited in character. This issue would be of special advantage to importers and would indirectly tend to stabilize the franc at about its present value, an aim which M. Caillaux is known to have in view.

It is understood the issue of these new bonds would be limited in amount to the conversion of the old and will not be in the nature of a new loan. Its object is to consolidate the situation and not raise fresh money.

It is an open secret even within the Cabinet that there is not entire agreement on these projects. Senator De Monzie, who was called in by M. Herriot as Finance Minister during the crisis which led to the fall of his Government, has taken the attitude that Caillaux's measures are not sufficient to meet the crisis. It was his opposition which prevented the scheme being approved today in the Cabinet council and it is still doubtful whether unanimity will be obtained in the council of ministers tomorrow.

It was learned tonight that only 1,800,000,000 francs or a total 3,300,000,000 francs outstanding bonds have been presented for redemption on July 1. This is only little more than half those which might have been presented and is regarded as a hopeful sign by those who feared the worse.

The Treasury now has a margin of only 350,000,000 for authorized borrowing from the Bank of France, due to the increase of such borrowings by 400,000,000 shown in today's return. The only other important change in the return is 384,000,000 francs increase in deposits in Paris and branches.

FIND WAY TO BETTER THE NATION'S ROADS

Engineers Evolve a New Screen Which Will Improve the Quality of Concrete.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 25.—Better concrete roads will be built throughout the country as a result of experiments by engineers of the American Society for Testing Materials, according to an announcement during the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the society in Haddon Hall today. The announcement was contained in a report by a committee, of which J. A. Capp, chief of the testing laboratory, General Electric Company, Schenectady, is Chairman.

It is pointed out that in the manufacture of concrete, the cement must be finely ground and the sand and crushed stone be of the proper size. The size of the materials has been measured by passing through wire screens, but the difficulty has been that these screens have been manufactured by diferent companies and have been of varying dimensions, causing much confusion and a lack of standard.

The committee reported that after about a year and a half of experiments a new set of standard screens have been evolved, which will be universally used, obviating confusion and affecting coal, ore, pigments and abrasive substances as well.

DENTIST IS ACQUITTED.

Did Not Illegally Withhold $8,000 Bridgework From Woman.

Dr. Howard Stewart, dentist, of 597 Fifth Avenue, was found not guilty yesterday of a charge of illegally withholding $8,000 worth of bridgework from Mrs. William Bramwell Downing of the Waldorf Astoria. Magistrate Moses R. Ryttenberg declared that the evidence failed to show any felonious intent on the part of Dr. Stewart.

Mrs. Downing charged that after she had used the bridgework on a trip to California, Dr. Stewart, on her return here, replaced it with an inferior set, saying that he wanted to complete some work on the original. Then, she said, he withheld the original set, claiming his bill against her. She said she had paid him $300 on account and had given him a $3,500 touring car. The doctor said that he had made no agreement about the car, which was driven into his garage without his knowledge, and that he had never used it. Dr. Stewart said his charges were based on time consumed at the rate of $25 per hour. Mrs. Downing, he said, took up 300 hours of his time. He said he had reduced Mrs. Downing's bill from $15,000 when she told him she was not wealthy in her own right, although her husband was well to do.

VICTIM OF A HOLD-UP ARRESTED AS A FORGER

Ex-Convict Who, With Woman, Was Robbed of $10,000 Gems and Cash, Held With 2 Others.

After being held up and robbed by two armed, masked men late Wednesday night in his apartment at 537 West 144th Street, Thomas McCarthy, 48 years old, said by the police to be an ex-convict, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of cashing a forged check and then attempting to cash another in concert with two other men.

McCarthy, who says he is a salesman; Michael Murray, 26 years old, a clerk, of 227 West 110th Street, and James Reilly, 40 years old, a broker, of 30 West Sixty-third Street, cashed an alleged forged check for $1,460 in the name of George J. Bauman at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the East River National Bank, at Broadway and Forty-first Street. Later they returned and attempted to cash another check for $1,800 at the same bank, the police said.

On the complaint of Frank Earl, the cashier, they were arrested before they could cash the second check by Detectives Frank Gibney and William Carlson of the West Thirtieth Street station. All three were locked up at Police Headquarters.

McCarthy was in the company of Anna Pauley of the Hotel Rutledge when the two masked men gained entrance to his apartment, left the couple bound and gagged and escaped with $10,000 in cash and jewelry.

Two armed, masked men held up and robbed Thomas McCarthy, 45 years old, said by the police to be an ex-convict, and a woman companion, Anna Pauley of the Hotel Rutledge, late Wednesday night in McCarthy's apartment at 550 West 144th Street. It was learned yesterday, leaving the couple bound and gagged and escaping with $10,000, cash and jewelry.

McCarthy and Miss Pauley were alone in the apartment about 10 o'clock, the police of the West 152d Street Station were told, when some one knocked on the door and asked for McCarthy's brother, Mike. McCarthy opened the door and two men wearing masks and carying pistols entered, covered the couple and ordered them to remain silent.

They tied McCarthy's hands behind him with picture wire and then tied Miss Pauley similarly, gagged them and took $3,700 cash, a gold watch and chain from the man, and from the woman a diamond bracelet, a ring and a wrist watch. Then they tied McCarthy to a steam pipe and Miss Pauley to a chair and ransacked the house, after which they left. McCarthy loosened his bonds first and called Edward Erskine, a negro janitor, to help him loose Miss Pauley, and then he sent for a doctor to attend her and notified the police.

The police said McCarthy lived at the apartment with two brothers and that he conducted gambling rooms at Lenox Avenue and 125th Street. The jewelry stolen from him, they added, was taken by him in loans advanced to dice players. McCarthy, they said, is also known as Thomas Brown and Thomas Norman and has served prison sentences at Elmira, Hudson County, N. J., and Sing Sing between 1901 and 1914 for grand larceny and forgery.

In 1921 the police said their records show McCarthy was arrested under the name of Thomas J. Norman in Atlantic City for impersonating a Department of Justice Agent and was sentenced to prison for two years and fined $1,000. In 1924, the police also said, he was arrested for forgery in Boston and released in $15,000 bail, and was arrested this year on the same charge and released in $10,000 bail.

MUSSOLINI ANSWERS PAPER.

Telegraphs The London Times in Defense of Fascist Methods.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 25.—Premier Mussolini has taken strong exception to editorial criticism of his policy by The London Times, and telegraphed to the editor of that paper to "rectify" some of its statements, especially that which declared the Italian Parliamentary session just closed had been marked by a series of Government measures aimed at the most elementary constitutional liberties.

Mussolini, in his telegram, emphatically denies this.

"It is not true," he writes, "that patriots are discontented. On the contrary, the truth is the Opposition is carried on by a small, dispossessed group, while the enormous majority of Italian people works and lives quietly. Please note also Fascism counts 3,000,000 adherents, whereof 2,000,000 are Syndicalist workmen and peasants, thus representing a politically organized majority of the nation. Even the Italian Opposition now recognises the great historical importances of Fascist experiment which has to be firmly continued in order not to fall in its task of morally and materially elevating the Italian people and also in the interest of European civilisation."

The London Times in an editorial article headed "Signor Mussolini's Apology" makes reply and withdraws nothing. It asks what right have 3,000,000 Fascists, if there are as many to claim they represent a politically organized majority of a nation which numbers 40,000,000 people. It adds: "If, as Mussolini says, the discontented are but a small group, why is it necessary to gag the press, forbid free speech, forbid public meetings and arm the executive with arbitrary and irresponsible powers? We believe Mussolini sincerely and ernestly desires the welfare of Italy. We are convinced this policy is not in the long run the way to promote it."

Then I blew the overhead to show I was in distress and a policeman on the car tried to help me with the handbrake. He wasn't in any position to work it, so I tried again, but it did not work.

"The car kept on picking up speed, and the next thing I knew we had struck the forward car and I started to help pick up the injured. Then I was taken to St. Francis Hospital myself for treatment."

He said the brakes had been in good condition before he started down the incline. The police asked him if the derail (a lever on the car by which it could be sent from the rails in an emergency) was in order, and he replied that it had not been in good working order since Tuesday night.

The policeman on Grandy's car was William McKigney of the Third Precinct, who sustained a broken ankle. Passengers said later he had tried to calm the people on the car to prevent them from jumping as the car sped down the hill. After the collision he tried to help the injured.

Patrolman Harold Pfeiffer of the Third Precinct Police Station, who was on duty at the top of the incline at Hoboken and Baldwin Avenues, was told of the accident a few minutes later by a man who said he had left the first car, and was walking to complete his journey by another route. Pfeiffer boarded an empty car at the top of the hill and drove down the cut to the wreck.

He was joined by Patrolmen Frank Dolan, Edward Murphy and John Connors. They lifted the injured passengers to the empty street car and they were taken in it to the top of the hill, where motorists offered to take them to the hospitals. Several private machines carried the injured to City Hospital until six ambulances from there, three from St. Francis and one from Christ Hospital, sent for by Pfeiffer, arrived.

Mrs. Zebrowski had been killed instantly. Ankeny died on the way to the hospital and Poison died an hour after his arrival.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, June 26—If, to you, a handkerchief is merely an object of downright practical use, please don't read this. If it is a breast-pocket ornament, just as much as your cravat is an ornament to your neck, you will immensely fancy these new handkerchiefs of sheer French linen. They are so light and delicate, that they don't give the pocket a miniature blow-out in the way characteristic of heavy, bulky handkerchiefs. The colors are strikingly handsome and should be chosen to tally with one's cravats. Exclusive, but not expensive.

NEW CANTON ALARM AS CHINESE GATHER

PEKING PROTEST BY FRANCE

She May Demand Indemnity for Tuesday's Killing—Shanghai Murder Plot Told.

CANTON, Friday (noon), June 26 (AP).—Many Chinese troops are gathering in positions in the Chinese city opposite Shameen, the foreign settlement, where the firing between Chinese demonstrators and British and French marines took place Tuesday.

There has been no firing, but the tension is great.

Strict orders have been given by the senior naval officer in command of the defense force to concentrate the firing on buildings occupied by the Chinese troops should the latter, who have quick-firing guns, attack.

Owing to the exposed position of the fronts of the buildings occupied by foreigners, holes have been broken through the rear walls to afford a means of escape should this become necessary.

PEKING, June 25 (AP).—The French Minister today handed a note to the Chinese Foreign Office, protesting against the murder of the French merchant, E. Pasquier, who was killed by Chinese rioters in Canton on Tuesday. The note reserved the right to claim indemnity.

HONGKONG, June 25 (AP).—The Chinese Civil Governor of Canton, in a note to the British Consul General regarding Tuesday's shooting in Canton, places the blame entirely on the foreigners.

The Chinese procession along the Bund had almost entirely passed Shakee Street, he declared, when soldiers and police in the British concession suddenly opened fire across the canal. Soldiers and police in the French concession likewise fired, while a Portugese gunboat used its big guns, he says.

"The killed and wounded," says the note, "totaled more than 100, and this brutal killing was premeditated and secretly planned."

The Civil Governor said he was amazed when he heard the particulars, and felt bound to enter a serious protest, and state clearly that the entire responsibility for the affair rested on the civil and military officials and the British, French and Portuguese soldiers, police and gunboats concerned.

Replying to the note, the British Consul General pointed out that the Portuguese gunboat had taken no part in the affair. The defense forces of the British and French concessions had merely replied to an attack made upon them by Chinese troops or military students from the other side of the canal which separates Shameen, the foreign settlement, from Canton proper.

The Consul General added:

"I can, from the evidence of my own eyes, make the statement on oath that the firing was first started by the Chinese. The British senior officer and myself were standing unarmed by the bridge for the special purpose of guarding against precipitate or nervous action on the part of the defenders. We only escaped with our lives out of the hail of bullets directed against us.

"It was only then in self-defense, that fire was opened from Shameen and by the French forces, who were similarly attacked. The firing from Shameen ceased even before the sniping from the tops of the houses opposite was discontinued by the Chinese."

Miss Julia Meadows, American missionary, one of the refugees arriving here from Canton, declares the Canton Government was warned two days before Tuesday's shooting that a plot was on foot to attack the foreigners, but that it took no adequate steps to prevent bloodshed.

The firing from the Bund upon Shameen, the foreign settlement, she says, was deliberately started by Chinese students under the leadership of a Russian.

No Americans Hurt at Canton.

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP).—The question of responsibility for the rifle and machine gun firing at Canton on Tuesday between Chinese demonstrators and French and British sailors was avoided today in a summary of an official report to the State Department from the American Consul General at Canton, Douglas Jenkins.

The summary said that "heavy rifle and machine gun firing started between the Chinese soldiers and French and British sailors, lasting twenty minutes, with sniping for an hour afterward."

Mr. Jenkins related that the demonstration had included students, laborers and soldiers. One French civilian was killed and several Europeans wounded in the firing, but no Americans were hurt, he reported, while the number of Chinese dead was estimated at nearly 100.

CRY "DEATH TO BRITISH."

20,000 Peking Students Also Call for "War on England."

LONDON, June 25 (AP).—Agency dispatches from Peking say 20,000 students, merchants and workmen paraded the streets today with banners inscribed, "Declare War on England!" The dispatches say the demonstrators shouted, "Death to the English brigands!" but that there were no signs of further disturbances and that less enthusiasm was shown today than during previous Chinese demonstrations.

Many Chinese troops and police guarded foreign houses and shops and all entrances to the Legation quarter were kept under observation.

PEKING, June 25 ((AP)).—Representatives of the foreign legations today objected to including in the proposed Chinese conference matters not directly related to the recent strike disturbances at Shanghai. This attitude was expressed verbally to the Chinese Foreign Office by Signor Cerruti, Italian Minister and dean of the foreign Ministers stationed here. The suggested conference would be between representatives of the Chinese and foreign Governments.

In a note yesterday the Chinese Foreign Office insisted that the proposed conference should discuss certain details of the administration of the foreign settlements at Shanghai, and should effect reforms in working conditions of Chinese there.

Another Chinese note yesterday urged revision of China's existing foreign treaties. It was indicated today that the reply of the foreign legations will be an assurance that they will transmit the suggestion to their home Governments.

PEKING, June 25.—Millions of dollars are being raised for the Chinese strike fund, even American teachers in Chinese schools having part of their wages deducted, it is said.

Following a meeting of the diplomats to discuss yesterday's Chinese note, the Italian Minister called at the Foreign Office, where he said the powers had been pressing for a week to settle the Shanghai affair and are waiting for China to appoint a committee.

NIP PLOT TO KILL FOREIGNERS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, June 25.—The foreign population of Shanghai was thrown into a panic today when it was learned that only quick action by the police prevented what probably would have been wholesale killing in the international settlement.

Last night the police learned that students had worked out to the last detail a plot to drive around the Settlement in motor cars and throw bombs into the homes of foreigners. Extraordinary precautions immediately were taken. All garages were placed under observation and forbidden to rent cars to any one.

Special patrols were hastily placed everywhere and no Chinese moved about without being questioned.

The Dragon Festival passed off quietly, due to police cleverness in detecting plot, whereas it might have been the most ruinous day of all.

The shops probably will reopen tomorrow. The Chinese Chamber of Commerce has obtained permission from the Municipal Council to send coolies through the streets with leaflets, calling on every one to resume work.

The shipping strike is having serious results, but whether it will become more so depends upon the ability of the strikers to collect sufficient funds.

SHANGHAI, June 25 (AP).—The Executive Committee of the American Association of China adopted a resolution urging the need of the United States Government's cooperation with other powers in adopting a strong attitude regarding the present situation in China.

The resolution urges that China be held strictly responsible for all losses of life, property and business incident to the present situation in China.

It says an absolute observance of China's existing treaties is essential until those treaties are modified "through the orderly process provided by the Washington Conference."

The resolution recommends that "representations be made to the Chinese Government to suppress the present state of lawlessness directed against foreigners in China, which in our opinion is due primarily to existing unsettled political conditions, aggravated by Soviet propaganda."

Copies of the resolution were sent to the State Department at Washington and to the American-Asiatic Association of New York.

TOKIO COOL TO PEKING PLEAS.

Says Chinese Plan to Limit Foreign Rights Is "Impossible."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, June 25.—The Foreign Office is not surprised by China's demanding the revocation of unequal treaties, including those granting Japan the lease of the Kwantung Peninsula and the South Manchurian Railway, for two months ago the Chinese Government notified its legation here that this demand will be made upon Japan at the earliest possible moment.

The demands are characterized by the Foreign Office as "quite impossible, of course," and as not having been put forward with any expectation of acceptance.

The decision of Peking to formulate such demands soon is regarded here as merely an internal political move to secure for the Peking regime popular sympathy and to prevent the people from swinging to the support of the Southern Canton Government, which openly supports the rioters and the anti-British agitators.

The Foreign Office says:

"The Washington Conference took up all the points covered in the Peking demand and agreed on ways whereby China would be enabled to gain practically everything now asked, but certainly the recent activities of the Chinese are not along the prescribed lines.

"Japan has great sympathy for China's desire to secure full sovereignty within her own territory, but this sympathy does not extend to the point of condoning the lawlessness of the last few weeks. Japan must and will act in full concert with the other powers in restoring order and protecting the lives and property of foreigners who are legally in China. The fullest cooperation continues between the Japanese and other Consul Generals and legations in China."

While Japan does not expect the the present disorders to increase to anything approaching the Boxer rebellion, she is keeping close watch on the activities of the Canton Government, whose activities are said by some to lend color to the report that it is the connecting link between the disturbing element and the Communists. The belief that the Soviets are behind the Chinese disturbances is growing stronger here, and is strengthened in the minds of many Japanese by the latest demands in the Chinese note to the countries enjoying the privileges and friendship which Russia was unsuccessful in gaining when she attempted to obtain the same privileges.

The steamship service here to Shanghai is indefinitely suspended because of the Chinese crisis. The Government has approved the decision.

MOROCCAN TRIBESMEN SUBMIT TO THE FRENCH

PARIS, June 25.—The force of persuasion is beginning to loom as a more important method in the Moroccan war than force of arms. A combination of both methods in the Teroual region between Bibane and Ouezzan, where live the shepherd tribes of Beni Mesguildas, has incited many of the latter to submit to French authority. All the sons of Mesguilda who live in the valleys have now submitted to the authority of the Sultan and the protectorate of the French, and negotiations are being carried on with groups of mountaineers of the same family.

This is a direct result of a march in force conducted by Colonel Freydenberg's column supported by artillery and airplanes. A broad, encircling movement brought the Mesguildas under fire from two sides and determined their prompt submission, while the Riffian regular elements swarmed back toward the north and northwest. French partisans of the Beni Mesters tribe sent many riflemen, who fought brilliantly side by side with French soldiers.

A little east of here, at El Efad, in the Beni Zeroual country north of Bibane, intelligence reports indicate French aerial bombardments conducted last week cost the lives or wounded between 500 and 600 enemies. Air forces also played a brilliant part in pursuing enemy infiltrations near Ain Maatouf last week.

Sultan Mulay Yussef has left Fez for the front, where his presence is another great persuasive element for the easily impressionable Moroccans. The Sultan, to the Moors, represents a sort of high priest and any place he goes means to his subjects there is no risk or possible danger. General de Chambrun and his suite are traveling with him.

MADRID, June 25.—Reports received from Melilla show that the recent bombardment of Nekiza caused great destruction. The native villages are now camouflaging their roofs.

Reports arriving from Melilla confirm the rout suffered by the tribe commanded by Caid Burrahai in a fight with French troops at Ain Zora. The Riffians fled, abandoning their killed and wounded, and Burrahai nearly fell into the hands of the French. The rout has caused great depression among the rebellious tribes.

Burrahai is the chief lieutenant of Abd-el-Krim, whom the latter imprisoned last April but released out of fear that half of the Rift tribes sympathizing with Burrahai would desert.

"We have no intention of closing," he said. "There are some girls absent from the plant but they are on their Summer vacations and will take up their duties when they return."

KRIM IS STRONGER AS POWERS DELAY

Gen. Primo de Rivera, at Tetuan, Says Important Questions Are Still Up.

WANTS FRENCH IN LANDING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TETUAN, Morocco, June 25.—No headway has been made by the Franco-Spanish conference at Madrid on the important pressing points before it—arrangement of combined military or naval action, permission of the French to pursue Abd-el-Krim into the Spanish zone, an agreement to make no separate peace or the terms of peace to be offered the Riff. Moreover these essential points will be the last to be decided, though every day's delay is making Abd-el-Krim stronger.

This lack of progress when quick action is necessary is the general fact outstanding in an interview given THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent by General Primo de Rivera here today. Naturally, he did not say this in so many words himself, but all his answers pointed to this conclusion.

When asked if the French and Spaniards were decided upon joint action either military or naval, or both, he replied: "That remains to be discussed at Madrid." He went on to point out that the conference, having agreed that the two powers would work together against smuggling arms to the Riff by sea, was now arranging to extend this to prevent contraband running on land and soon was likely to make such an arrangement.

But these decisions, it is worthy of note, will not have an immediate effect on Abd-el-Krim, as he has plenty of reserve munitions and is constantly adding to his stock with material captured from the Spanish and French while their armies are waiting on the defensive the results of the conference.

Landing Depends on French.

The naval offensive planned—a landing at Alhucemas — General Primo de Rivera declared, will not be undertaken by the Spaniards except in combination with the French. The aim of this operation, it was learned from other Spanish officers, will be to take Adjir, Abd-el-Krim's village capital, establish garrison posts in a small area around the bay and withdraw the landing forces, all to be done in one day.

The project is dear to the hearts of the Spaniards, who seem to think Abd-el-Krim would lose all his prestige and be completely crushed if Adjir were captured because, as they say, his followers think it is impregnable.

General Primo de Rivera said he preferred not to answer when asked if Spain was prepared to permit the French to pursue the Riffians within the Spanish zone, adding vaguely: "The question is being considered."

He hesitated before replying whether the Spanish and French had agreed to make no separate peace with Abd-el-Krim, saying "In principle it is agreed. We are in accord that Abd-el-Krim must submit to recognizing both the Spanish and French protectorates."

The British attitude he described as one of friendly interest and facilitating the work of the conference. He hoped it would result soon in a general accord.

Spanish Headquarters at Tetuan.

General Primo de Rivera received me in the office of the High Commissariat here from which he at once directs operations at the front and runs the Government of Spain through a wireless telephone, installed by Germans, which began functioning today. The only important ornament of the office is a large oil painting, directly in front of the desk, showing Spaniards entering a Moorish city in triumph. When he heard I came from the French front, General Primo de Rivera asked me many questions about the situation there but made no comments.

Tetuan has much more the appearance of general headquarters than Fez which is the centre from which French operations are directed. The streets here are filled with troops while few are to be seen in Fez. One gets the impression, however, that the Spaniards do not consider their hold on the city very solid—for instance, they are now engaged in moving the important base machine shops to Ceuta as "safer, for Abd-el-Krim might bring up cannon one of these days and shell them." These shops are capable of building an automobile in its entirety and are run in a most up-to-date and efficient manner.

The military road to Tetuan from the Tangier zone, which forms the sole land line of communication with the Spanish western front, is incredibly bad. A new macadam road is being built, and the fact it is being made hardly wider than a single truck seems to indicate the Spaniards are bent on economizing. The route is heavily guarded by new blockhouses on the hills, far thicker than the French have anywhere on their front. The road, indeed, runs very close to the Spanish front, and some days it is closed because of fighting. We had to wait an hour at the edge of the Tangier international zone before we received word the road was open and we could continue in an auto to Tetuan.

All travellers are closely examined to prevent smuggling of arms which traffic goes on none the less over this route. We were stopped five times in twenty-five miles to have our passports examined. Similarly frequent passport examinations were made along the road from the French Protectorate—where no such precautions were taken even to and from Fez—to Tangier but got through without difficulty though. I had no Spanish visa, the gendarmes mistaking an old Italian visa for their own.

All baggage is closely inspected to see that none of Blasco Ibanez's antimonarchical propaganda is entering the zone.

This road which runs along the coast is also thronged with blockhouses, and sometimes cut by Riffians, who are not ten miles away. To see blockhouses in the half mile strip between the road and the sea is to get the impression the Spaniards are hanging on by the teeth. Even at Tetuan one can see them from a few miles away in the shape of dozens of Spanish blockhouses on the peaks and sides of massive rough limestone mountains rising just south of the city.

One of the curious features of the Spanish zone is that, though it is crowded with troops, I did not see anywhere a single piece of artillery, not even a mountain gun. Signs of artillery are frequent sights in the French zone. The Spanish seem to have largely abandoned artillery in favor of rifles and machine guns. Artillery is of little effect against scattered sharpshooters of Abd-el-Krim, while if it should be captured by him it makes a dangerous weapon in his hands against blockhouses. The Spaniards were not attacking but daily expecting Riffian attacks.

HYLAN SUBWAY PLAN DRAWS MORE FIRE

ASSAIL ASSESSMENT IDEA

The Civic Council of Brooklyn, representing more than ninety organizations of that borough, with an aggregate membership of more than 30,000, voted yesterday to endorse the subway routes suggested by Borough President Joseph A. Guider instead of those proposed by the Board of Transportation. The meeting was held in the rooms of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, 32 Court Street. State Treasurer Lewis H. Pounds, formerly Borough President of Brooklyn, presided.

Mr. Pounds praised Mr. Guider for what he said was his stand to get better rapid transit facilities for Brooklyn than provided by the Board of Transportation plan. Other speeches were made by John D. Flynn of the Lafayette Avenue Subway Committee and F. W. Banta of the Cypress Hills Board of Trade. The following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"Resolved, That the council go on record as approving the fight made by Borough President Guider in his stand on subways and that the council also go on record as standing behind him in his efforts to secure better transit."

The council also specifically reaffirmed its position on the route for the proposed Brooklyn crosstown subway, which is one of the routes favored by Mr. Guider, by adopting the following:

"Resolved, That this council reaffirm its position that the crosstown subway be constructed through Bedford Avenue, connecting with all the lines in Long Island City and south to Lafayette Avenue and westerly along Lafayette Avenue connecting with all existing lines, and that the hope be expressed that the line would in time extend down Bedford Avenue southerly and easterly on Lafayette Avenue."

Lawson H. Brown, Executive Secretary of the council, explained that the council had been unable to explain that it was opposed to the proposed method of financing new subway construction, at the last meeting of the Board of Estimate, because its representatives were told that the time for discussing the financial phase of the question had not yet arrived. Other speakers denounced the plan to pay 25 per cent. of the cost by assessments on adjoining property as "confiscatory." The council had previously gone on record against the proposed assessment plan.

6-YEAR NIGHT COURSE REQUIRED FOR DEGREE

Three Groups of Students Planned by Washington Square College of New York University.

Six years will be required to complete the evening course leading to the degree of B. A. or B. S., to be given by Washington Square College of New York University, according to an announcement yesterday by Rufus D. Smith, Assistant Dean. The announcement said that the night college would be the first to give courses for these degrees.

Later, afternoon and Saturday morning classes will be available to teachers and others professionally employed. General courses will be offered in biology, chemistry, Latin, English, German, French, Spanish, government, economics, history, mathematics, music, philosophy, physics, psychology, public speaking, dramatic art and sociology.

Three groups of students will be accepted in the evening classes. Regular students will be those who have met the entrance requirements and are registered for a degree. Special students will be those who have met the requirements but who do not wish to take a degree. The third class will be drawn from persons more than 21 years old who have not met the entrance requirements and are not applicants for degrees. Special courses have been arranged for students in the third class, in many instances.

"All the courses are designed to give the professional student a cultural background," said Professor Smith. "Approximately the first half of the six-year course will be devoted to general academic subjects."

Approve New Clubhouse.

The members of the Army and Navy Club of America approved the purchase of the Delta Kappa Epsilon clubhouse at 30 West Forty-fourth Street by a unanimous vote at a special meeting last night in the present quarters of the club at 112 Central Park South. Colonel Franklin Q. Brown presided. Colonel Brown said the club will occupy its new quarters late in October.

DOUBTS HYLAN POSE AS FOE OF THE RICH

Republican Cites Millionaires Whom Mayor Has Made Associates in Office.

Mayor Hylan, although posing as the foe of the "interests", has appointed and has around him more multi-millionaires in public office than any other Mayor in the history of New York; Edward H. Wilson, Chairman of the Research Committee of the Kings County Advisory Committee, declared yesterday.

"Mayor Hylan's $150 a plate dinner, served in his honor by his Lord High Chamberlain, Berolzheimer, amid the most costly and sumptuous setting, some say, since the days of Belshazzar, did not surprize those who have watched him closest," Mr. Wilson said.

"How varied and extended are the 'corporate interests' of the Mayor's 'golden squad,' as it is called at Police Headquarters," he said, "is set forth in the following thumb-nail sketches:

Barron G. Collier, President and director of the Street Railways Advertising Company, which displays street car advertising in all parts of the United States and in other countries, owner of Luna Park, head of vast Florida interests controlling 1,000,000 acres of land, railroads and steamships.

Dr. John A. Harriss, President of the Harriss Colonade Corporation and identified with many large industrial, financial and real estate interests.

T. Coleman du Pont, formerly identified with the great du Pont powder interests, builder of the Equitable office building and active in vast hotel enterprises.

John M. Shaw, Wall Street broker.

William H. Todd, President of the Todd Dry Docks, Inc., the Todd Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, the Todd Shipyards Corporation, the White Fuel Oil Engineering Company and identified with other large enterprises of like character.

POLISH GOVERNMENT GRANTS JEWS' DEMANDS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, June 25.—The Polish Government, influenced by the damage done to its credit abroad by the resentment of Poland's Jewish citizens, has made important concessions to them. These are embodied in an agreement reached by the Jewish deputies, M. Reich and Dr. Thon, with the Government after parleys with Count Skrzynski, Foreign Minister, and Professor Stanislas Grabski, Minister of Public Worship and Education.

It is understood that one consequence of the agreement will be a visit by Deputy Reich to the United States in September to influence American Jews in favor of Poland.

The agreement is regarded here as a clever move, achieved with considerable difficulty, by Count Skrzynski, who realizes that Jewish enemity has helped to keep Polish prestige at a low ebb and has been the main obstacle to her obtaining credit abroad. Under agreement the Jews will cease general opposition to the Government, although retaining a free hand in individual matters and will inform those interested abroad that the Polish Government is fulfilling Jewish requirements.

Religious and educational measures demanded by Jews were being slowly introduced before the agreement was reached, but to them will be added economic concessions, such as keeping open Jewish shops at least two hours on Sundays, and reduction of certain taxes which weigh heavily on all branches of small trade and industry exclusively in Jewish hands.

BROADWAY HELPING BOYS.

Joe Le Blang, Julius Tannen and Others Pay Way to Farm School.

A drive to send 120 New York lads to the National Farm School at Doylestown, Pa., has been started by business men here, it was announced yesterday. Many have already responded to an appeal by Abraham L. Erlanger, Chairman of the New York Executive Committee of the school, and Adam L. Gimbel, Chairman of its Trade Committee. Pledges to send five boys each for a three-year course at the school have come from Joe Le Blang, Julius Tannen, the actor, and Walter Stern, President of Jesse Wolf Company. S. H. Stone, L. J. Gallagher and Frank Rabinovitch each have pledged to pay for sending one boy.

"It is expected," Mr. Gimbel said yesterday, "that pledges sufficient to cover the cost of the three years' training, together with food, lodging and clothing, for the first fifty boys, will be forthcoming before the end of July."

He avoided the roses in the White House at Washington and now he finds the flower garden at White Court filled with these flowers in full, rich bloom, but it is believed that the salt air may tend to prevent a recurrence of the slight fever to which the President is disposed.

The big White House mail pouch arrived from Washington today with official communications, letters and documents. This bag has been in use for nearly twenty years and has made many trips to New England when it did service for President Taft while at Beverly and President Wilson while at Cornish.

As Everett Sanders, Secretary to the President, pulled out the big batch of letters and other matters requiring the attention of the President he said:

The President attended to his duties in his study at White Court and did not go to his Lynn office. He put in an hour dictating and going over routine matters which a President never escapes.

His first official action here was the appointment of Harry Bassett of Indianapolis to be a member of the United States Employers' Compensation Commission, to succeed John J. Keegan. Both are Democrats. Mr. Bassett had the endorsement of Indiana's Senators.

Governor Fuller of Massachusetts today sent a letter to President Coolidge formally extending the State's welcome to its former Governor. He wished Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge a pleasant vacation among their old neighbors. He also urged the President to attend the Governors' conference, which opens its week's session on taxation and other matters of interest between the States and the Federal Government at Poland Springs, Me., next Sunday. President Coolidge promptly replied to the letter expressing his appreciation for the kind wishes and said that he had not fully decided whether he could break his vacation to participate in the sessions of the Governors. He would like to do so and develop his ideas on taxation where the State and the Federal Government duplicate, such as in inheritance and income taxes.

Dawes Visits Boston Today.

Vice President Dawes will be within striking distance of the Summer White House tomorrow when he goes to Boston to see Owen D. Young, his associate on the Reparations Commission. He has not yet been invited to come here, but the President may send him an invitation tomorrow by telephone. It is probable that Mr. Dawes will make a courtesy call without an invitation if his engagements permit.

The Summer White House was going along very well until early last night, when the cook rushed to Mrs. Coolidge and told her that "this place is bewitched." She said that the cold water had become scalding hot as she tried to draw some from the spigot to drink.

When Mrs. Coolidge followed her into the kitchen she found both spigots pouring forth steam. It appears that the plumber's bill in two years, as the Govhad been altered for the occupancy of the President and had not been properly connected. The cold water pipe was connected with the gas heater as well as the pipe carrying the hot water. A plumber was sent for and disconnected the cold water pipe.

The President received his first plumber's bill in two years as the Government keeps the Winter White House in repairs. His bill, it is said, made quite an impression on the President.

Arrangements for the President's trip to speak at the 150th anniversary of Washington's taking command of the Continental Army, at Cambridge, on July 3, will be perfected tomorrow. Edwin S. Quinn, Mayor of Cambridge, will consult with the President as to the necessary precautions and the entertainment to be offered him when he goes to the celebration.

OPPOSED TO MAKING A MARTYR OF HYLAN

BANTON GETS COMPLAINT

Refuses to Comment on Mayor's Address to His Department Heads—McCooey's Attitude Unchanged.

There was no action yesterday on Controller Charles L. Craig's letter to District Attorney Banton charging that Mayor Hylan, in his address to his Commissioners and their deputies on Monday, had violated the Penal law by uttering what some of them construed as a threat to remove them if they did not support him for a third term.

Mr. Banton contented himself with a brief acknowledgment of the receipt of Mr. Craig's letter. He refused to comment upon its contents.

Although Mr. Craig was said to feel that there would be no difficulty in establishing that the Mayor had violated the law, there was little belief in political circles that there would be any prosecution of the Mayor. His offense, if any, was regarded as technical, and the general feeling was that any attempt by the District Attorney to prosecute him or by Governor Smith, to whom Mr. Craig also sent a letter, to remove him would have a tendency to make a martyr of the Mayor, something those opposed to his renomination were reported to wish to avoid.

Political attention yesterday centred in Brooklyn because of the growing belief that John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader of that borough, has it in his power to renominate Mayor Hylan or defeat him. McCooey and a majority of his Assembly district leaders were reported to be still uncommitted to Mayor Hylan or any other candidate.

This view of the situation was borne out by the action of Patrick J. Diamond, Democratic leader of the Eighth Brooklyn Assembly District, in denying a report printed in a Brooklyn newspaper that he was against Mayor Hylan's renomination. Diamond, who is a Deputy Commissioner of Licenses and attended the Mayor's conference on Monday, characterized the report as a "lie." He refused to say, however, that he was in favor of Mayor Hylan's renomination, thus keeping in line with Mr. McCooey's present official position that he is not committed to anybody.

McCooey was said by friends to be in a somewhat difficult position politically because of the growing strength of James P. Sinnott, Commissioner of the Board of Water Supply, father of John F. Sinnott, the Mayor's secretary and son-in-law, and Democratic leader of the Twenty-second Brooklyn Assembly District. Mr. Sinnott is recognized as the head of the Hylan political organization in Brooklyn, which includes in addition to officeholders some of the Assembly district leaders.

There was said to be a strong belief among politicians that Sinnott has a desire to displace McCooey as the Democratic leader of Brooklyn. This, it was said, he might accomplish in two ways, by defeating McCooey in the coming primaries if McCooey should back some other candidate than Mayor Hylan, or, if Mayor Hylan should be renominated and re-elected, he might become so powerful as the head of the Mayor's faction and the dispenser of patronage for Brooklyn that he might be able to wrest the leadership from McCooey without a primary fight.

Sinnott was said to have been one of the most active in urging support for the Mayor at the Monday conference, and some of the Tammany men present gained the definite impression that he had assumed the leadership of the Brooklyn Democrats present.

The decision of George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany; Sheriff Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader of the Bronx, and McCooey whether or not to support Mayor Hylan was said still to await full reports on the test of sentiment being taken by the party workers in each borough. With friends of Mayor Hylan reported to be ready to put out designating petitions for him immediately after July 1, the first legal day for their circulation, it was said that the party leaders would find it difficult to delay a decision much longer.

SMITH GETS CRAIG'S LETTER.

Nothing in It Requiring Action Against Hylan, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 25.—Governor Smith has received Controller Craig's letter calling attention to the charges of violating the Corrupt Practices act which the Controller had preferred against Mayor Hylan in a letter to District Attorney Banton of New York County, and reminding the Governor of his power to remove the Mayor. The Governor tonight declined to comment beyond saying that there was nothing in the Controller's letter upon which he could take action of any character.

It was pointed out that, while the Governor has the power to remove Mayor Hylan, Controller Craig had failed to comply with the requirements of the Public Officers' act, which provides that removal can only be upon charges duly verified and sustained.

CRAIG MUST PAY $10 COSTS.

Justice Denies Controller's Right to Enter Buck Suit on the City.

Controller Charles L. Craig was ordered to pay $10 costs by Supreme Court Justice Levy yesterday when the Court denied the Controller's right to intervene in the suit of Major Richard S. Buck against the City of New York for a claim of $7,344. Major Buck was engaged by the city as a consulting engineer and was placed on the payroll at $10,000 a year. His appointment was opposed by the Controller, who also succeeded in holding up the claim for money already due against the city.

Major Buck began suit against the city on Jan. 6 last, but the matter went to a judgment by default on Feb. 18. The default was reopened and was to have been tried this month, but the Controller intervened on the ground that the Corporation Counsel's office was not adequately representing the city.

"The Controller here cannot be said to be personally liable on any judgment which may be recovered and he likewise cannot be involved in any contempt," Justice Levy said. "Unless either of such contingencies appears to exist, there is no good reason for allowing the Controller to enter. Motion denied with $10 costs to be paid by the Controller personally."

HYLAN FORGETS CARES AS ALDERMEN FROLIC

Mayor Fools Everybody at Board's Outing by Failing to Talk of Traction or Interests.

For two hours yesterday Mayor Hylan forgot all about Controller Craig and the other cares of office and helped the Aldermen celebrate their annual outing at Rye Beach. The Aldermen took the entire day off. They departed from the Battery on the excursion boat Colonel Clayton in the morning. Wireless advices reported it cruising about Long Island Sound long after the Mayor had been tucked in bed in Bushwick.

For one brief moment the cruise of the Colonel Clayton threatened to become historic, for the outing fell on the day of a Sinking Fund Commission meeting, and as both events required the presence of William T. Collins, President of the board, it was suggested that the Sinking Fund meeting be held aboard the boat. The Mayor felt dubious about what might happen with Controller Craig on the outing and insisted upon holding the meeting in the regular chamber at the City Hall, so the boat sailed away without either public official on board. They caught up with the outing, however, just as the members sat down to a shore dinner at Beach Hill Inn. In their automobile the Mayor and Mr. Collins took along Frank Cunningham, Chairman of the Board's Finance Committee, so everything was regular.

The rain spoiled the athletic games and was in a fair way of spoiling the dinner until President Collins hit upon the idea of having the Mayor make a speech. The novelty appealed to the crowd and the sporting instincts of the Aldermen were immediately aroused. They made bets as to whether the Mayor would talk on traction, the interests or the traction-controlled press. Everybody lost, for the Mayor only mentioned what a fine body of upstanding citizens the Aldermen were.

"They keep in closer touch with the people than any other public officials," he declared amid thunderous applause. "They are always ready to do the people—I mean to do what the people want—and they are the hardest working body of men in the world. They work long after the rest of us are asleep. This is the one day in the whole year when they forget about the troubles of their offices, and Democratic members, uniting in brotherly love with the Republican members, seek to have a good time."

Alderman John Worth of Brooklyn, the only Republican member of the board present, fell off his chair and had to be assisted to his feet. There was loud applause when the Mayor said he regretted he had been unable to attend the jolly Aldermanic outing in the past. He sat down abruptly when the Police Band started to play "Tammany." Seekers after political significance watched the Mayor closely to note how long he applauded the tune. Some of the more meticulous insisted that he clapped his hands several times, while others were sure that he only gazed fixedly into his clam chowder.

Having nothing else to do, the Aldermen continued eating after the Mayor left. The party was fast going to pieces when Grover Whalen appeared, and he was forced to occupy the Mayor's vacant seat. Nobody called upon him for a speech and everybody was happy. Just as the Mayor entered his automobile a venturesome reporter for an evening newspaper asked him if he had any comment to make on Controller Craig's letters to District Attorney Banton and Governor Smith. The noise of the band at this critical moment made it impossible to hear the Mayor's answer.

"Pete" McGinnis, Alderman from Greenpoint, who was master of ceremonies, assured everybody they were having a fine time and proposed that, after the eats and drinks, any Alderman so disposed could borrow one of the Police Band instruments and have his picture taken. All tried at once to get a wind instrument. President Collins managed to get a ukulele.

The baseball game between the Aldermen and the City Hall reporters was called on account of rain, darkness, lack of uniforms and general indisposition and will be played some other year. The Aldermanic Board will meet again as usual next Tuesday.

Superstitions About Wool

There is a curious superstition that a woolen suit is necessarily hot. It leads many men to dress in potato-sack styles during hot weather.

Come to D'Andrea Brothers and let us show you a real summer suit that combines coolness and comfort with neatness and style.

SEES UNITED STATES GOING TO THE DOGS

London Morning Post Thinks We Have Too Much Money and Too Many Laws.

CRIME WAVE AS SYMPTOM

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—The Morning Post declares that the United States is going to pot because she has too much money, and quotes Goldsmith to prove it. Comment would only spoil the following stirring account of what is the matter with the United States:

"The news that comes from our Washington correspondent of the huge budget surplus that it is the United States Government's pleasurable business to dispose of, and of the 20 to 50 per cent. Mr. Mellon proposes to take off the income tax, an income tax already insignificant compared with our own, will make many British mouths water. It may also provoke a few unkind remarks about the unequal shares of the white man's war and post-war burdens that are being borne by the United States and Great Britain respectively, but these should not be taken too seriously.

"We in this country do not begrudge the American his prosperity, nor do we (or at any rate those of us who advocate protection and the right of the workingman to work as hard and as long as he pleases as the only real remedies for our own industrial ills) blind ourselves to the fact that 90 per cent of the present American prosperity is due to American economic good sense and the happy absence from their political midst of the Bolshevik-ridden Socialist and shibboleth-ridden Liberals.

"That being admitted, our friends across the sea will not take it amiss if we proceed to lay to our souls what little unction can be extracted from the situation.

"We congratulate ourselves on being saved, as we apparently are, from some of the outstanding and less desirable concomitants of widespread prosperity. 'Ill fares the land,' we are told, 'to hastening ills a prey, where wealth accumulates and men decay.'

"The American people are certainly not decaying, but already they are asking themselves very seriously whether their still young republic is growing up in the image and likeness of the sturdy, liberty-loving, serious-minded men that founded it.

"Their fathers migrated to the States in search of liberty. Today, most of the liberty enjoyed by United States citizens is enjoyed in open violation of some law or ordinance which the police are unable or unwilling to enforce.

"While to a large extent law-breaking and not law-abiding is the rule and not the exception in life, American lawmakers and bureaucracies have become legalists, men unable to see the purpose for which a law exists, but only the law itself.

"In the last ten years or so 500,000 laws, mostly of a prohibitive character, have been enacted in the United States. In the same period Great Britain passed 17,000 laws, mostly regulative. This hyper-legalistic spirit has brought all law into contempt.

"Widespread prosperity, easy money, the ubiquitous motor car, the corruption of those in authority, have made real crime scarcely less prevalent than the universal commission of mala prohibita, inflicted by doubtful methods on a nation that does not want them.

"With the wave of crime has come an equal wave of social depravity. Prohibition is forcing prosperity and industry upon the working classes, but, according to the testimony of Americans themselves, it is debauching the flower of the nation's youth.

"Things might have gone the same way with us here in Great Britain if our wealth had similarly accumulated. It has not. Far from it. And we as a nation are neither better nor worse, nor indeed very different in any respect, from what we were before the war. This thought may console us a little. As we flounder in an abysmal industrial depression, it need not deter us from trying to find a way out."

FINDS CITY FOLK ENJOY BEST HEALTH

Rockefeller Foundation Report Upsets Popular Belief About County Life.

City life is more healthful than life in the country, according to Dr. George E. Vincent, President of the Rockefeller Foundation, in the second instalment of the annual report on the Foundation's work, issued yesterday. Last year the Foundation spent $7,288,822, one-third of the expenditures going out through the International Health Board.

"The idea that rural life is inherently wholesome and healthful has all the vitality of a popular legend," Dr. Vincent reported. "The crystal waters of the old family well, the gymnasium apparatus of plow and hoe and saw, the fresh food from field, garden and dairy, the constant outdoor life, the mental serenity which comes from contact with nature have been so lyrically extolled by orators, chiefly urban, that it is hard to convince the man in the street that the farmer and his family are not healthier than city folk.

"Yet there are many facts which point in quite the opposite direction. * * * New light has recently been thrown on this question by the examination of 3,475 male students in one of the large State universities of the Middle West. The results are distinctly favorable to the large cities of over 50,000 population as compared with small cities, countryside and villages. The students from the large cities show the lowest number of physical defects. 'It is a well-known fact,' says a United States health official, 'that the natural advantages which the rural districts possess are more than offset by the better health protection afforded the city dweller.'

"To hasten the extension of these safeguards to the small town, village and countryside is one of the aims of the International Health Board."

The report states that the medical schools had failed to put enough stress on the preventive side of medicine, although a start in that direction had been made at the Harvard Medical School. Also that the "average physician fails to see as clearly as he should that he is a vital part of the public health organization; that he is expected to discover and to report communicable diseases, to instruct his patients, to support the local authorities, to help create sound public opinion."

SILENT ON EVE OF SENTENCE

Kidnapper of Von Maluski Boy Faces Long Term Today.

Mrs. Harold Jones, who was convicted on Tuesday by a jury in Judge Collins's part of General Sessions of the kidnapping of 3-year-old Raimonde Von Maluski from in front of his home at 600 West 178th Street last March, will be arraigned for sentence today. Unless she tells the whereabouts of the boy something near the maximum of the five to fifty years sentence that faces her probably will be imposed by Judge Collins.

She was warned of this by the Court on the day of her conviction, but up to last evening she had shown no inclination to reveal to Assistant District Attorney John L. MacDonnell, who prosecuted the indictment against her, whether the boy is still alive or where he might be found. She has insisted that she knows nothing about the kidnapping.

She appeared yesterday not to be worried about the heavy penalty which the Court promised to impose today unless she told. The authorities now believe that she will persist in her refusal to reveal anything about little Raimonde.

HOMEOPATHS PLAN $20,000,000 DRIVE

WILL SEEK HALF AT ONCE

Second $10,000,000 to Be Raised in 10 Years—Campaign to Extend Throughout Country.

Plans for a $20,000,000 endowment and building program for the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Flower Hospital, at Eastern Boulevard and Avenue A, were announced yesterday by a special committee at the closing session of the convention of the American Institute of Homeopathy at the Roosevelt.

The announcement was made by William M. Baldwin, President of the Board of Trustees of the hospita, and by President Gilbert Fitzpatrick of the Institute. The announcement was received enthusiastically at the dinner of the Institute at the Roosevelt last night. A donation of $10,000 by the institute, made public at the dinner, will be used to prepare a survey to develop the detailed money raising plan. The money will be raised by the 20,000 homeopaths in the United States.

The plans for the new homeopathic medical centre call for enlarging the hospital to four times its size, with new buildings and laboratories, dispensary, employes' quarters, nurses' home and medical college.

The main feature of the building program is the construction of a twelve-story college building for $800,000, to replace the present structure. In time, according to the plans, the buildings will be twenty-five stories high. The new college building will accommodate 600 students, compared with 190 now. The Faculty will be enlarged correspondingly.

The immediate goal, it was said, will be to raise $10,000,000, the remaining $10,000,000 to be raised during the next ten years.

The plan calls for a new ward building to cost $350,000, a dispensary and employes' building, $350,000; a nurses' home, $300,000, and $350,000 for more laboratories. For every student an endowment of $1,200 will be sought. More than $7,000,000 will be necessary for this purpose.

Mr. Baldwin also announced that the Medical Board of the Metropolitan Hospital on Welfare Island, at the direction of Commissioner of Public Welfare Bird S. Coler was preparing plans to establish a post-graduate school of medical instruction for homeopaths.

Mayor Hylan, who was the principal speaker at last night's dinner of the institute, described the expenditure of the city for eight years for hospitals and municipal welfare work. He said in that time the municipality spent $20,000,000, and was doing its utmost to make the lives of the sick poor as comfortable as possible.

Two hundred women were present at the luncheon at the Hotel Astor of the women attending the convention. Brief speeches were made by General Charles F. Summerall, Senator William L. Love, Mrs. William D. Sporburg, President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Charlotte Farrar, assistant to Secretary of State Mary Knapp. Mrs. Orlando R. Von Bonnerwitz was chairman.

Following the custom of the Institute, Dr. Gilbert Fitz-Patrick of Chicago, elected President last year, took office yesterday. Dr. Arthur W. Belting of Trenton, N. J., was selected President-elect to take office next year.

The other officers elected were: Dr. Dean W. Myers of Ann Harbor, Mich., First Vice President; Dr. Wallace S. House of New York City, Second Vice President; Dr. Florence E. Voorhees of Newark, N. J., Third Vice President, and Dr. Carleton A. Harkness of Chicago, Ill., Recording Secretary. The following Trustees were elected: Dr. H. F. Wiggers, Cincinnati; Dr. Mary E. Hanks of Chicago; Dr. G. Harlan Wells of Philadelphia and Dr. E. Weldon Young of Seattle.

UNIONS VOTE TO GIVE CATHEDRAL A WINDOW

Representatives of unions in the Central Trades and Labor Council of the American Federation of Labor, at a meeting last night in the old Synod House of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, voted to contribute a window to the nave of the cathedral. Bishop Manning presided at the meeting, which was called by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman of the committee for completing the cathedral.

"I am especially gratified," said Bishop Manning, "at the interest shown by the representatives of labor in the erection of the cathedral. These men will do the actual work in erecting the structure, but they wish to have a share in it beyond this. It is their desire to contribute to the cost of some part of it by their own free will offerings. From all departments of the work now going forward on the building comes the assurance that the men feel deep personal interest in the undertaking and that each wishs to put into it the best work of which he is capable."

Others who spoke were Gordon J. Young, Granite Cutters' Union; John P. Coughlin, Chairman of the Council, and Walter West, of the Art Glass Workers' Union. Union representatives included James Clarke, Secretary of the Eccentric Firemen's Association; Thomas J. Curtis, Chairman of the Tunnel and Subway Constructors' Union; David White, President of the Granite Cutters' Union; Joseph S. McDonagh, Electrical Workers' Union, and Anthony Salimbene of the Excavators' Union.

$3,000 VERDICT FOR RUSSIA.

Kerensky Government Wins Award in Black Tom Explosion Claim.

The first verdict for complainants suing the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company for damages growing out of the Black Tom explosion on July 30, 1916, was won yesterday by the Kerensky Government of Russia. The action was for $1,642,000, and the verdict was for $3,000.

Trial of the action has been going on for a month before Federal Judge Julian W. Mack and a jury, and it took the jury forty-two hours to agree on the verdict. The question to be decided was whether the property of the plaintiff was on the pier of the railroad company or afloat at the time of the explosion. Property, it was shown, was variously located, some of it on steam barges and some in one of the warehouses on the pier. It was shown that the only property on land was valued at $3,000, which was allowed. The rest of the claim, for property afloat, was not allowed.

Former Judge Nash Rockwood, of counsel for the defendant, contended that the fire and explosion was the work of an incendiary, probably a spy, and that the property of the plaintiff that was afloat was in the actual custody and control of the Russian Government.

Another action by the same plaintiff, for damages growing out of the explosion, is pending. The amount claimed is $800,000 and the questions involved are the same as in the action just disposed of. It was said that the $3,000 probably would be paid and that it would be placed in some depository here for future disposition.

Mr. E. J. Bliss,
Regal Shoe Company,
125 Summer Street,
Boston, Mass.

My dear Sir:.

"KNOWLEDGE IS POWER," quoth Bacon the English philosopher in the 17th century. About this time a monk of England invented the size stick. Three centuries later the RESCO FITTING MACHINE was invented in America, by E. J. Bliss, President of the Regal Shoe Company.

A modern version of Bacon's quotation is this, "The KNOWLEDGE of fitting shoes correctly is the POWER in the RESCO FITTING MACHINE."

What is a size stick and what do its marks mean?

The size stick was invented as a means of measuring feet. As 3 barley corns = 1 inch, the size stick was made 39 barley corns long which equalled 13 inches. This explains the origin of shoe sizes, which are graded 3 sizes to the inch.

For three centuries shoes have been fitted by the uncertain size stick; length from heel to large toe determining size, regardless of the person's weight when standing. If the foot hurt the salesman said, "I guess you need a larger size."

We are living in a Scientific Age - GUESS WORK is obsolete. The product of this Age is, THE RESCO FITTING MACHINE.

What are its advantages over the old fashioned size stick?

1 - It takes the guess out of shoe fitting.
2 - It automatically measures width and length of both feet while standing.
3 - It is absolutely accurate.
4 - It is the scientific method.

What is the result of this scientific method?

No matter how fine the workmanship, how splendid the leather - all are naught unless shoes fit correctly. A perfect fit is made possible through RESCO SCIENTIFIC FITTING MACHINE.

As the 20th Century Limited has displaced the Sedan Chair of the 17th century - so the 20th Century RESCO FITTING MACHINE has supplanted the size stick of the 17th century.

Yours very truly,

(Mrs.) Olivia Dennis

A National Endorsement
of the New Scientific Resco Fitting Machine

Recently I visited four different stores to purchase a pair of shoes. Three of them got out the measuring stick. Not one of the three sizes recommended would fit. The fourth was a Regal store, and for the first time in thirty years my feet (not foot) were measured correctly. Before it was the feet that had to fit the shoe, but this time it was the shoes that had to fit the feet.
(Milton N. Harger, Syracuse, New York)

The ideal shoe is the one that gives the most comfort consistent with style, and to obtain this much needed feature of comfort, it is necessary that the foot be accurately measured as to length, breadth and spread, as when walking or standing. The Resco Fitting Machine does this.
(John Macdonald, St. Louis, Missouri)

I walk constantly for forty-eight hours a week on a concrete floor and have suffered from feet absolutely worn out, until I bought Regal Shoes fitted with Resco Measuring Machine —since then my feet are as fit in the evening as in the morning.
(Mr. M. Peterson, Oakland, California)

You wish your shoes comfortable for walking; then why be measured in them sitting down? Any shoe is comfortable sitting down. Your weight on your feet eliminates guess work and does away with that old problem of "breaking them in."
(Mrs. Susie Morris, Fulton, Ky.)

If there is room enough for perfect comfort in your shoes in a standing position, there will be no pinching when you sit down. The old-fashioned shoe clerk proves the case for Resco by asking you to stand up in the new shoe, AFTER he has measured your feet sitting down.
(T. Harry Thompson, Philadelphia, Pa.)

Two men, six feet tall, one weighs 260 pounds, the other 140 pounds. Feet measure alike on the size stick sitting down. Are their shoes the same size? No, the 260 pound man's foot expanded more under pressure when standing so he should have a longer and wider shoe.

I purchased a pair of Regals and wore them from the store with perfect comfort and have worn them every day since, without trouble from either shoes or feet. In fact, for the past ten years I have never enjoyed the use of my feet as I do now.
(E. N. Savage, Worcester, Mass.)

(Louis Martin, Box 287, Anacortes, Washington)

One foot is usually larger than the other. In most cases it is the left one. Shoes to fit should be measured to the larger foot. The only way to find the larger foot is to stand on a Resco Fitting Machine and let this new scientific measuring machine tell you the length and width of both feet under the weight of the body.

The scale on the size stick is a futile attempt to combine mathematics and guess work. It stands as a monument to old style inefficiency—no person by measuring the length of one foot can tell the size and width of shoes needed for both feet.

(Experience with Resco in the Army). I do not recall a single instance where a refitting was necessary after careful use of the Resco Fitting System, and I have used and seen it used on large numbers of men.
(Wm. S. Robinson,
Army & Navy General Hospital, Hot Springs, Ark.)

"It took me less time to buy the shoes than it does to write this letter," says Wilford C. Taylor, a leather buyer, of Baltimore, Md.

* * * *

Once men hated to give up their old shoes because they dreaded breaking in new ones. After Resco was installed, they were happy to get new shoes for they were assured of a comfortable fit.

On April 1st we announced to 9,965,384 wearers of shoes that we had installed the new scientific "RESCO" Fitting Machine exclusively in all Regal Stores from New York to San Francisco.

In order to focus public attention on the present antiquated and inadequate method of measuring and fitting feet, and remove the cause of so much suffering from mis-fitting shoes, we offered $1000 in Prizes for the best letters answering the following two simple questions:

2—What are the advantages of the new scientific RESCO Fitting Machine over the old-fashioned method of measuring feet with a size stick?

The overwhelming and enthusiastic response from 34 different states,—even from far off Honolulu, proved conclusively that our announcement aroused a National Consciousness to the importance of having shoes properly fitted.

Thousands who had their feet measured by the RESCO Fitting Machine, were startled to find out how much difference there was in the measurement of their feet when standing up, and sitting down. Hundreds were surprised to find out that one foot was longer than the other, and that the width of the right foot was different from the left foot.

The verdict was unanimous that the only safe and correct way to get a comfortable fit in a stylish shoe, was to have the length and width of both feet measured at the same time under the weight of the body.

The contest closed June 1st, and the Judges have just given us the letter which they selected as the winner of the first prize, and we have taken the liberty of reproducing other interesting paragraphs from different letters from all sections of the country.

The RESCO Shoe Fitting System is now at your service in every Regal Shoe Store from Coast to Coast, and whether you wear Regal Shoes or not, you are cordially invited to come in at any time without the slightest obligation to purchase, and have your feet measured by this new Scientific Fitting Machine.

"Other Interesting Paragraphs"

(With old fashioned Size Stick Method). If a shoe was tight, the salesman would say "That is because the shoe is new. It will ease up when you wear it." Your own foot was compelled to stretch the shoe out of shape for a comfortable fit.
(Chas. Muller, Brooklyn, N. Y.)

"It took me just three minutes to be fitted with your new Resco Foot Measuring Machine, and I got a pair of stylish shoes that were comfortable, for only $6.60."

The use of the Resco Foot Measuring Machine will hasten the day when distortion of the feet, due to faulty foot-wear, will be a thing of the past.
(Miss M. Barron,
N. S. Technical College, Halifax, Nova Scotia)

The method of fitting by the old fashioned size stick had my feet in terrible condition. When I travelled, a second pair of shoes and a plentiful supply of adhesive tape was an important part of my kit.
S. W. Straus & Co., New York City)

For the first time in many years I was perfectly and comfortably fitted with a pair of shoes—shoes that were withal stylish and good to look upon.
(Elwin R. Main,
P. F. C., U. S. M. C. Marine Barracks,
Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.)

I think that the Resco Fitting Machine is the most practical, scientific method of measuring the feet and getting the size properly.
(Wm. Buschmann, Honolulu, H. I.)

As soon as I read of your wonderful Resco Fitting Machine, I took my daughter to a Regal store and asked to have her feet measured—I learned that she should be wearing a shoe half a size longer and one width wider than the ones I had just purchased a week before—something no shoe man ever told me before though I have always taken her to the best stores and asked the manager to give him best fitting.

I am a ex-retail shoe merchant. Upon going into business, I purchased everything in the way of equipment which would stamp my store as a first class one. Consequently, I purchased a size stick. If it indicated anything, it surely meant nothing to me. I used it, simply for the reason, that it was generally used to let the customer feel that great care was being taken to insure a perfect fit. But I never attempted to take a pair of shoes from the shelf, until I first determined the size by looking inside the customer's old shoes.
(Edwin M. Miller, Jr., Clerk of Circuit Court, Westminster, Md.)

From my point of view the Resco Foot Measuring Machine eliminates all guess work in measuring the foot, as it registers elongation, rotation and construction, besides the natural spread of the joints.
(Dr. C. Ralph Welch, Foot Specialist, Lynn, Mass.)

About two months ago I bought my first pair of Regal Shoes. They fitted me with a new Resco Machine. What a difference. I stood up and my weight was on both feet and I was fitted correctly for the first time in my life. It is my first pair of Regal Shoes, but I know they won't be my last pair.

them back yesterday and they were all safe inside when the lightning made the ball explode as if it had a dynamite core.

This wing of the museum is six stories high. Above the sixth story is a tower of red granite so designed as to appear to rise out of the building in a spiral. On top of the tower was the ball of granite. It was eight feet thick and formed a perfect sphere.

From the ground this massive architectural decoration looked like a single piece of stone, but it was in three parts. The middle part was like a huge and very thick grindstone, with dome-shaped pieces over it and under it to complete the ball.

The stroke of lightning shattered the upper and lower sections into bits weighing from an ounce to a few pounds. It left the thick middle section almost intact, but tossed it to the ground on the Seventy-seventh Street side. The fragments of the upper and lower pieces rattled over the roof and against the elevated structure and strewed the grounds.

Bolt Puts Out Lights.

The burst of flame, the stunning crash and the vibration throughout the whole of the great building made some of its occupants think that most of the structure was wrecked. Others, scientists absorbed in their work, did not notice it. The bolt of lighting which shattered the granite ball had force enough in it to shock the west side of Columbus Avenue from Seventy-seventh to Seventy-eighth Street and to put out the electric lights in the stores and apartment houses there.

Dr. George Childs, Preparator of Specimens, was poring over a book in his office on the fifth floor of the Museum directly beneath the tower, but it did not occur to him that anything unusual had happened. Dr. Childs went to the office of Acting Director Sherwood a little later.

"That was quite a crash a little while ago," said Dr. Sherwood. "I wouldn't be surprised if it struck somewhere around here."

"Indeed," said Dr. Childs. He was profoundly puzzled when a sight of the debris a few minutes later told him what had happened a few feet over his desk. It was found that the central section of the granite ball had bumped down the side of the tower, hopped off the roof, struck the grass and rolled down into a service driveway. It lay there in such a way as to block traffic.

The head of one of the eight eagles mounted on pedestals at equal distances about the rim of the tower was found 120 feet from the base.

A stretch of twenty-five feet of stone wall along the driveway to the shipping entrance was demolished when a part of the ball crashed down on it.

On the fifth floor roof, which covers the museum bindery, several holes were torn by pieces of rock. Drain pipes were ripped from the roof and two windows were broken.

"It's a miracle that no one was killed," said Dr. Sherwood. "Two cars had left the entrance where that two-ton piece of rock now lies only a few seconds before the crash. At this time of day that particular corner is usually crowded with workers going home, because the exit there is the nearest to elevated and subway lines."

Lightning Fires Hospital.

During the height of the storm lightning struck an electric pole bearing power cables that feed the elevator in the North Hudson Hospital, in Weehawken, N. J. The flames spread to the insulation on cables attached to the elevator itself, and, fanned by a heavy draught, spread through the shaft, mushrooming on all the upper floors.

Patients in the halls saw the flames through the gratings of the elevator shaft and ran to their wards, crying that the hospital was in flames. For more than an hour panic reigned.

Miss Helen O'Neill, Day Supervisor of theh ospital, mustered every available nurse. More than fifty were stationed at windows to prevent patients from leaping out, while thirty others organized a bucket brigade.

The hospital cook sent in a fire alarm. When the firemen arrived and tried to fight the blaze from the basement end of the shaft, the found that inadequate sewer basins had caused the water to bank up, and it was waist deep in the basement.

In the Women's Ward, in which there were thirty patients, several had become hysterical. Nurses were forced to remove the hysterical women to a room in the top floor.

In the men's ward conditions were little better. Nurses were unable to cope with the situation and called policemen to their assistance. The excitement was heightened by the arrival of three emergency cases. The firemen finally extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

Among the emergency cases arriving during the fire was Mrs. Elizabeth Crockett, 35, of 488 Park Avenue, Weehawken. Her clothing had been caught by the rear bumper of an automobile, dragging her nearly a block.

Lightning struck the coping of a five-story loft building at 1,954 Third Avenue, knocking bricks to the street. The police roped off the sidewalk as a precautionary measure.

Two Autoists Killed.

Two persons were killed on the White Horse Pike near Hammonton, N. J., when their automobiles skidded on the wet roadway during the storm and crashed into trees by the roadside. The dead were Mrs. Clara Barnett, 50 years old, of 710 South Fifth Street, Camden, and a man believed to have been Marius Johansen of 1,426 Master Street, Philadelphia. The two accidents occurred about two miles from each other.

Mrs. Barnett was riding with her son, Dr. Frank T. Barnett of Camden, and two friends, Mrs. George Hart and Mrs. A. N. Bright, along the pike when the storm broke. The front wheels suddenly slipped off the concrete roadway and the car hit the trees. Mrs. Barnett was pinned underneath when the car turned over. The others escaped with bruises.

The man believed to have been Johansen was driving in a roadster toward Philadelphia, when his car, too, skidded and went off the road, pinning him against a tree. He was dead when found.

State police said that they found nearly fifty bottles of whisky in the Johansen car.

Papers in the man's pockets bore the name of Johansen and showed him to be a captain on the Billenbach line of steamers.

Hundreds of passengers on the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad went home late last night following a delay of 52 minutes caused by the storm. Sand and gravel, loosened by the storm carpeted the running rails on both eastbound and westbound tracks between the 100-foot embankment in the same manner as the storm of a week ago carpeted the tracks at Rockport where a Lackawanna flyer was wrecked. The first train stopped on the edge of the washout at 5:15 and was unable to move until the tracks were cleared an hour later.

In West Orange lightning blew out a fuse in the fire alarm system and stopped the town clock atop the First Presbyterian Church.

Lightning struck the house of Stanley Ankowski at 574 Christopher Street, Orange, and started a fire in the cellar. The flames were soon extinguished. The barn of the A. M. Mathews Lumber Company at 532 Freeman Street, Orange, was struck and set afire. The blaze was put out with little damage.

Thirty-five passengers in a Newark-Ampere Public Service bus, marooned in seven feet of water in a depression in the roadway under the Lackawanna Railroad Bridge at Fourth Avenue and Fifteenth Street, East Orange, were rescued by firemen. The passengers, many of them women and children, were taken out on twenty-five foot ladders stretched from the bus windows to the sidewalk.

Lieutenant Frank Underwood of Truck 4, East Orange, and an ambulance with nurses and doctors from the East Orange Memorial Hospital responded to calls for aid. None was sent to the hospital.

Par 72.

PRESTWICK, Scotland, June 25 (AP).—Two Americans, Macdonald Smith and Jim Barnes, were in the lead for the British open golf championship tonight with half of the seventy-two-hole struggle behind them. Both set new records for the famous Prestwick course today, Barnes bringing it down two strokes with a stirring round of 70 in the morning and Smith reducing it still further with a dazzling 69 in the afternoon.

Having done 76 in his forenoon tramp over the fairways, dunes and greens that look out from Ayrshire upon the sea, Smith ended the day with a total of 145. Barnes followed up his 70 with 77 for a total of 147, which put him in second place.

Only a dozen of the British golfers who set out this morning with the hope of winning their own championship back from the Americans, who have held it for three years out of the last four, were within striking distance of Smith and Barnes tonight.

Half a dozen strokes, however, separate Smith from even the first of his British rivals, Arthur Compton of North Manchester, with an aggregate of 151. One more stroke down the line, Tom Fernie, S. Wingate and W. H. Davies are tied for fourth place with 152. Those who took 153 for the thirty-six holes are J. H. Taylor, Abe Mitchell, Ted Ray and George Murdock of Troon. George Duncan, who each year many patriotic Scots like to think will win the trophy, finished his day's labors eleven strokes behind Smith.

Average Play Below Standard.

Except for the remarkable rounds made by Smith and Barnes, the day's golf produced little that was brilliant, and a vast amount of bad golf, considering the reputation of the competitors. In the first round less than half the professionals broke 80, and the afternoon scoring was not even quite so good, taking the field as a whole.

The links were hard and so fast that most of the competitors devoted a great deal of time to complaining about their luck. A warm sun beat down all day and there was sufficient wind off sea to compel the golfers to take it into account when making their shots.

The galleries were immense. Prestwick living up to its reputation of drawing the largest crowds of any golf course in the world. Thousands of those who tramped from hole to hope stayed close to the heels of the three entrants from overseas—Smith, Barnes and Joe Kirkwood. At times the galleries that followed Barnes, who was paired with Alex Herd, numbered 8,000.

Most of Kirkwood's admirers deserted him after his morning round of 83, and he justified their wandering elsewhere by doing little better in the afternoon, when he took 78—a total of 162. He seemed incapable of keeping either his drives or second shots straight, and so was out of the running, since a good many other players kept fairly well to the narrow, but seldom straight, fairways.

Those who watched Smith and Barnes were rewarded by witnessing by far the best golf the first day of the championship brought out. Smith's second round, like a similar record round of 69 which he made two years ago in the championship at Troon, was an exhibition of exquisite putting which produced birdies when it was not producing pars, as for the most part his driving was long and straight and his second shots hit true to the line for proper distance.

Like all the rest, however, even his well-aimed and well-hit approaches were not always rewarded by resting places on the greens, for all the greens were so keen and tricky that many balls trickled away into the bunkers and high grass. But Smith, and Barnes too, usually recovered well, and that could not be said of a host of native players, whose business is supposed to be to keep their championship cups beyond the grip of foreign fingers.

Smith Gets an Eagle.

Smith, in the afternoon round that took the leadership away from Barnes got birdies on four holes and an eagle 3 on the par 5 twelfth hole, which measures 503 yards. He was on the green in two and sank a twenty-foot putt for a 3.

In that record round Smith was out in par 35 and home in 34, three strokes under par. But par at Prestwick has never been considered merely perfect golf. Until recently it was looked upon as impossible to accomplish, as no one had ever done so. Then, a few weeks ago, in the Ayrshire championship, MacDowall of Prestwick got a par 72 that stood as a record for the course until the two Americans got going for the day and dropped well under the par figures.

Smith was down with one putt on seven of the eighteen greens, and two putts were his limit on the others.

After starting with a couple of pars, Smith sank a four-yard putt for a birdie 4 at the famous Cardinal hole. He dropped short at the short fifth and ninth holes, overrunning both greens. At the tenth, eleventh and twelfth he sank long putts.

Coming to the home hole he drove into a bunker far off the line of play and 100 yards from the green. His next took him out and to the edge of the green, from where he chipped dead with his putter.

Smith putted irregularly in the morning and he took two 6s because of sliced drives. However, birdies at the sixteenth and seventeenth enabled him to pick up some lost strokes.

With Barnes it was the same story of excellent play, particularly in the morning round, and he played well in the afternoon also, though at spots luck seemed to be against him. Some of his putts lipped the cup and rolled away and a few of his approaches skidded across the shaven parts of the turf, costing him another stroke.

Barnes had four birdies during the morning round. His second shot to the sixth hole was dead for a birdie 3. He put a stroke on the seventh, where he was bunkered, but picked it up with another birdie, a 3 at the 365-yard ninth where he sank a long putt.

Barnes was badly bunkered on the seventeenth and took four to reach the green. One putt of two yards gave him a five. He then drove the home green and got his fourth birdie on the last hole.

After starting well, Kirkwood began slumping at the long third, where he sliced a brassie and pulled an iron shot into the bunker. A faulty second shot gave him another six at the eighth. He took three putts on the ninth for a five there. At the tenth he dubbed both his drive and second shot and then merely chipped cautiously on the fairway, needing a long brassie for his fourth shot to get to the green, thus taking another six.

Fails to Hold to the Line.

At the thirteenth his approach was short and then he took three putts for another six. At the fifteenth he pulled both his drives and the second went into the rough. For the remainder of the course his golf was none too good, his main difficulty seeming to be inability to hold to the true pinward line.

A great many of the Britons who were counted upon to be among those most likely to win the cup back from America fizzled out completely, among them the three Whitcombe's, all the amateurs also did badly. Robert Harris, who holds the title of amateur champion, started with a sound 75, then spoiled it with 81 in the afternoon. Cyril Tolley, former amateur champion, did even worse.

Among the other scores for the thirty-six holes were: John Smith of Wentworth, 153; Frank Ball of Langley Park, 154; Alexander Herd, 154; Arthur Havers, 157; J. L. Cruickshank, 158, and Harry Vardon, 159.

12,000 GET OUT OF CONTROL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 25.—Some extraordinary scenes were witnessed on the Prestwick course. About 12,000 spectators got beyond control of the police and stewards. There were perambulators on the fairways and family picnics in the bunkers.

Small boys chased flying balls and on one green as a player was about to putt a dog dashed forward, seized the ball and scampered off with the police in full cry. The same dog earlier in the day tried to capture Jim Barnes's ball, but did not like the looks of Barnes's uplifted club and discreetly retired.

One golfing correspondent in describing the unsatisfactory conditions under which the golfers were playing writes:

"The links presented an amazing spectacle. About 12,000 people wandered over it at will. Heedless of flying balls and giving little thought to the players, they raced after the balls as soon as they were struck, and neither the stewards nor the policemen could restrain their ardor.

"There were many well justified complaints by men who had been thoughtlessly impeded. Children played and women pushed prams along the fairways, and parties, as if it were a great picnic, sat about eating their luncheon either on the sand hills or sides of the bunkers. The wonder was that there was not work for the ambulance men who were stationed at different parts with stretchers."

DONOFRIO CAPTURES CITY LINKS TITLE

Domonick Donofrio, a telegraph lineman when he isn't playing golf, won the city public links championship at Pelham Bay Park yesterday by defeating Rudolph Rothenberg, a high school star, 8 and 7, in the thirty-six hole final round. Donofrio was 5 up at the end of the morning round, and equaled the par of the course for the first nine holes in the afternoon.

Rothenberg started out strong, winning the first hole of the match with a birdie 3 and taking the fourth hole, 3 to 4. But in the next seven holes Donofrio turned on a winning spurt that brooked no interference. While the spell was on he had six birdies in seven holes. He started with a birdie 3 at the sixth, followed that with another at the seventh to square the match, and then took the lead with a birdie 4 at the eighth. His next three holes were 3, 5, 4, and from there on Rothenberg won only two holes.

OTHER STARS ARE DIMMED

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 25.—A fog that for denseness would have captured a blue ribbon at either the London or Newfoundland shows tried its level best to wreck the intercollegiate golf championship at the Montclair Golf Club today. That it failed in its sinister motive was due largely to the fact that the field in the 1925 event was the most brilliant in history and, even though there was a shower of fallen stars, the survivors for the semi-final round tomorrow are eight of the leading college golfers in the country.

Among the fatalities at the end of the first round today, played in a fog that completely shut off the view of flags thirty yards distant and that made the finding of driven balls largely a matter of luck, was Dexter Cummings of Yale, twice winner of the intercollegiate crown and a shareholder of the medal in this year. Lauren Upson, standard-bearer of intercollegiate golf in California, put an end to the reign of Cummings by defeating the Eli star by two holes.

The fall of Cummings, the king of intercollegiate golf since 1923, was the most spectacular for that reason, but it was not the only one. There were others, several of them, and concerned were a number of men who were not expected to be among the missing at this early stage of the proceedings.

There was J. J. Mapes of Harvard, for example, a semi-finalist last year and the golfer who finished sixth in the metropolitan open last year. The one amateur attended to Mapes was Comstock from St. John's College, Brooklyn, Mark Stuart. No one paid much attention to Stuart in the qualifying round yesterday and today Mapes didn't concentrate on him until it was too late, the match ending 4 and 3.

Comstock Loses on Nineteenth.

One other leading candidate was dropped in the person of Henry W. Comstock of Williams, who expired on the nineteenth green before the par 4 of his opponent, C. W. Proctor of Dartmouth. Two near fatalities happened to two other stars, G. F. Lamprecht of Tulane and Eddie Held of Washington University. The Southerner had to go nineteen holes before he was able to shake off the Westchester Hills junior star. George Brush, now playing for Dartmouth, while Held had to travel the same distance before he was able to say good-bye to E. F. O'Brien of Holy Cross.

Some noted heads were lopped off in the afternoon session when the fog lifted and the rain came. One was that of George Baugh of Princeton, who had snuffed out the hopes of little Bobby Baugh of the University of Alabama. Another was that of Upson, the California star and the Pacific Coast intercollegiate champion, one of the comers from the Chicago district, lost a closely-fought match to E. P. Stratton of Williams, the end coming at the home hole, and Upson was conquered by Burton Mudge, Jr. of Princeton, 3 and 2.

The survivors then for the third round tomorrow morning are Stratton, Frank E. Wattles Jr., A. J. Westland of the University of Washington, Held, Mudge, Lamprecht, Stephen Berrien of Wesleyan and W. O. Blaney of Williams. With eight such brilliant shot-makers still in the running a continuance of today's fireworks is assured tomorrow morning, especially in the matches between Westland and Held and Mudge and Lamprecht.

Too many traps, a tendency to stray too many times off the fairway and the failure of his putter to function properly brought about the downfall of Cummings. The Eli leader in the four medal-play rounds had been saving himself by sensational recovering and putting. Today his putter was of no great help. Dexter took the lead by winning the second hole, 4 to 5, when Upson drove into the rough, but he lost it two holes later by taking three putts and never afterward was he in the lead.

Upson 1 Up at Fifth.

Upson became 1 up at the fifth, which he won with a 3 when Cummings drove into the rough off the tee. Upson was 1 up at the turn and he managed to hold the lead until the fifteenth hole, where Cummings drew level. There Upson dubbed his second shot and after overrunning the green finally picked up when he had played six strokes and was not on the shaved surface.

Going to the seventeenth Cummings topped a shot and lost the hole, 5 to 4, leaving him one down and two to play. Upson then clinched the match by reaching the seventeenth green in two fine shots, while Cummings put his second into a trap.

The cards:

Upson ..... 4 5 4 4 3 5 4 5 5—39
Cummings ..... 4 4 4 5 4 5 4 5 5—40

In losing out to Stuart, Mapes undoubtedly underestimated his rival who yesterday, due to a sprained shoulder, had a hard time passing the qualifying test. Last night, however, he visited a masseur and there was little to be found wrong with his swing today. In spite of a 6 at the first hole, where he hit a drive off into the fog, he turned in a 74, which was not to be sneered at by anybody. He was 1 up at the turn and then took the tenth when Mapes made a feeble chip to the green. He lost the eleventh by driving into the woods, but got back his two-hole lead by taking the twelfth, 3 to 4, Mapes failing to reach the green on his second. He sank Mapes's hopes by holding a twenty-five-foot putt on the rolling fourteenth green for a 3, and the end came on the fifteenth, where Mapes hooked into the rough.

Proctor and Comstock had a ding-dong battle before the Princeton golfer won on the extra hole, where Comstock drove into a water hazard and didn't quite get home with his next and finally missed a ten-foot putt for a half. Comstock was 1 up playing to the home hole. There, however, he lost a ball in the fog and Proctor got a par 4 to square the match.

Held was lucky in the first-round match against O'Brien. After taking the first hole, 4 to 5, O'Brien lost three in a row, commencing at the fifth, and he didn't succeed in squaring until the seventeenth. Playing the extra hole, O'Brien pitched his second shot to the right of the green, but was just as well off as was Held, who had pushed his tee shot into a trap and pitched short. The Middle Westerner, however, ran his third up dead, while the Holy Cross man left himself a putt and then missed. The Hackl-Baugh match was all square to the seventeenth, which the former won with a Baugh overplaying the green and taking a 6. On the last hole Hackl was home in two, while Baugh required one more.

The two matches that held the centre of the stage in the afternoon were those comprising Taft and Held and Mudge and Upson and when they were finished all of last year's semi-finalists had expired, Taft and Upson being the two to join Cummings and Mapes.

As far as the tenth hole there was every indication that Taft, not Held, would be the victor. Up to that point every hole except two had been halved. But from there on Taft wavered, using judgment that was none too sound in a few instances. He gave Held an opening at the eleventh which he took advantage of and reduced the deficit to one hole. Held drew level by winning the twelfth where Taft tried to run his ball up the bank and sent it into a trap instead. Held then won the fourteenth, Taft losing a ball, and the sixteenth when Taft chipped feebly.

Taft ..... 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 5—37

Upson took the lead against Mudge by winning the fifth hole, but the Tiger captain was 1 up at the turn. He became 2 up by taking the eleventh when the Californian chipped short and after two halves Mudge won the fourteenth and fifteenth to clinch the match.

Taylor Holes Drive in One; Caddie Gets Whisky Reward

PRESTWICK, Scotland, June 25 (AP).—The veteran J. H. Taylor, five times winner of the British open, holed his drive to the short second this afternoon. The hole measures only 118 yards, and Taylor dropped a mashie shot on the green, the ball running straight for the cup, into which it disappeared. This is the first hole in one in an open championship since the tournament at Sandwich in 1922. This was the tenth time in his long career that Taylor has experienced the thrill of making a hole in one. His caddie, in accordance with the old Scottish custom, will have a bottle of whisky to take home tonight.

Play in Intercollegiate Tourney Postponed Because of Rain.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25.—Playing for several minutes amid thunder, rain and lightning, the contestants in the national intercollegiate tennis tournament at the Merion Cricket Club were finally forced to seek shelter when the rain became incessant. Four matches in doubles were halted before a set could be finished. After waiting several minutes, the officials declared the activities for the day at an end.

KING AND QUEEN ATTEND

LONDON, June 25.—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen defeated Miss Elizabeth Ryan this afternoon in the Wimbledon championship meeting, 6—2, 6—0. It was a much easier victory than she won last year over the Californian and another proof of the enormous value her reputation of invincibility is to her. Miss Ryan won the first two games and made a heroic struggle in the third, but after that she fell off and lost twelve games in succession.

The setting was worthy of the contest between the two great women players. The line formed outside of the grounds at 7 o'clock this morning, seven hours before the tournament opened. Every inch of the great stadium was packed and the game was held up a quarter of an hour to permit the King and Queen to arrive. Lord Balfour, Lady Oxford, the Grand Duke Michael and the Japanese Ambassador were among the notables in the committee box.

Astonishing sums were paid by enthusiastic lawn tennis fans to witness the Ryan-Lenglen contest. As much as £15 was offered for a single seat.

Miss Ryan had been warming up on another court outside and began attacking vigorously as the match started. She was a choppy-step to the baseline, and though overhitting, which in the end went far to undo her, it was evident too that she got neatly out of some tight corners by beautiful lobs. Even at this stage of the game, when Miss Ryan was winning, she gave impression of never leaving the centre court, but just returning shots where it was most difficult for her to reach them. Still she did get them and with two sharply chopped balls won the first game after it had gone to four deuces.

Miss Ryan Begins to Falter.

By some smart volleying at the net and deep, accurate baseline drives, Miss Ryan took the next and then she began to make errors. She made a double fault beginning the third game and found herself being enticed by the incomparable Lenglen into one difficult situation after another. The game went to the champion and Miss Ryan seemed to realise her moment of triumph was over. She tried coming to the net volleying; she put a deep cut on drives which still went to the baseline; she resorted to lobs to keep Lenglen in back court, but in spite of every device Mlle. Lenglen kept her running about the court while she herself seemed always to be waiting for the ball.

The result was that Miss Ryan got rattled. She began to make errors. She served double faults, she netted returns. She kept sending her drives out. Mlle. Lenglen played with almost mechanical perfection. Relying nearly entirely on baseline drives and only occasional smashes from the net, she won the next twelve games and in most of them lost only a single point.

John Hennessey and Ray Casey won two victories for America, and Hennessey's was especially notable. He was really ill but played five hard sets with Crole Rees and won them after being in evident pain at the end of the second. Crole Rees has been playing in fine form this year but Hennessey declined to give him many opportunities. The long fight was played from the baseline and rally succeeded rally for nearly two hours.

Crowd Admires Hennessey.

Hennessey, with his curious low drive, got excellent length and would have won mores easily if his indisposition had not spoiled his accuracy. He was taking far more out of himself than Rees and his fine sporting spirit impressed the crowd. The score was 8—6, 2—6, 3—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Roy Casey's victory was over C. E. Van Braun of Sweden in three sets of 6—3 each. His speedy service won him dozens of points, but he lost some of his advantage by overhitting in his latter stages of play. However, the match was never in final doubt, and there will probably be a great deal more interest in his match tomorrow with that very versatile young Frenchman Rene Lacoste, runner-up in last year's championship.

L. E. Dalley of Princeton ran Jean Borotra to vantage set before going down gloriously, 1—2, 6—4, 7—5. Borotra, once sure he could win at any time, played easily.

L. E. Williams suffered defeat at the hands of Colonel R. G. Mayes, 6—4, 6—3, 6—3. Charles S. Garland never had much chance against J. B. Gilbert, though he only lost the first set 8—6. The other two were 6—1 each. L. B. Rice of Boston lost to Jacques Brugnon of France, 6—1, 6—4, 6—1.

Favorites Have It Easy.

LONDON, June 25 (AP).—There were no great upsets in the all England tennis play at Wimbledon in the matches that did not engage Americans. The favorites generally moved into the next frames, but they did not always find the road easy. There were one or two fairly close calls. J. O. Anderton, the Australian star, found in P. D. B. Spence, the South African, a man who called for no quarter and fought him cleverly to the end, yielding only to the Australian's greater knowledge and more experienced stroking. The scores in this match were 6—3, 8—10, 7—5, 6—3.

Lycett, Anderson's old doubles partner, gave Rene Lacoste, the French player, some warm moments before Lacoste's brilliant play wore him down. Lacoste's victory was achieved 6—3, 4—6, 7—5.

The only surprise of the day was the defeat of Baron de Morpurgo the hard-hitting Italian, by G. R. Sherwell, a South African, who previously had been known more because of the fact that he was a member of a famous cricket family than for tennis tournament ability. Five sets were required to decide this contest, the final score reading 1—6, 6—2, 7—5, 5—7, 6—3.

In the next round Ray Casey will meet Lacoste, who in the opinion of a majority of the English experts will be victorious. John Hennessey will have as an opponent F. G. Lowe, the veteran Davis Cup and Olympic Games player; Borotra will play Gilbert and Anderson will meet Brugnon.

Yankees Shut Out by the Senators; Giants and Robins Idle

YANKS ARE BLANKED BY COVELESKIE, 1-0

PENNOCK YIELDS ONLY FIVE

But Passed Ball Paves Way for Run That Gives Washington Odd Game of Series.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Throttled down to a full stop by the pitching of the superannuated Stanley Coveleskie, the Yankees deposited another game in the winning column of the Washington Senators today. This was accomplished to the tune of 1 to 0, which is so incredible a score these days that the suspicion of the general public may well be directed toward this neck of the woods.

Without wishing to overtax the credulity, it should be stated that Coveleskie allowed only four hits, no two of which came in pairs. Furthermore, he permitted only one Yank to reach third base, fanned five of the hostiles and otherwise was brisk and businesslike.

The New York pitcher, Mr. Herbert Pennock, who devotes his winters to improving the breed of silver foxes, deserves pity rather than scorn. He permitted only five hits. The sole difference between him and Coveleskie was that Wally Schang committed a disastrous passed ball, whereas the Washington catcher, Muddy Ruel, glued himself firmly to everything coming his way.

Coveleskie is the pitcher who was released by the Indians on the ground of approaching old age. If this is true, then Miller Huggins should go out and get Joe McGinnity and Jack Cheadbe.

Coveleskie is not yet a sexagenarian, nor is he a stripling youth. He is mid-Victorian and old-fashioned enough still to pitch a 1-0 game occasionally, but he is yet at the ripe old age of 40 or so.

Rain Hampers Coveleski.

As a spitballer the Pole was handicapped by the fact that it rained before the game and every ball was a moist one. But he struggled along manfully under this burden and turned the Yanks back as fast as they bobbed up. There wasn't a semblance of trouble until the seventh when, with runners on second and third and two out, he coaxed Pennock into an easy fly.

The Yanks played three games here and won all but two. While not a bad showing, it failed to arouse any hilarity among the Hugmen as they left town tonight.

Pennock fanned McNeely, which is no way for a superstitious pitcher to start a game. Then trouble almost engulfed Herbert. Stan Harris singled to centre and Nurmied to third, while Rice's easy grouncer clattered off Gehrig's generously proportioned feet. Pennock was so shocked that he belted Goslin in the shoulder, jamming the sacks with Senators. But Wanninger snapped up Joe Harris's grounder and launched a double play which erased the side.

The second round saw the only score of the matinee. An innocent-looking base on balls was Pennock's undoing. Bluege, the beneficiary, streaked to second on a passed ball, was sacrificed to third by Peck and scored when Ruel's grounder got away from Ward for a hit. Coveleskie's liner to Gehrig resulted in another double play.

Yanks Miss Big Chance.

The Yanks had enough runs to win within scoring range in the seventh, but Coveleskie deceived them out of the big opportunity. Gehrig, leading off with a single, hurried to second on Schang's sacrifice. After Ward's walk, he and Gehrig advanced on Wanninger's out. Huggins disdained a pinch hitter for Pennock, and Herb rocketed one to Goslin.

PHILADELPHIA, June 25 (AP).—The Athletics made a clean sweep of the three-game series with the Boston Red Sox by taking today's final game, 3 to 2. Rain halted the game for forty minutes during the Boston turn at the bat in the fifth inning.

Flagstead hit a home run in the sixth inning with no one on, giving the Red Sox a 2—0 lead, but the Mackmen clinched the game in the home half of the sixth with a three-run rally.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—A cloudburst an hour before the game did not discourage the Washington club. The rubber tarpaulins were spread over the infield and pretty soon the rain stopped, as exclusively predicted by Clark Griffith.

However, covers were laid for only 2,000 paying guests, which is a small number anywhere but in a subway car.

The game was held up fifteen minutes while workmen swept the outfield with brooms. A unique condition prevailed in the outskirts. Hard-hit ground balls skipped along until they struck a submerged lake, when they stopped suddenly.

Skipper Huggins went to the bridge of his vessel and took command. He chattered from the coaching lines every inning and kept the Yanks on tip toes.

No fancier catch is seen in a lifetime than McNeely's in the fourth. With Meusel tearing for home, Mac turned tail for the bleachers, whirled around, leaped high, bumped the concrete and speared Gehrig's smash in his glove.

In the early evening the Yanks took a train to Boston to start a five-game series Saturday. The Yanks can take a train or leave it alone, but at any rate there will be a double-header the first day. Ruth won't be in it.

GIANTS KEPT IDLE, LOSE MORE GROUND

Rain Stops Meeting With Robins and Pittsburgh Moves to Within Game of Leaders.

While rain halted the Giants-Robins game at the Polo Grounds yesterday, the Pirates defeated the St. Louis Cards and climbed to within a game of the league leaders. That is too close to be comfortable, but there is a suggestion of relief to New York in the fact that the Pirates and Reds will soon begin a hard, long battle with each other, which should benefit the Giants.

The morning floods left the Harlem baseball headquarters soft and swampy. Both the New York and Brooklyn clubs rejoiced at the postponement because the pitching staff of each organization needs a rest. The Giants' collection of flingers has been so thoroughly used up that of late more than one of the hurlers has gone in with a sore arm.

The recovery of Virgil Barnes's sprained ankle will help the Giants, for Zeke may be able to go to the mound today or Saturday. Jack Scott's knee is mending rapidly, and he too will be able to help out almost any day.

The maimed and the wounded of the Giants are rapidly reporting in fit condition and by the end of the week Manager McGraw may be able to present his full playing strength for the first time this year.

The Giants will have the better of the schedule during the next few days, for while they are playing Boston, Philadelphia and Brooklyn the Pirates and Cincinnati Reds will be engaged in bitter conflict. After the holiday bill on July 4 it should be pretty well established whether the Pittsburgh club can climb to the heights that Pirate supporters expect them to.

It is now pretty fairly certain that Manager McGraw is back on the bench to stay. His physician, Dr. W. J. Walsh, after his experience on the bench for the past two games, has given his approval for the leader of the Giants to do his daily studies in baseball strategy. In other words, Manager McGraw has recovered his strength to such a degree that it is perfectly safe for him to witness a good play or a bad one without becoming unduly excited.

H. J. GIELOW DEAD; DESIGNER OF YACHTS

Henry J. Gielow, noted designer for many years of racing yachts and power craft and head of the firm of H. J. Gielow & Co. of this city, died late Wednesday in Detroit, according to word received here yesterday by members of the firm. Mr. Gielow was in Detroit on a business trip, and his death was due to a heart attack, following an attack of acute indigestion.

Mr. Gielow, who was in his seventieth year, had been known for almost forty years as an expert designer of steam yachts and racing craft, among the latter the sloop Effort, which swept everything before her. Effort was built by Frank M. Smith in 1906 from Mr. Gielow's designs and was the winner of the first race for the King's Cup, donated that year by the late King Edward VII. The successful six-meter yacht Lea was from Gielow's designs and he had created other fast-sailing yachts.

Born at Manitowoc, Wis., in 1855, Mr. Gielow received a training in engineering schools and later entered the Engineers Corps of the United States Army and remained in that service thirteen years. While with the army engineers he built the Muscle Shoals Canal and also designed several land and water dredges that were an improvement on the machinery used up to that time.

In 1886 he resigned from the Engineers Corps and devoted himself to the designing of yachts. He soon became one of the foremost naval architects of the country. Among his larger yachts was the Hauoli for F. M. Smith, a very fast vessel. He also drew the plans for Cristina, owned by Frederick C. Fletcher; the Sialia for Henry Ford and Nokomis and Delphine for Horace E. Dodge, all large steam yachts. He was one of the first to use gasoline and Diesel engines in large yachts. Among the first of these were Pastime, Cristina II. and Pawnee.

Announcement of the funeral arrangements will be made later.

OLD-TIME BOXER DIES.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 25 (AP).—Dan Dwyer, nearly 82 years old, former sparring partner of John L. Sullivan, died in a hospital here today after several months of ill health. His connection with John L. began in 1878, when he boxed a four-round draw with Sullivan and from that time for about forty years, with short intervals, he was a partner of the great champion.

Dwyer contracted a cold last Fall while acting as a watchman at the Eastern States Exposition grounds and this developed into the illness that caused his death. He was a veteran of the Civil War. He had for a long time made his home at the Cooley Hotel here.

RAIN KEEPS ATHLETES IDLE.

Only Few Harvard Trackmen Drill for Oxford-Cambridge Meet.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass, June 25 (AP).—A heavy rain today interfered with the first formal workout of the combined Harvard and Yale track teams in preparation for their meet with Oxford and Cambridge at Harvard Stadium July 11. The Yale athletes remained at their quarters in the New Ocean House, Swampscott, and five Harvard men who braved the elements were content with brief practice. The two shot putters, Captain Henry Dunker and John Potter, worked under the stadium, sheltered from the rain.

ST. LOUIS, June 25.—Leo Dickerman lost control in the seventh and the St. Louis Cardinals were defeated by the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 4 to 3. Dickerman in the fatal seventh issued two passes with the bases filled, thus forcing in two runs. The Pirates took three of the four games in the series.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Edith Cavell, bay daughter of Man o' War and The Nurse and a full sister to the speedy Florence Nightingale, was an easy winner of the Astoria Stakes for two-year-old fillies over the five-furlong course at Aqueduct yesterday afternoon, beating seven other smart misses and running the distance in 0:59 2-5, good time under the track conditions. Pony McAtee had the mount and the race was worth $4,875 to the winner's owner, Walter M. Jeffords. Edith Cavell was third choice, closing at 3 to 1.

The track had died out surprisingly after the rain and was in good condition, although far from being fast. The weather was sultry and threatening, but fortunately the new storm did not break until the last of the racing crowds were on the special trains and well on their way to New York.

Eight of the best of the two-year-old missed accepted the issue in the twenty-second running of the Astoria, which was established in 1902 at Gravesend, out of a total of 122 nominations. The only scratches were W. J. Salmon's Martha P. Washington and H. P. Whitney's Hegira. R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Ethereal, winner of her last two starts, was the public choice, closing at 9 to 5, with J. E. Widener's Ruthenia next in favor at 11 to 2.

Edith Cavell had the advantage of the post position on the rail, Ruthenia being at No. 4 and Ethereal at No. 6. Edith Cavell broke well and Ethereal did not and that was the story of the race. McAtee was able to get his mount out in front and clear of interference and keep her there. Ethereal was a bit slow in getting under way. She made up a lot of ground after turning the elbow and was running on at the end, but Edith Cavell had a length and a half on her at the finish.

Hayi Is Good Third.

The Lilas Stable's Hayi, which was starting for the second time since coming up from Miami, ran a good race, to finish three lengths back, to take third money from the Flamingo Farm's Silver Finn. Ruthenia showed a bit of early speed and then quit despite Sande's best efforts. At the end he eased up when she was well beaten to finish fifth.

Another favorite went down when the Sanford Stud Farm's three-year-old Tusculum was out of the money in the Erdenheim. Purse at a mile. Coltiletti got into close quarters around the turn and had to take back. After that he could recover only a portion of the lost ground.

The winner was Lee Rosenberg's four-year-old Sun Pal, with Barnes up and carrying top weight of 118 pounds. He was a 4-to-1 shot. From a slow beginning he closed fast and at the end was going away to win by half a length in a driving finish from A. J. Bedell's Vulcain Park. Sande had the leg up on J. E. Widener's three-year-old filly Franconia and had a rough journey, closing fast to take third money from George D. Widener's Felix.

The Raritan Stable's Huon gelding Rip was the best of half a dozen that went to the post for the two-mile journey of the Kings Highway Steeplechase. Haynes rated the four-year-old back of the pace for a turn of the field and went up when ready. He took command with ease and won galloping by three lengths from the Brookmeade Stable's Gravity II. The winner was the 4-to-5 favorite.

Meadow Maid, the four-year-old filly owned by Miss Marion Hollins, former American women's golf champion, made the early going, but tired toward the end and finished last. She is a fair jumper, but in her two previous starts at the United Hunts meeting she fell. W. Y. Dwyer's St. Lawrence, under top weight of 144 pounds, was ten lengths back to take the short end of the purse.

Thirteen platers ran in the first division of the claiming race for three-year-olds and upward, the winner being R. J. Strasner's Metrodore, which opened a long early lead, but was tiring at the end and lasted to win by only half a length from the 9-to-5 favorite, the Flamingo Farm's uncertain Poor Sport. The three-year-old gelding Crosswise was third.

Sande Wins a Race.

Earl Sande won the second division on C. Bergman's Ormondale gelding Carol by a superb finish. The gelding was ready to stop several times in the last furlong, but Sande gave him no rest, and in a final powerful drive lifted him over the line a winner over A. Lolacono's Galatia by a head. The winner was the 11-to-5 favorite. W. J. Both's Sun Audience was the early pacemaker, but weakened at the end and took third money, beaten a head for the place. It was one of the best finishes of the meeting and had the spectators on edge throughout.

SHADE TO DECLINE BOUT WITH WALKER

Challenger's Pilot to Protest Staging Battle Outside This State.

Dave Shade, California welterweight, who is regarded here as the foremost challenger of Champion Mickey Walker, will not go to California to fight Walker in their proposed ten-round bout to a decision on July 21. This statement was made yesterday by Leo P. Flynn, manager of Shade, who has just returned from the Coast. Dissatisfaction over the arrangements for the proposed bout was advanced by Flynn as his reason for deciding that he will not permit Shade to make the trip across country.

Flynn said he has not signed any articles calling for a bout between Walker and Shade in California and added emphatically that he will not. He plans to go before the State Athletic Commission this morning for a discussion of the bout which has been the subject of so much controversy and so many threatening situations.

"I would like to have a voice, even if only to be able to say something in the selection of the electrician for the ball park if I am to permit Shade to box Walker in the match ordered by the State Athletic Commission," said Flynn. "To be recognized as a party to the bout would be some consolation. But from appearances the only man it is necessary to consult is Jack Kearns, the new manager of Walker. Kearns has arranged everything. But he has arranged everything to suit only himself. I will not permit Shade to box Walker on the Coast with Kearns's referee selection in the ring, and I don't think the commission will compel me to go West when I explain my side of it.

"Another thing that does not meet with my approval is the money question for Shade," said Flynn. "Shade is entitled to the challenger's 12½ per cent., but his percentage of a fight in California won't amount to enough to cover expenses for the trip. I have a better proposition right here in my pocket now than any California offer could be.

"Walker has entered into an agreement to defend his title against Shade under reasonable conditions, and I intend to see if I cannot compel him to live up to a reasonable agreement. The commission has on file a blank set of articles to which I attached my signature for Shade and these articles call for Walker to defend his title against Shade in a bout in this State. I will see the commission tomorrow and at the same time I will get a copy of the articles Walker signed. Then I will proceed accordingly."

RAIN HALTS DEXTER BOUTS.

Show Postponed to Next Wednesday—Schlaiffer to Box Gans.

Rain caused a postponement of the ring battles scheduled for last night at the Dexter Stadium, Brooklyn, in aid of the Mary Immaculate Hospital of Brooklyn, until next Wednesday night. At the same time Matchmaker Joe Jacobs disclosed that he had rearranged the card, providing for a twelve-round bout, a ten-round semi-final, two six-round preliminaries and a four. Morris Schlaiffer, Omaha middleweight, will engage Italian Joe Gans of Brooklyn in the twelve-round feature. Midget Smith, Harlem bantamweight, and Charlie Goodman, east side lad, will clash in the semi-final.

Amateur Heavies Clash Tonight.

Canarsie Boxing Show Postponed.

The boxing bouts scheduled for tonight at the Golden City Arena, Canarsie, yesterday were postponed because of the fact that the club has not yet obtained the approval of the Building Department to the plans for the arena.

Post and Paddock

John E. Madden disposed of three brood mares at Aqueduct yesterday for a total of $34,000. The Master of Hamburg Place sold Affection to Isidore—One I Love to Marshall Field 3d for $12,500, while Gifford A. Cochran paid a like amount for Broadcast by Ultimus—Round the World. The Canarsie Selling Stakes for two-year-olds at five furlongs with $2,000 in added money will be the stake feature at the Aqueduct course this afternoon. Eighteen are named overnight and as there are a number of winners in the lot it should be a hard-fought contest.

Despite the uncertainty as to what track conditions might be, there were only twenty scratches yesterday, practically a fourth of the entries being withdrawn.

True Heart, a three-year-old chestnut filly by All Gold—Bonnie Carrie, dropped dead after working a half mile at the Jamaica track yesterday morning. She had worked in 0:52 flat, the stopping along. She was owned by D. Oppenheim and trained by W. Clancy.

Earl Sande made one of his most brilliant finishes to gain a head victory on Carol in the fifth race. As usual when he brings in a winner he was given a rousing reception on returning to the scales.

Part of the honors of the afternoon went to Reuben Fisher, the colored boy who landed the tiring Metrodore a winner in the third race. He is one of the best finishers of his weight and was loudly applauded when he came back to the stand.

Rip, winner of the Kings Highway Steeplechase, is the property of the Raritan Stable, which is made up of James Cox Brady, Kenneth B. Schley and Reeve Schley. They all live in the Essex County Hunt country of New Jersey and are prominent in hunting circles in that section.

John E. Madden lost his High Noon filly High Joy out of the first race by the claiming route. Sam Louis having dropped $4,000 into the pot.

SECURITY COMPACT LAUDED BY CECIL

GREY PRAISES BERLIN MOVE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 25.—Security and disarmament were the subject of speeches made at a League of Nations Union meeting held in London tonight under the presidency of Lord Cecil. A message was read from Prime Minister Baldwin wherein he declared that new habit of thought was required in Europe. "We may gradually succeed in creating conditions in which disarmament may became a practical proposition," he said, "but such achievement will lose value if the nations of Europe have not meanwhile acquired the will to disarm."

Lord Cecil said the nations of the world would never disarm unless they obtained security. The proposed security compact was a step in the right direction. It was a genuine effort to safeguard the peace of Europe and it was significant that the first condition laid down for its adoption was the entry of Germany into the League. If the compact went through it would make disarmament more practicable.

Lord Grey of Fallodon, who also spoke, urged Europe to do its utmost to establish a reign of law instead of the hazards of force. Another war would destroy European civilization past the possibility of recovery. He felt that when the Germans made the proposal of a security compact they were making an important and helpful contribution to the winning of peace.

If the negotiations broke down, what was the situation going to be? France would fall back on her old policy of a separate alliance with Poland, Czechoslovakia, &c., looking to keeping her own armaments up and German armaments down for her future security.

German policy would be to keep up a separate combination on her side against the French combination as a counterpoise and there would again be the same system of counterpoises and separate alliances which they had before the war and which would make another war certain.

Lord Grey said he would like the British Government to make a declaration to the world that there were only two things in future for which this country would undertake any obligations to fight. First was the defense of its own country if attacked and the other was for the covenant of the League and the principle and practice of arbitration.

British Stand Pleases French.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 25.—The French Foreign Office is thoroughly satisfied with the spirit and substance of the declaration made by Austen Chamberlain to the British Parliament yesterday relative to the security compact and the obligations involved in its execution on the part of the British and French Governments.

The clarity with which Mr. Chamberlain established that the compact as constructed with M. Briand had been carried out in all its aspects with the full knowledge and approval of the British Cabinet is especially gratifying to the French, who for a time feared that Mr. Chamberlain might not be able to down the charge of his adversaries that the Geneva accord had been concluded on his own personal responsibility.

As a result of Mr. Chamberlain's speech the French Government feels that England is behind it as never before and that the road is now clear for an effective solution of the whole problem of security if Germany can be induced to accept the compact.

The main section of the French press contends that acceptance of the compact by Germany has been facilitated by yesterday's proceedings in the British Parliament, the opposition to Mr. Chamberlain having been unable to develop an effective reaction against the Briand-Chamberlain accord on which the Reich Government had been banking.

Mr. Chamberlain's emphatic stand in favor of acceptance by Great Britain of all the obligations imposed on her by membership in the League of Nations is also heralded by the French press as a promise of cooperation in the future of the greatest importance.

AMERICANS SEE TEST OF NEW ANESTHETIC

Physicians Are Told in Paris That It Is Less Exhausting on the Heart and Digestive Organs.

PARIS, June 25 (AP).—The American doctors, on a visit to Paris, today saw a demonstration of a new general anesthetic, which has been found less exhausting on the heart and digestive organs of the patient and is declared to be free from the bad effects of ether and chloroform, such as nausea and depression.

The American practitioners witnessed the use of the anesthetic on a patient, followed by an operation, and they were allowed to examine the patient. They are of the opinion that this anesthetic might be found particularly valuable in obstetrical cases and bone surgery, where the patients at times are under teh influence of the anesthetic for a long period.

BARRIE TO WRITE A MOVIE.

Herbert Brenon Says He Promised an Original Screen Story.

Herbert Brenon, who directed the film version of "Peter Pan," announced yesterday through the offices of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation that Sir James Barrie had promised him on his recent visit abroad, after lengthy arguments, to write a screen story. Mr. Brenon had gone to London to talk over changes to be made in the film version of "A Kiss for Cinderella." It was while this discussion was being held that Sir James gave him the promise.

Mr. Brenon said that no author had ever given him the cooperation which he received from Sir James, and that few writers sensed what was needed in motion picture stories as quickly as the Scot, who was willing to change several important parts of "A Kiss for Cinderella" with a ruthlessness that would shock many a scenario writer.

NEW PRODUCING CONCERN.

Dowling & Anhalt, Inc., to Offer the Comedy 'A Man Among Women.'

The formation of a new producing corporation, to be known as Dowling & Anhalt, Inc., with offices at 227 West Forty-fifth Street, was announced yesterday. The firm's first production will be "A Man Among Women," a comedy by Daniel Carson Goodman and Alan Brooks, for which rehearsals will begin on Monday. Other offerings for next season include musical comedies by Eddie Dowling and B. E. Faulton and Bernard Hamblin.

MUSIC NOTES.

The date of the concert by the International Music Festival League at the Yankee Stadium, which was originally set for July 9, has been postponed to July 20 to permit the cooperation of the Boston Choral Society. Dr. Leslie Archer Hood, President of the league, has arranged a performance in the Auditorium, Ocean Grove, N. J., on Monday, July 13, by a section of the chorus. The concert at the Yankee Stadium on July 20 is to raise money to help defray the expenses of the American chorus of 500 which will sail for England about the middle of August.

Beginning next Sunday evening, Arthur Pryor's Luna Park Band will give sacred concerts between 8:30 and 9:30.

Jascha Heifetz returns to New York on the Leviathan next Monday. Mr. Heifetz gave one concert in London and two recitals in Paris.

The Goldman Band, under the direction of Edwin Franko Goldman, will give an all-Tchaikovsky program this evening in the grounds of New York University. GARMENT WITNESS DENIES RED CONTROL

Five witnesses were examined yesterday at the trial of the seventy-seven suspended officials of Locals 2, 9 and 22 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, which was held at the Yates Hotel in West Forty-third Street.

The witnesses, who are defendants, were asked whether they were members of the Workers' Party, whether they knew that the international union had adopted resolutions censuring the Communist press for its attacks on the organization and other questions designed to elicit a statement of their attitude toward the May Day meeting at the Metropolitan Opera House. At the meeting, held under the auspices of the three local unions, the Soviet Government was praised, the revolutionary "Internationale" was sung and speakers predicted a Soviet Government in the United States.

The examination took place behind closed doors. The defendant witnesses were A. Antinofsky, W. Blagman, J. Berlin, A. Block, L. Blum and A. Colow of Local No. 2. Berlin, it was said, admitted being a member of the Workers' Party. However, he defended himself by asserting that nothing he ever did was dictated by outside influence, presumably by the Trade Union Educational League, directed by W. Z. Foster.

Efforts to have the hearing open and before a committee and also for a record of the reply to the accusations failed.

The trial will continue at 9 A. M. today.

BOY, AIMING TOY GUN, SHOT BY POLICEMAN

Nicholas Selano, 15 years old, 24 Ledley Street, Elm Park, S. I., was released yesterday from the Psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital, where he had been under observation since June 7 on the commitment of Magistrate Croak at New Brighton, after Nicholas had been accused of nearly a dozen burglaries by persons who said they did not want to prosecute him.

Nicholas was discharged from the hospital as perfectly sane, and while he was there he had earned several dollars running errands. He left the hospital about 5 o'clock, and the police were told later, about 6 o'clock he appeared at the door of the saloon kept by John Pinco at 504 Morning Star Road, Elm Park, with a toy pistol in his hand.

"Hold up your hands," he shouted to Pinco and four customers.

Pinco's reply was to throw a bottle at the boy, who ran, followed by the four men, who cried "Stop, thief!"

Patrolman Bernard Kane, passing in a police runabout, saw the running boy and followed, firing once in the air to stop him.

Nicholas turned and pointed the toy pistol at the policeman, who, not knowing it was a toy pistol, fired directly at the boy.

He got medical attention at the Staten Island Children's Society in New Brighton, and today he will be arraigned again before Magistrate Croak for juvenile delinquency, but Pinco said he does not want to prosecute.

TO MORTGAGE PRESS CLUB.

Court Authorizes Security for $25,000 of New Bonds.

The New York Press Club obtained permission from Supreme Court Justice Tierney yesterday to mortgage its property at William and Spruce Streets for $25,000 a security for bonds payable in 1950, of which fifteen bonds at $1,000 each, ten at $500 each and fifty at $100 each are to be issued. The petition of the club through its President, Channing A. Leidy, states that the new mortgage will be subordinate to a prior one for $130,000, on which $124,000 is due.

The petition stated that the $25,000 is to be used in paying off $11,787 for taxes for the last two years, $3,720 interest and $6,000 for current accounts due, and that the remainder is to be devoted to remodeling the four upper floors of the building, now used as sleeping quarters, assembly and recreation rooms, in order to make offices similar to those on the ground floor, basement and second floor.

ANYTHING TO BEAT SMITH.

The Republican leaders in the Legislature at Albany must at least be credited with perfect frankness. They do not attempt to mask their attitude. It was clearly indicated yesterday by the head of the Westchester Park Commission, who favored the compromise accepted by the Governor, and who had come down to consult the Republican leader of his county. But he explained: "I don't think my seeing WARD will do any good, because the Republicans have made up their minds to kill the plan; that's all there is to it." All the Albany correspondents agree with this view. The Republicans suffered humiliation at the hands of Governor SMITH in the regular session of the Legislature—although this was mainly the fault of their own stupid leadership—and now propose to take their revenge. They are openly jubilant over having at last, as they think, "got AL SMITH beaten."

Does any one say parks to them? What are parks compared with a tactical party triumph! The Republicans do not hide their hope that they will be able not only to defeat Governor SMITH, but to break his prestige both up-State and in this city. They would evidently be pleased if he were to be so weakened that he could not prevent the renomination of Mayor HYLAN. One Albany correspondent says that a question frequently asked by the up-State Republican leaders of the newspaper men of this city is: "Don't you think if Mayor HYLAN is nominated it will be a terrible blow to SMITH and mean his finish?" They are ready to sacrifice the city as well as the State parks. For them the sole test of legislative wisdom is anything to beat SMITH.

THE GROWING SURPLUS.

In his address at Seattle on Wednesday Mr. JAMES A. FARRELL in discussing the general outlook for our foreign commerce gave as a final reason for confidence in the future the fact that "the whole world is growing." Certainly the revenues of the United States and the Treasury surplus keep on growing. The estimates for even the present fiscal year, which ends June 30, have had continually to be revised upward. Last December the 1925 surplus was placed by Secretary MELLON at a little less than $70,000,000. Later the figure was raised from time to time, until President COOLIDGE was able to announce before he left Washington that it will in the end prove to be nearer $200,000,000. At the same time the Treasury officials and the Director of the Bureau of the Budget gave out an estimate of the surplus a year from now, which they place at fully $300,000,000. This, it will be noted, is after allowing for the reduction of income taxes payable this year on the returns for 1924.

The existence of this great surplus does not lull the Administration into a feeling of complacency, or into bidding the country eat, drink and be merry. It is not acting on that fatuous saying of a would-be statesman of an earlier day: "A surplus is easier to handle than a deficit." A large surplus lays large and serious duties upon the Government. The public debt must be wisely reduced. That has been done by successive Secretaries of the Treasury, and Mr. MELLON has directed his financing to redemption of debt, to a virtual refunding of parts of it at a lower rate of interest, and to arranging the short-time and maturing obligations of the Government so that they will not be due for payment except at convenient periods. But the prime use of surplus funds is to cut down taxation proved needless by the very existence of a large surplus.

Treasury officials are already in consultation with members of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives in preparing a bill for the benefit of the taxpayers. While cuts are proposed all along the line, the surprising thing is that there seems to be general agreement now to lower the surtax to, at the most, 25 per cent. When one remembers the desperate opposition to bringing it down to the figure of 37.5 per cent., it is apparent that the demonstration is at last complete. Unreasonably high taxes result in unexpectedly low returns. Meanwhile they hamper business and increase the cost of living. These elementary lessons seem finally to have been learned even by the scholars in Washington.

THE NEW PLAN FOR ENFORCEMENT.

Senator DALE of Vermont had the support of the Anti-Saloon League in his campaign. Is he expressing its opinion in his strange objections to the Treasury plan, which will go into effect in August, for a reorganization of the prohibition enforcement system? That plan substitutes twenty-two districts, after the manner of Federal judicial districts, for the present division by States. It aims at simplification and efficiency, the removal of politics from the service, attack at the sources instead of dribiets, control of the supply of industrial alcohol to the satisfaction of legitimate business and to the prevention as far as possible of illegitimate uses. The present system, if it can be called one, has broken down. One would suppose that the new one would be allowed to have a fair trial. Instead, Mr. DALE condemns it in advance.

What does he mean by assuming that, when there are no more Federal State Directors, State enforcement laws will be on their way to innocuous desuetude; that States which have such laws will let their "concurrent power" go to sleep? "In my judgment," he says, "the Federal authorities have not really given serious consideration to the question of how the State officials will feel about the plan. I believe they will object to the idea of turning enforcement over largely to the Federal power and will show their resentment by refusing to cooperate in enforcement." So Federal State Directors are not only so much patronage, but they are the representatives of State rights. The argument is curious. A redistribution of the administrative agencies of prohibition neither adds to the Federal power nor affects the concurrent power of the State or the duty of State officials under State laws. Senator DALE is not complimentary to those officials in predicting that "resentment" will make them faithless to their duty.

If there is "resentment," it must be felt elsewhere and for different reasons. The professional prohibitionists still yearn for the larger scope and irresponsibility which the Cramton bill seeks to give the Prohibition Unit. Under the new arrangement Assistant Secretary ANDREWS will be the virtual head director and administrator. Commissioner HAYNES's authority will be shorn. Since, practically, his functions, as he exercises them, are rather didactic than administrative, his loss will not be great; but he is a sacred character; and the Anti-Saloon League seems to regard itself as the supreme prohibition enforcement director. It is said that Congress will be asked to inquire into the wicked designs of the Treasury. But the country is sick of the obstinate wrong-headedness of the prohibition saints. It will judge the project by results. The new plan will bring new blood, new methods, into a feeble and disorganized service; and Mr. ANDREWS has the brains, energy, judgment and administrative capacity not required of the favorites of the Anti-Saloon League or of the politicians.

COMMON SENSE ABOUT SECURITY.

It is RAMSAY MACDONALD'S opinion that Foreign Minister CHAMBERLAIN has been viewing the problem of European security through a telescope, whereas it is essential to study the situation through a microscope. The metaphor is not happy. A telescope may furnish a little perspective which will do no harm. Microscopical statesmanship can only lead to nervous paralysis. People who insisted on examining the water they drink and the food they eat under a high-power lens would soon give up drinking and eating. Microscopy in the matter of German reparations was only productive of unsettlement. A minute examination of every possible contingency in every proposed plan of reparations revealed so many impossibilities and so many perils that nothing was done. A beginning was not made until the Dawes experts came along and, discarding the telescope and the microscope, looked at the problem through the lenses of the normal human eye.

Common sense was brought into play by Mr. CHAMBERLAIN in his masterly exposition of the basic facts of the European security problem. Both Mr. MACDONALD and Mr. LLOYD GEORGE are under the apprehension that a British guarantee of the French frontier on the Rhine means carte blanche for France to go ahead and borrow trouble. To this Mr. CHAMBERLAIN had a twofold reply. He pointed out in detail that a war provoked by France or by her allies in Central Europe imposed no obligations upon Great Britain. Further than that, if France, proceeding legitimately, went to war with Germany in case of an attack by the latter upon Poland, and so became engaged on Germany's western frontier, Great Britain was not obligated under the proposed security pact. In the minds of MACDONALD and LLOYD GEORGE was, of course, the thought that responsibility for starting a war is often difficult to determine. French manoeuvres might bring on a war in which she was technically on the defensive, actually the aggressor. But that again is a plunge into microscopy. Against these highly remote hypotheses are to be set the real and immediate gains from establishing security for many years to come.

Mr. CHAMBERLAIN'S second reply drives to the heart of the problem. He is impatient with Englishmen who would have Great Britain retain full freedom of action in case of another European war when in fact there can be no such freedom of action. Gentlemen cry, No commitments. No commitments, when there are commitments. Mr. CHAMBERLAIN pointed out that Great Britain's membership in the League of Nations has already "entangled" her. But League or no League, the facts of life in Europe make isolation for Great Britain a "dream." Unless Great Britain abandons her historic resolve that the Belgian and French ports shall not be turned into a menace to herself, she is bound to regard Belgium and France as her advanced lines of defense. An adventurous France is always at liberty to exploit that British necessity. Without a British pledge of any kind France may plunge into war in the knowledge that Great Britain is bound to save her from the full consequences of possible defeat. Since Great Britain is thus in a sense committed to France, how much more rational to work together with France and exert the moderating influence of friendship, than to allow French ambition or French nerves to bring on a situation which can end only by forcing Great Britain's hand! That is the view implied in Mr. CHAMBERLAIN'S defense of the security pact. It is neither telescopy nor microscopy, but common sense.

THE DRAMA AND THE DOGS.

The waning of the dramatic season brings an unusual opportunity to the Jeremiahs of Broadway. More than ever the drama is going to the dogs. Of the pieces produced nearly 75 per cent. have been financial failures. What is the reason? "Managers no longer produce plays for their artistic or literary value, but for the moving picture rights. Ugliness, despair and obscenity have been rampant during the past season." In a soil so poisonous, optimism has much ado to strike root. Yet something may be made of the fact that three out of four of those ugly, obscene and despairing exhibitions wooed the public in vain. Like the hero of WILDE'S farce, their origin was a terminal. The only dogs they succeeded in reaching were those sad dogs, the critics.

Due credit has long been withheld from these faithful animals. At a recent dinner of the Critics' Circle in London, Lord DARLING, who is known as a humorist on the bench, revived that old, sour fling of COLERIDGE'S. Critics are people who have tried to be poets, novelists, playwrights and such, and have failed. "Therefore they are critics." Mr. A. B. WALKLEY, who answered for the circling scribes, might have quoted Dr. JOHNSON'S even more ancient retort that a man doesn't have to be a shoemaker to know when his shoe pinches. He might have noted that BERNARD SHAW began as a critic and, as he confesses, broke down mentally under the strain, thereby qualifying as a playwright. He might have added that WILLIAM ARCHER, rejected as a critic by the dull herd because of his high seriousness, took revenge by writing one of the most popular melodramas of his generation. But Mr. WALKLEY took it lying down. Like nature, he said, the drama has "immense variety and abandon—and an almost prodigal wastefulness." In London, as here, it seems, it has of late been given over almost wholly to the critical dogs. But Mr. WALKLEY finds that it is "always changing," and so, to the first-nighter, "always an adventure." What one chiefly feels about it is that "it is so jolly."

In our own past season, admittedly, the jollities for the public have been few. The Theatre Guild has lived up to its traditions in a splendid new house, and rejoices in having produced the Pulitzer Prize play. The Neighborhood Playhouse down in Grand Street has been equally fortunate in an artistic oddity from ancient India and a satire on contemporary Broadway. The classic revivals include two comedies of CONGREVE and the usual assortment of GILBERT and SULLIVAN. It may be set down as jolly that the vein of Hungarian drama has petered out—to the discomfiture of those who once incontinently lauded it, supposing it would never confront them over the footlights. As for the "ugliness, despair and obscenity" of our Jeremiah, the new Play Jury envisaged it and both survived. "What Price Glory" emerged, in fact, as a genre picture, a bit of Hogarthian realism, of very rare quality. Last but not least in merit, the critics have been jolly, too, especially in the act of devouring 75 per cent. of the season's offerings.

ENVIRONMENT AND CULTURE.

Dr. FREDERIK STANG, rector of the University at Oslo, Norway, who has been attending the celebration of the coming of the first Norwegian colony to America, is President of the Institute for Comparative Research in Human Culture, recently established in the Scandinavian countries, with its principal seat in Oslo. Such an institution for research, entirely independent of the university, yet cooperating with it, is another way of solving a difficulty referred to by Dean WOODBRIDGE in a recent address. Universities, being for teaching, are "unable to accord to the work of research that full and free scope which it demands." Lecturing and examining occupy so much of the time of the professors that they have little leisure left for independent studies. Most of the work of this nature has to be done in the long vacations. Moreover, the classification of branches of studies in the universities does not entirely harmonize with the requirements for research work. Some of the most valuable recent discoveries have been made on the borderland between chemistry and physics or between public and civil law.

It is characteristic of the people of the North, whose ancestors were out upon every coast in the venturous Viking days, that they should be venturing still, though along the shores of the realm of the intellect. The spirit of the "researcher" is a dominant one among their scholars and is in keeping with that of the searcher for the Pole. It has shown itself in the achievement of these Northmen in science. But through the comparative researches such as this institute has in prospect it is hoped that there will be a "great renascence of the humanistic studies."

This "sanctuary for international scholarship" is to be a place not only for intellectual cooperation but also for the study of the culture of all races and periods as a whole—for a dispassionate survey of humanity, outside of the prepossessions of one's own time, nationality and class. And the first task is one "specially suited to the Norwegian genius of research and the Norwegian disposition," being a study of the influence of natural environment upon the various tribes living around the North Polar Sea. There is foreshadowing of the discovery that mankind is a unit, but that the elasticity of the human family, its creativeness, its responsiveness to every influence of environment and its adaptability are astonishing. These studies will not bring forth their fruits in a season, but when they do they should be a real contribution to the advance in culture of that creature whom Dr. STANG calls "Nature's real chameleon"—man.

POLO IN AMERICA.

Much of the credit for the victory of the United States Army polo team in England should go to Major Louis A. BEARD. The Americans have now won the trophy twice. In 1923 the British Army team that came over to play on Long Island was rated as stronger than the little group of American officers who could ride well enough, but were short of practice in the fine points of the game. Nevertheless, the Americans beat the invaders rather handily. Major BEARD was one of the performers on the American side. It seemed fitting that he should assume the captainship. Knowing that the British would leave nothing undone to recover the trophy, Major BEARD made a tour of the American army posts to promote polo and develop new "talent." The United States Army Polo Association is growing rapidly in numbers. Many good players from West Point feed the reserve. Youngsters are doing great things in practice games. A carefully selected lot of players went into training at Mitchel Field last Fall, and during the Winter the scene was changed to Miami. The work was hard, but the army men thrived on it. Their improvement was marked before they sailed for England.

A team built round Major BEARD and Major WILSON could hardly fail to render a good account of itself. As often happens, the British played in better form in the second contest. In the first the Americans smothered them. But on Wednesday it was anybody's game. It must be admitted that the British more than once came dangerously near winning. The Americans were just a little better in stick work. There seemed to be little to choose between the speed and cleverness of the ponies. Perhaps our players will have a severer test on Saturday, when they meet the East Indian team in an exhibition game.

In civilian polo the Americans are making great strides. We promise to become a polo-playing nation, so widespread is interest in the game. In 1927 the British will try conclusions with us once more. Judged by recent tournaments, the odds will be against them. Many riding, country and polo clubs in every part of the United States can put teams into the field. The United States Polo Association is a power. It has organized nine circuits, and in each of them games are played to determine representation at the national championship tournament. Intercity tournaments are very popular. In indoor polo during the Winter the Middle West teams were a little too strong for visitors. The Eastern college polo association of nine teams, which includes West Point, V. M. I., Norwich and Pennsylvania Military Academy, has been doing fine work with the stick. Successively Yale, Princeton and Harvard (this year) have won the championship. With all America playing polo, the British should be hard put to it to win a championship at Meadow Brook. However, we must not be too confident. Men from the Argentine have given us a drubbing and will try to repeat it in the Autumn.

AN EXPLORER OF THE AMAZON.

WILLIAM CURTIS FARABEE has fallen a victim to his life-work. He chose the Indians of the Amazon jungles as his special study. Amassing as much information as was available in books and scientific reports, he made numerous voyages of exploration in the interior of South America in order to supplement his knowledge of tribal customs and languages. He discovered traces of a civilization that apparently antedated that of the Incas. He studied the languages and mythology of Amazonian tribes that had never before seen white men. He traced migrations of Indians from the northeast coast of South America across the Caribbean to Florida. As a result of his work the world's knowledge of the American Indians has been greatly extended, and the University of Pennsylvania, where for years he was curator of the American Section of the museum, is rich through the material which he brought back.

Yet his fate was that of nearly every white man who has penetrated into the interior jungles of South America. Despite all precautions to protect himself from insects, he caught a malignant fever. Like the late Colonel ROOSEVELT when he visited the same territory, he lost sixty pounds in a few months, and came out desperately ill. Colonel ROOSEVELT'S powers of recuperation were greater and he made a quicker recovery, but he never completely threw off the evil after-effects of his South American sickness. Dr. FARABEE was slow in recovering from his first severe attack—ten years ago—but no sooner was he well again than he returned to the jungle. When he came out in 1922 he was again at the point of death, and never regained his strength. Not even the forty transfusions of blood given him made it possible for him to fight off the peculiar form of anemia which followed the fever.

He knew the peril he faced in returning to the jungle for the last time. Already over 50 years of age, his powers of resistance had been weakened by former illness. But to him the call of the jungle was as the call of duty. There was work to be done—tribes to be studied, languages to be recorded, myths to be catalogued, civilizations to be understood. Convinced that the chief illness came from insects, he devised special protective nets in the hope of escaping infection. To a friend he once remarked that those who say that the insects never let up in South America are not altogether accurate—there was a fifteen-minute lull after the flies stopped in the evening before the mosquitos began, and in the same way there was a brief respite at dawn while the mosquitos were giving way to the flies. In the end Dr. FARABEE was defeated by the very wilderness which he sought to conquer. His devotion to science enabled him to leave behind much unedited material that should throw further light on the Indian history of the Americas.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

There Is Only One Logic.

One wonders just what was meant by Miss JOYCE WETHERED, the eminent English golf champion, when, in announcing her intention to cease tournament play for a while, she said that it was "for no reason that would appeal to the masculine mind."

This, viewed as to more than its surface alone, was an implication that women have and are guided by a logic unknown and unknowable to men. But that cannot be true. Logic is a form of mathematics and it is and must be the same for both sexes. Whatever Miss WETHERED'S reason for temporary retirement from the field that for her is one of glory, the masculine mind could see it for what it is and estimate its weight as well as she or any other woman. By refusing or failing to disclose it she excites the suspicion that, if revealed, it would excite masculine criticism of feminine judgment as to relative importances.

That is a point, and perhaps the only point at which a sex-based difference of valuation does sometimes manifest itself. Such a difference is easily defensible, but why not defend it instead of chattering about the powers of "feminine intuition"? Possibly the more frequent use of intuition by women—if it is more frequent—is explicable as a "protective mechanism" developed by the physically weaker sex. It is nothing to be proud of, but, on the other hand, it does not deserve reprehension or ridicule.

If Miss WETHERED wants to be kind, she will change her mind and tell the world just why it is that she has abandoned the links.

Why Don't They Stick to the Record?

It would be well if all Judges and Magistrates, except a few of more than average wisdom, would refrain, at least while on the bench, from indulgence in "obiter dicta." If those making such remarks were witnesses, counsel would object to statements of this sort as "irrelevant, incompetent and immaterial," but of course nobody dares address such a criticism to "the Court." Occasionally it would seem well deserved. Three times within the last few days occupants of the bench have said things which other people have regretted.

In one instance a Judge took occasion to declare that, though the liquor traffic now was illegal, it was not immoral. This was in effect to say that if the bootlegger can keep out of the clutches of the police—not a task that would have appalled Hercules—he is as moral as anybody. Perhaps the same Judge would say that there was nothing immoral in driving an automobile rapidly on the wrong side of the road, even though collisions and fatalities resulted. Yet traffic regulations prohibit acts which are merely "mala prohibita," and not "mala in se."

Another Judge disclosed the fact that his own daughter both gave and attended "cocktail parties," though, almost inevitably, nowadays, such parties are made possible only by deliberate and intentional breaking of the law.

A third ornament of the bench is reported to have refused to examine a little girl whose body showed that she had been brutally beaten. Parents had a right, he asserted, to beat their children—he did it himself. This modern Rhadamanthus apparently has not heard that parents who cannot maintain discipline over their children and inculcate morals and manners without resort to the lash or the club are held grossly incompetent by more enlightened fathers and mothers.

He Must Do More Than Refuse.

If President COOLIDGE were nothing but the experienced politician that he unquestionably is, it would be safe to assume that he is worried by the news that he soon will be asked to review a big parade of the Ku Klux Klan in Washington. The request will be backed by what mere politicians most fear—the power to control a "vote" well organized and of such size that its manipulators can exaggerate it without much danger of detection.

Fortunately, the President will doubtless have the sense to see that while there is a Ku Klux "vote," there are other "votes" of a very different sort to whose possessors the Klan is a detestable and even abhorrent thing.

That Mr. COOLIDGE will not review the Ku Klux Klan is certain; but to meet the expectations of his friends and of all who have due respect for his office, it will not be enough for him to say that his vacation plans and tasks will not permit him to be in Washington on the day of the parade. That is what the ordinary politician would feel bound to say, and the chances are that he would throw in a few perfunctory regrets for good measure.

The proper and right thing for President COOLIDGE to do, when he receives that invitation, is to add to a prompt and vigorous refusal several such characterizations of the Ku Kluxi Klan as would occur to any good American—characterizations which nobody could put in words more simple, lucid and convincing than those which he constantly has at his command.

Incidentally, he might add a line or two to the effect that to show sympathy and respect for an organization the only object of which is to prevent the light or profane use of sacred names is one thing, while quite different would it be to do the same for a society which, however commendable some of its avowed purposes may be, seeks to attain those and other ends in ways utterly wrong and subversive of the fundamental principles on which the American Government was founded.

A Curious Case of Silence.

Discoveries just made in an Algonkin graveyard up in New York's lake region are interpreted as showing that the Indians of long ago, or at least that particular tribe, indulged in cannibalism, either habitually or occasionally.

It is a curious and interesting fact that though many students and observers of our Indians in days not at all remote came across traces of cannibalism among them, there has been a sort of "conspiracy of silence" on the subject. PARKMAN does offer a few passing references to it in page footnotes scattered through his histories, but he never dwells on the matter, and most other writers make no mention of it at all. Apparently it has been regarded as something shameful or horrible, and better let alone.

Ethnologists do not feel that way about it, for they know that cannibal tribes are apt to be superior tribes, and that the practice is rather religious than the mere indulgence in a food that seems utterly repulsive to civilized folk. The North American Indians have been spared an accusation warranted by the facts because, apparently, the white folks for once had a regard for the red man's reputation.

Unitarians for Defense Day.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has been called to a statement made in THE TIMES for June 22 by Mr. Lee B. Stein, Secretary of the Conference of Youth Organizations, in which the Metropolitan Federation of Unitarian Churches is made to appear as among those who are opposed to the defense test program of July 4. This is misrepresentation of the Metropolitan Federation of Unitarian Churches. It has authorized no such attitude.

Last year on Defense Test Day All Souls' Unitarian Church held a special service, and it took further part in the service at the Battery. I feel quite sure that the prevailing sentiment of the Church is in favor of the modest and reasonable program of the War Department.

THE CARAVAN.

While yet the world is gray, through mists will move
Rugged and hurrying figures, urged by Time—
The worth of speed and training pressed to prove,
Agile to load, to sort, to tie, to climb!

Running a race against the Summer sun,
Seeking the blighting sea-fog to elude;
Facing the humdrum tasks which must be done,
Though winds be chilling, or though rains be rude.

There might lie inspiration in a glance
Across the level fields, where, row on row,
The crisp, new crops by hour and day advance—
Those eager, tender things they helped to sow!

But now stunt space for poetry each finds,
Goaded and fevered, as the minutes fly.
Joining the post road caravan that winds
Under the dull light of a pearling sky.

Yet full as precious as in days of old,
When camels clanked across the desert sands
With treasures of rare spices, gems and gold,

Unnoted, from the thin Long Island farms
Each morning these go forth, with none to care.
Prosaic trucks—who finds in them what charms?

THE MATTER WITH COLLEGE.

The Younger Generation Replies—Rutgers and Chivalry.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this morning's TIMES appears a letter on "The Matter With College" signed by "That Old-Timer." Although signing himself thus, your correspondent does not omit the name of the college he has picked as the horrible example. Of this I am partly glad, for it gives me an opportunity as a Rutgers man, and a member of next year's senior class, to protest with a warm sense of personal injury.

Old-Timer recounts an incident which, if true, is really regrettable. But note the facts. The crowds—composed of townspeople of New Brunswick, not undergraduates, for they had left a week before—jostled the alumnus; a New Brunswick policeman handled him roughly, and no one gave him a seat later, since he didn't get into the theatre until it was full of people attending the commencement, other alumni and friends of the college—not undergraduates. From all this Old-Timer concludes that the college youth of the day lack chivalry—a conclusion wholly unwarranted, for no college men figured in the incident.

In the three years I have been at college I have never seen a Rutgers man act unchivalrously where age or weakness were concerned. In a town like New Brunswick there has not been a single case of disagreement between town and gown for many years, and every one always praises the college and the students, due to their tact and chivalry. I affirm that Rutgers men certainly do not lack it.

Getting on the more general subject of what college men lack, whose fault is it if they lack it? If our fathers had all the good qualities we are supposed to lack, why have they not known how to impart them to us? As an answer to this, one has only to read reports of college Presidents of one or two or three generations back on disciplinary measures that were necessary in those days—the good old times!

Old-Timer remarks that in his day alumni were well received. So they are today, and if the alumnus whose sad plight caused these letters had gone to the Alumni House on the campus and not stood with the crowd, who were in happy mood at seeing a show, and ready to laugh at any one's discomfiture, he would have avoided all the trouble and been well received, notwithstanding the fact that most alumni only criticize and bring with them the bad manners acquired since leaving college by learning from their elders in the business world.

As Old-Timer seems to hope that Dr. Thomas, our new President, will instill in us a spirit of chivalry, I should like to say that I, and all Rutgers men, are certain that Dr. Thomas, after seventeen years of experience as a college President, will know better than to try to teach us what we already know. He will, I am sure, attempt rather to instill in the older generation, professors and trustees, a new idea of our (the students') real worth, to the end of establishing a more healthful relationship.

In conclusion, I for one would be greatly displeased to see Rutgers men with the manners of the colleges cited evidently so admired by Old-Timer, for they are in large part hypocrisy and affectation, as I happen to know from personal contact.

Lastly, Rutgers men welcome criticism of the kind based on facts, but outsiders without facts, who base sweeping conclusions on hasty observations, are distinctly not wanted as critics.

Restrictions on Warfare.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial on "banning poison gas" suggests this thought, which you may deem worthy of consideration:

That agreements restrictive of warfare are of two kinds—the kind which, if broken by one side, can be met by effective immediate measures of retaliation by the other; and the kind that cannot be so met.

An instance of the former kind is prohibition of the spurious versankt policy of submarine warfare against merchant vessels. An instance of the latter kind is an agreement not to use poison gas, which is broken by the annihilation of all life in a great city like New York, to use the illustration which your editorial borrows from Captain St. John.

This inevitably suggests the further thought that the only agreement restrictive of warfare which might work otherwise than to the detriment of peaceful and law-abiding nations is an agreement which outlaws aggressive war and commits all the parties to cooperate by force against the aggressor.

The danger of agreements that tie up the hands of peaceful, law-abiding nations but not the hands of nations bent on aggression is that people in the former countries are lulled by them into false security. This matter was admirably dealt with by the late Theodore Roosevelt in a letter to Carl Schurz, which is included in the Roosevelt-Lodge correspondence published lately.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial of June 22, "The Railroad Predicament," is timely and should have the careful attention of Congress.

Congress has the power, as the Supreme Court has held repeatedly, to meet the situation. The Interstate Commerce Commission may, as you say, grant an increase in freight rates, which may be entirely absorbed by the demands of the railway brotherhoods. As you also say, the unions are preparing to demand higher wages.

The commission has the power to grant the increase. If granted, it will probably increase the cost of breadstuffs to the consumers, and such increase may reduce the profits of the wheat growers, which are now none too great.

The commission has no voice in the determination of the wages of the men who operate the roads. With the power to increase the income of the railroads, the commission should have the power to limit the disbursement in the matter of wages, in such manner that the wheat producers and the consumers may receive some benefit from its existence, as well as the carriers, and not permit the employes to reap all of the benefits of such increase of rates.

Did New England Burn Quakers?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Arthur Guiterman, in his letter to THE TIMES of June 19, appears as the vigorous champion of the "irreconcilable New England bigots" who founded our North American culture some three centuries ago. He inveighs against "malicious historic forgeries" and cannot too often deny the reiterated libel that they ever "burned witches."

Although it may not be palatable to Mr. Guiterman, there is much evidence of the most vitriolic intolerance shown by the early Puritans in New England. Whatever may be the proof of witches being burned, there were other burnings even less easy to understand.

Will he deny that these sufferers from religious persecution in England did not burn to death on Boston Common a woman Quaker preacher whose only offense was to visit her coreligionists in that city?

Mr. Guiterman's efforts to deodorize our early American history should never seem to avoid well-documented proof of unpleasant phenomena.

OPENS AIR TRAINING TO ALL ARMY UNITS

WORK TO START NEXT YEAR

Courses at Service Schools Will Be Increased and Theory Will Be Supplemented by Flying.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Army officers of all combat branches are to have an opportunity for aviation training as an additional professional qualification under a new policy just approved by Acting Secretary of War Davis.

Existing law prohibits "compulsory" flying in peace-time for other than aviators and aviation students. Beginning with next year, however, officers of other branches of the army will be "encouraged" to take aerial training. Practical aerial experience will include at least ten hours in the air. Immediately after graduation leave, members of the West Point graduation class will be sent to an air service flying field for their opportunity.

During their first fifteen years of commissioned service all officers who have not had aerial experience after graduating from West Point will also get an opportunity for air work. Initially this chance will go to all combatant officers now in the army who have been commissioned since Nov. 11, 1918, and who were not either officers or cadets prior to that date. Student officers at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., are also included.

The change in army policy is declared by War Department officials to have been prompted by the conclusion that "all" line officers require such knowledge of the capabilities and limitations of the air service as to permit them using it under all conditions of battle and to a feeling that the general efficiency of such officers will be increased by air experience.

Air service courses at the several air schools have been increased to an average of sixty hours so as to allow more time for theoretical and demonstrational instruction. At West Point this instruction will cover ninety hours and at Leavenworth and the Army War College even more. An officer of the air service is hereafter to take the company officers' course at each of the schools for cavalry, infantry, field artillery and coast artillery. One Major or senior Captain of each of the six other combatant arms of the service is to take the course at the air service tactical school at Langley Field, Va.

The War Department will convene a board of officers to prepare the courses at the various schools and flying fields as well as the methods of putting the new air training policy into effect. While it is not the intention to compel officers to fly in peace-time, the department will afford every opportunity for them to do so.

DISCUSS NEWSPAPER INDEX.

Librarians at Swampscott Hold Interesting Symposium.

Special to The New York Times.

An interesting group meeting was held by the newspaper librarians with "The Newspaper Index" as subject of a symposium in which Miss Jennie Welland, of THE NEW YORK TIMES, Miss Evelina E. Pine, of The Springfield Union, and Wilbur F. Coyle, of The Baltimore Sun took part.

On the program of the advertising-commercial-industrial group were D. F. Brown of Elizabeth, N. J.; Miss Ethel A. Shields of Rochester, N. Y.; Miss Eunice E. Peck of Stamford, Conn., and Miss Lenore A. Tafel of New York.

MERRY DEL VAL IS HONORED

Cardinal's Episcopal Jubilee Is Celebrated in St. Peter's.

ROME, June 25 (AP).—The Episcopal silver jubilee of Cardinal Merry del Val, Secretary of the Congregation of the Holy Office, was celebrated today at St. Peter's. Exceptional simplicity prevailed owing to the recent death of the Cardinal's mother.

The entire chapter of St. Peter's gathered to present greetings to the Cardinal and accompanied him to the altar chair of the great Basilica to celebrate mass. Thereafter a Te Deum of thanksgiving was sung.

It is almost unprecedented in the history of the Church that a man who is not yet sixty years of age should have held such important positions as has Cardinal Merry del Val. He was not thirty-seven years old when he was created a Cardinal. As Papal Secretary of State he had under him the present Pontiff, who then was a simple Canon at St. Peter's.

ACCUSE PASITCH AND KING.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 25—As an answer to the Yugoslav Government's note to Austria protesting against toleration by Vienna of the headquarters of the Balkan Federalist Party, the Federation Balkanique, the party's official organ, published in French here, prints charges against the Pasitch Administration. The newspaper asserts that not only had Pasitch the collaboration of the King, then the Crown Prince Alexander, in personally instigating the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand at Sarajevo in 1914, but later tried to wipe out traces of the crime. The paper further says that Pasitch and King Alexander promoted plots to murder King Boris of Bulgaria in 1919 and Regent Horthy of Hungary in 1920.

The publication says it is prepared to submit documents in proof of these charges to an impartial tribunal and challenges the Yugoslav Government to disprove them.

HAS BRITISH ARTILLERY ADVERTISE HIS MOVIE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 24.—An extraordinary stunt was arranged here today by a film publicity agent. He obtained an escort of 100 men and a band of the Hampshire Royal Garrison Artillery to travel from Southampton to London with reels of a new film, and to march from the Waterloo Station to the offices of the company owning the film.

The European manager of the corporation went to New York to get the film, which, according to the advertising manager, is insured for £250,000. Not content to have the manager travel "incognito," two armed men were stationed day and night at the liner's strong room.

Scotland Yard was informed that the movie man had with him "something more precious than gold," and provided a guard of detectives to see the reels safely off the liner to the train. In the meanwhile great words were said to the colonel of the Territorial garrison of artillery at Southampton, and the commanding officer of an armored car company in London.

It was represented to them that if they would permit their men to act as an escort moving pictures would be taken of them, which could be used as an aid to the gruelling campaigning they are now carrying on. The armored car commander fell for the suggestion for a time and actually had his cars at the Waterloo Station. The lack of information about the party expected from Southampton alarmed him and he withdrew his men before it arrived.

Not so the Southampton Colonel. He paraded his full company and, as the movie people say, "threw in his hand as well." They marched proudly through the streets of Southampton, guarding the precious boxes containing the American films and displaying posters calling on young men to fall in and learn to perform the same glorious service. They arrived at Waterloo Station this evening, and to the astonishment of London, marched with their band playing, across Westminster Bridge, past the Houses of Parliament, and along the Embankment and several streets.

In the opinion of the War Office this latest advertising stunt seems to concern the garrison artillery Colonel more than it does the motion picture corporation.

Questions in Parliament and an inquiry by the War Office are to be the results of using the British Army to advertise the new film. Official circles maintain an ominous silence concerning it, but it is known that the commanding officer of the Southampton territorial artillery, who made the joy ride to London at the film company's expense is expecting an interesting interview with his General. Meanwhile, in answer to inquiries he said:

"I've sick and tired of the whole business. The Americans are too clever for us, and I am fed up. We thought it was a recruiting stunt, but it turned out very differently."

Sir Alfred Butt, M. P., the theatrical manager, will in the Commons on Tuesday ask the Secretary of State for War whether the incident in question was permissible under the army regulations and whether he will take steps to prevent a recurrence of the possibility of his Majesty's forces being used to advertise the importation of American films into this country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 25.—Representative Nicholas Longworth as the guest of the French Government today at a reception given in his honor in the Chamber of Deputies took occasion to urge a closer understanding between the French and American Governments on European problems.

M. Herriot, President of the Chamber, was the official host, and in an address of welcome to the Speaker of the House he laid stress on the common bonds of sympathy and interest created between the two peoples through an alliance in the hour of great trial. Premier Painlevé made an address along similar lines.

Mr. Longworth replied with expressions of satisfaction that he had during his visit noted the progressive effort of France to overcome her present difficulties. He said he felt confident of France's powers of regeneration and assured the Legislators that America would do all in her power to assist in the solution of the problems. He insisted on the necessity of frank and honest diplomacy based on truth.

"As we say in America," he added, "let's put our cards on the table and then there will be no conflict between us. As far as I am concerned I shall carry back with me the conviction of the certainty of lasting union between us."

The reception was attended by members of both Houses of Parliament. Prior to the reception Mr. Longworth was guest at a luncheon given by Premier Painlevé.

A. K. BOURNE JR. GIVES UP.

Gives Bond on Alimony Writ for Wife and Is Released.

Arthur K. Bourne Jr., who was arrested on Wednesday night after a quarrel with his young wife, Mrs. Beatrice W. Bourne, who accused him of striking her, surrendered yesterday at the Sheriff's office under an order signed several weeks ago by Supreme Court Justice O'Malley requiring Bourne to give a bond to insure the payment of alimony in his wife's suit for a separation.

Mrs. Bourne asked for $300 a week on the ground that her husband has a large income in addition to an allowance of $250 a month from his parents, but Justice Wagner, who heard the case, granted only $50 a week. Since the order was signed Mrs. Bourne and her attorney have been trying to find her husband to serve the order on Justice O'Malley. Mrs. Bourne's presence in the neighborhood of 280 Park Avenue, where Bourne's mother lives, on Wednesday, was due to information that he was there. He gave a bond of $2,500 in the Sheriff's office, and was released.

VICTIM'S FUNERAL HELD

Mrs. Wheeler's First Husband Among Mourners—Autopsy Findings Announced.

Special to The New York Times.

HACKENSACK, N. J., June 25.—Funeral services were held at Englewood today for Mrs. Ethel Wheeler of Harrington Park, who died Monday of an overdose of cantharides for which Maurice During has been charged with murder.

Dr. Ralph Gilady, who made an analysis of the contents of the dead woman's stomach, announced this morning that cantharides had unquestionably caused her death, and immediately after the report was made known Assemblyman James H. White of Hackensack stated he would introduce a bill at the next session of the Assembly to stop the sale of the drug without a prescription.

"I am surprised," he said, "to learn that this drug, which seemingly is a deadly poison, can be secured by the mere asking in drug stores, without even the semblance of a prescription. The fact that a slight overdose was sufficient to kill this woman is enough to warrant a law either prohibiting or curtailing the sale of this drug."

Thirty persons attended Mrs. Wheeler's funeral. They came from Leonia, her former home; Harrington Park and New York, and included Herman T. Ridge, Mrs. Wheeler's first husband, from whom she was divorced; their daughter, Jeanette Ridge, and the second Mrs. Ridge, who lives in the Bronx. Mr. Ridge was one of the first to arrive at the Wheeler home after Mrs. Wheeler's death.

The funeral service was read by the Rev. David A. Johnson, pastor of the West Side Presbyterian Church.

Shortly after Dr. Gilady's report was read by Prosecutor A. C. Hart the latter issued a statement terming as "cowardly and contemptible the attempt of During, who admits having given Mrs. Wheeler the drug in a Fort Lee roadhouse, to place the responsibility on the dead woman's shoulders." This was met by Wallace Leyden of counsel for young During, who is ill in jail from the same drug, with the statement that Mr. Hart is "once more trying his case in the newspapers, but that won't convict any one."

"If it is true," he said, "that During and Mrs. Wheeler drank this drug in their coffee at the same time it would seem that the woman knew what she was drinking and was not taken advantage of as the Prosecutor's office is trying to make the public believe. I will have a statement to make tomorrow on our side of the case, now that the Prosecutor has issued his story."

Prosecutor Hart said the case will be presented to the Bergen County Grand Jury in August, as the present Grand Jury begins it Summer vacation tomorrow. This may mean that During will have to remain in jail until August, although it is understood his counsel will apply for bail before then.

4 HURT BY RUNAWAY AUTO.

Report That Dozen Are Killed Excites East Side Mothers.

The police reserves were called out yesterday to control several hundred mothers on the lower east side who became excited when they heard a report that an automobile parked in Henry Street had been started in reverse by mischievous boys and had killed a dozen children. The car had injured two men and two boys, three of them seriously. The women, hearing the cries of others in the street, poured out of their tenement homes and Policeman Bauer of the Clinton Street Station, who was supervising the work of caring for the injured, found himself hemmed in on all sides. Somebody telephoned to the station and the reserves came with an ambulance from Gouverneur Hospital, in charge of Dr. Winter.

Sholem Abramowitz, 48 years old, a peddler, of 237 Cherry Street, was injured internally when the automobile overturned his cart on him. Frank Carella, 36 years old, another peddler, of 38 Monroe Street, was cut and bruised, and Sidney Liebermann, 9, and Morris Polm, 12, both of 10 Rutgers Place, were knocked down by the upsetting of the pushcart and each suffered a possible fracture of the skull. Carella went home and Abramowitz and the boys were taken to the hospital.

Samuel Posnick, 12, of 141 Monroe Street was arrested on suspicion of having started the automobile. He will be arraigned in the Children's Court today.

TRY WIDOW FOR SLAYING.

Accused of Killing Husband During an Argument.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., June 25.—Mrs. Lottie Bauer of Hempstead, charged with shooting her husband, Fred Bauer, a former Garden City policeman, on April 25 during an argument, was placed on trial for murder in the second degree before County Judge Smith and a jury in the Nassau County Court today.

Howard Abrams, a negro neighbor of the Bauers, one of the State witnesses, said that he went to the Bauer home just after the shooting and Bauer told him that the gun went off in the struggle.

Captain of Police Frank McKail, County Policeman Charles Shildstone, Isabelle Jarvis and W. A. Jones, a firearms expert, were among the State witnesses.

George M. Levy, counsel for the accused woman, said he would show that Mrs. Bauer took the revolver away from her husband in self-defense while he was drunk and that the weapon went off accidentally. He also said he would bring witnesses to testify that Bauer treated his wife with extreme brutality. Mrs. Bauer will take the stand in her own defense tomorrow.

BRAINTREE, Mass., June 25 (AP).—Johnny Vito of the north end district of Boston, former Pacific Coast boxer, was shot to death on Granite Street here early today. He received four bullet wounds. One bullet, passing under the arm, had pierced the heart.

AMERICANS DISPEL DOUBT AT BRUSSELS

CHARGES OF GREED DENIED

DAWES PLAN IS EXTOLLED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, June 25.—Today was America's at the third Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce. The mist of pessimism and doubt engendered by the attacks on the Dawes plan and the seeming efforts to confuse the plans for an interallied debt adjustment were dispelled by the vigorous words of John W. O'Leary, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General for Reparations.

Both these quasi-official representatives of the Government imbued the congress with new optimism that the world situation can be relieved not by the avoidance but by the payment of debts. Their statements were in direct reply to MM. Despret, Janssen and Stamp, and did not leave the American position in doubt.

The charge that the United States is mercenary and seeks to profit by the misfortunes of Europe was indignantly repudiated by Mr. O'Leary, who said the success of the United States was bound up with the success of the rest of the world and that the first step toward international confidence, on which restoration must rest, lay in the assurance of all nations that they would meet their financial obligations.

Transfer Committee Present.

His words were heard by the members of the Reparations Transfer Committee, which held its regular monthly meeting here to enable the members to consult the delegates. The first important contact between the chamber and these men was that while they were not representatives of their own Governments, they nevertheless were sanctioned to handle on their behalf the delicate problems of the Dawes plan operation.

"There have been moments of pessimism and doubt in this congress," said Mr. Gilbert, "but the resolutions drafted for proposal tomorrow are decidedly helpful to us. As unofficial observers these were submitted for our consideration and suggestion. This contact is a most valuable furtherance of our work."

J. E. Sterrett and other American representatives shared Mr. Gilbert's views and the rest of the committee was understood to acquiesce.

Mr. O'Leary addressed practically the full congress. The substance of his speech had been a matter of speculation by the foreigners for some days and of keen anticipation on the part of the American delegation.

"It is indeed unfortunate that the people of the debtor nations were not earlier advised of the indirect tax they have been called on to pay through the inflation of currencies, a greater tax than is required to finance a funded debt whose principal payments are spread over a long period of years and interest is placed at a low figure," he said. "The people of those nations have now even greater obligations than in 1919 and much less strength to carry the burden."

He said the progress made since the Rome congress was reason for encouragement. He cited Belgium's restoration of her national industries to a level in many instances exceeding that before the war, with the practical balancing of her budget and her intense fiscal effort in a heavy increase of taxes. He complimented France on her favorable visible and invisible trade balance, the better yield of agriculture, and on her hydroelectric development in Southern France, and congratulated Italy on her increased production and lessened unemployment.

Britain's Great Achievement.

He said that Great Britain, "with characteristic determination," had accomplished in five years the phenomenal task of re-establishing her position as the great trade carrier of the world.

"During that time," he continued, "she carried the burden on the debts of her allies. Its funding, and its key re-establishing her fiscal system on a gold basis she made an enormous contribution to world stability, in addition to insuring her own future."

He said the United States had ungrudgingly borne the burden of taxation necessary to carry the interest of her own debts, as well as those of the Allies, until the latter had an opportunity to correct their budget problems and to establish a basis for their external debts.

He reminded the assembly that the Rome congress went on record as proclaiming that restoration and future expansion of commerce and industry could be secured only by maintaining the integrity of obligations and as agreeing that a settlement of interallied debts must be effected with the least possible delay.

He spoke of the faith of American in the Dawes plan, repudiated the charges of self-interest and asserted that "from the viewpoint of our business men there can be no lasting confidence in international business agreements if Governments fail to recognize their obligations. Such a precedent would be more dangerous to those who owe than to those who are owed.

"The funding of international debts," Mr. O'Leary went on, "is a problem of Government, but Governments continue in power only by carrying out the wishes of the people. In the position the American Government has taken on the funding of debts by other nations it is carrying out the will of the American people.

"We believe our Government has taken full cognizance of the difficulties of payment of these debts. If the funding of debts is delayed, the return of confidence will be delayed, and the restoration of confidence provides the greatest aid to mans of payment.

"Experience has demonstrated that there is no cure for present ills except adherence to the sound principles on which a great development of trade may be built. Only through the promotion of such trade is it possible to provide continuous employment, sound living conditions and hope and happiness for millions of people."

Gilbert Shows Optimism.

Mr. Gilbert's speech was more restrained and devoted largely to a discussion of the present progress of the plan of reparation payments. "First of all, the plan has had a satisfactory beginning," he said. "It has succeeded in breaking the reparation deadlock. It has restored trust and confidence where for so long there was nothing but doubt and despair. The plan has realized two essential preliminary objects. The German budget for the fiscal year 1924-25 showed a balance. Germany also succeeded in providing and maintaining a stable currency."

He acknowledged that the burden was light the first year, due to four-fifths of the annuity being provided by the international loan. "But," he added, "Germany has faithfully performed the obligations resting upon her under the plan in respect of payments and deliveries."

He reminded his hearers that the payments in the first eight months aggregated 820,000,000 gold marks, including 150,000,000 for costs of the occupation armies, 40,000,000 for service of the German loan, 277,000,000 in deliveries in kind and 132,000,000 in payments under the British-French Reparations Recovery acts.

He cited a contract for dredging the Seine as the first reparation contract for work by German labor in France. In Belgium contracts included a floating dock, railway material, Congo construction and 25 barges to cost 2,500,000 marks. There have been more than 130 contracts of this kind.

He discussed the difficulties of transfer in unsettling trade exchanges and told of the reation of the Transfer Committee, which was preparing for the future when it would handle large sums.

"It would be folly for any one to attempt to predict what volume of transfers it is possible to attain in three or four years," Mr. Gilbert added. "It is worth while to draw attention to helpful factors operating. You have heard Sir Josiah Stamp and others give a most interesting analysis of the difficulties. But things are frequently more difficult in anticipation than in actual experience. These ideas effective.

"I am convinced that in spite of difficulties enough helpful forces are in operation to contribute materially to a solution of the whole problem."

Calls Trade Recovery Marvelous.

He cited the natural forces of growth and recuperation, saying that trade and industry already had made a marvelous recovery and it would not do to assume that it had reached the end. He hoped for increased deliveries in kind which had not yet been fairly tested, due to the early deadlock and disorder. He recalled the ability of the Transfer Committee so to operate as to increase trade. Lastly, he praised the transfer plan, which "carries in itself a new best protection against future deadlocks on the reparation question."

He suggested that the Chamber would find its greatest usefulness in promoting public discussion of essential facts and in furthering the collection of industrial and financial information. The statistics of Government expenditures were astonishingly incomplete and budget practices dangerously loose, said Mr. Gilbert, adding:

"The German budget of 1924-25 has not yet finally passed through the year ended three months ago and most of the expenditures probably have been made. Foreign trade figures were incomplete and frequently it was almost impossible to construct the figures of balance payments. It is difficult enough for people with technical training to get at the facts and for the general public it is almost impossible."

Another service to mankind is a notable contribution to the welfare of international industry was taken when the finance section adopted a resolution proposed by Ernest B. Filsinger, delegate of the National Association of Credit Men, summoning the Council to appoint a committee to study the possibilities of a cooperative effort by credit grantors of all nations to the end that mutual interests be better served.

The resolution, which was regarded as a first move for the internationalization of credits, was seconded by Sir Felix Schuster of England and Dr. A. van Hall of Holland.

RAPS DAWES PLAN CRITICS.

COLOGNE, Germany, June 25 (AP).—Addressing a convention of German industrialists today, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, President of the Reichsbank, decried recent criticism of the Dawes plan.

"Predictions about the impossibility of transferring payments under the Dawes plan seem as premature as contrary predictions would be," declared Dr. Schacht. "We ask from this that while the formal rule contained in the Dawes plan have entered the heads of the people, the great economic and human ideas underlying the experts' report have passed a deluded world without making an impression.

"It is important to remember that the plan rests upon the assumption that Germany must be enabled to conduct her economic life unhindered.

"Unless the sense of normal responsibility conferred upon them by the Dawes plan thoroughly permeates the political rulers of the world, Europe will not be spared from Bolshevist chaos."

Discussing the German industrial situation, Dr. Schacht said the prevailing credit stringency would continue until the entire German industrial organization had definitely stripped itself of the last vestiges of the inflation period which were still hindering the nation's economic recovery.

Dr. Duesberg, Chairman of the German Federation of Industries, declared that Germany could not wage war now even if she wanted to. The explanation he gave for this statement was that Germany's chemical industries were not in a position to supply powder and dynamite for a war if there desired, her plants for producing important war materials having been destroyed.

He added that he was authorized by the Krupps to say that the transformation of steel into modern cannon required at least a year.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, June 25.—Complaint that the reported intention of the United States to claim from Belgium not only the after-war debt but expenses incurred during the war was contrary to promises made by the United States to Belgium when Belgium accepted the Treaty of Versailles was voiced by M. Jaspar, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, during yesterday's debate in Parliament on the Ministerial statement.

M. Jaspar asked if it was true that the United States intended to claim these war expenses and whether Belgium must pay annually, until 1982, 307,000,000 francs and for sixty-two years following 361,000,000 annually.

Such payments, said M. Jaspar, would be a great hardship and their exaction contrary to promises made by America to Belgium when the latter accepted the Versailles treaty. No answer was given to the former Foreign Minister's question.

BOSTON, June 25 (AP).—Frank Corey, arrested in Worcester several days ago, was indicted here today for the murder of Mrs. Mae Price, wardrobe mistress of "The Brown Derby" theatrical company. Mrs. Price was strangled and robbed in her room in the Hotel Hollis here on May 31.

Prince Descends 3,200 Feet To See Largest Gold Mine

JOHANNESBURG, June 25.—Descent into the world's largest gold mine was the chief event on the Prince of Wales's program today. He visited the Crown Mine and made a close inspection of the whole process of gold extraction.

Donning overalls as a protection against water and dirt, the Prince descended to a depth of 3,200 feet. What he saw excited his keenest interest. He talked with many miners and showered questions on the general manager from the moment he entered the cage until he reached the lowest levels. A banner at the bottom of the shaft bore the words "Welcome to the Underground."

A royal train of two coaches awaited the party, which on a mile journey was able to notice the various junctions from which lines radiate to all sections of the mine, in a manner suggestive of the London subway system.

ITALY RECOGNIZES ITS DEBT IN FULL

MELLON GREETS MISSION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—A statement by the Italian Ambassador, interpreted by American officials as a declaration that Italy would not ask for cancellation of any part of her $2,000,000,000 debt to the United States was a feature of today's exchanges between representatives of the two Governments.

Today's conference was of a preliminary character, in which the spokesman for the two Governments laid the groundwork for negotiations which will be begun in earnest next Tuesday to which day an adjournment was taken. The Mussolini Government was represented at the Treasury today by Nobile Giacomo de Martino, Italian Ambassador; Mario Alberti, a director of the Credito Italiano, one of Italy's largest financial institutions; August Rosso, counsellor of the Italian Embassy and Romolo Angenone, Commercial Attaché of the Embassy, who acted as interpreter. Secretary Mellon, Chairman of the American World War Debt Commission; Secretary Kellogg, Senator Smoot of Utah, and Under Secretary Wilson of the Treasury Department represented the United States.

In welcoming the Italian representatives to today's conference Secretary Mellon said:

"Premier Mussolini having determined that Italy has reached the stage in her economic restoration when a funding of her debt to America can be undertaken, has acted with his characteristic decision. We have watched Italy's emerge from the chaos of war, straighten out her industrial troubles, cut her expenditures and put her budget in equilibrium, all under the direction of one strong man with sound ideas and the force to make these ideas effective. We from America appreciate constructive action. We do not minimize the difficulty of payment of your external debt, but we know that the only way to settle the question, which unsettled might be a continual disturbance to your financial structure and a source of friction in our cordial relations with you, is to fund the debt now, taking into consideration Italy's capacity to pay. You will have, I am sure, the sympathetic consideration of the Debt Commission and of the American people."

Italy Acknowledges the Debt.

In his reply the Italian Ambassador said:

"I am thankful to you, Mr. Chairman, for your kind words. I am glad to be here to discuss a question of such a great interest to our two countries and with such eminent American statesmen.

"Premier Mussolini has directed me to begin without delay the negotiations for the settlement of our war debt to the United States.

"His firm and straightforward policy has always been adverse to half measures and dilatory methods. He has taken into due account the advice repeatedly conveyed to me by members of the American Government. 'The sooner the better,' said Secretary Kellogg to me, and 'The sooner the better' repeated to me the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon. Prime Minister Mussolini has also wished to take into consideration the sentiment of the American public opinion which is anxious to have the debt questions settled.

"Italy has not forgotten the help you so generously gave her in the critical period of the war by sending your soldiers to fight side by side with ours and by furnishing the means to carry on a battle for a common ideal. Our debt of gratitude will always remain as an element of friendship between our two countries. Nothing must cloud our good understanding and mutual confidence between our two nations, united in the high pursuit of world peace and of civil progress of humanity.

"The Italian Government has repeatedly asserted its firm intention to honor its international obligations. I can assurance I have given again by order of my Government at the moment of the presentation of my credentials to President Coolidge who directs with so much wisdom the course of this great and prosperous republic and to whom I feel honored to address the expression of my deferential greeting.

"Capacity to Pay" Estimated.

"But the Italian Government wishes to reach a settlement which it may conscientiously be sure to fulfill and this for the very desire it has to keep the agreement which will derive from this settlement, between Italy and the United States. We have, therefore, carefully estimated the limits of our capacity to pay. It is obvious that a settlement practically impossible to fulfill or one which might cause disaster to the debtor is not desirable for either of us.

"The basic principle of the capacity to pay is admitted—I am sure—by the practical mentality of the American people and is also accepted, as I have been given to understand by the American Government.

"We recognize, I repeat it, our debt toward the United States, but we ask that due account be taken of the real conditions, economical and financial, in which Italy finds itself, as well as of our demographic and fiscal pressure, of our national wealth, of the balance of payments and of the commercial balance and we have to adjust to those conditions the amount, form and the time of payments."

EX-CROWN PRINCE SAYS GERMANY 'FEARED' WAR

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 25.—Germany feared war in 1914 instead of designing to bring it on, as her foes charge, according to ex-Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm, the eldest son of the former Kaiser, in a new book about to be published here. The book is called "I Seek the Truth."

The author insists that neither his father nor any German Government official used the Serajevo murder as a war pretext or thought to egg on Austria against Serbia, hoping it would provoke a general European conflagration. On the other hand, the ex-Crown Prince accuses the Entente nations, especially Russia, with having wished to bring on the conflict. He says Germany had not made plans as to what she was to do in case of war, whereas the Entente statesmen, notably Iswolsky, secretly plotted before 1914 the destiny of Germany.

"The nation having no war aims cannot desire war," writes the ex-Kaiser's son. "But the nations planning war during peace times at least lay themselves open to suspicion of designing war."

The ex-Crown Prince denies that the famous German War Council of July 5, 1914, ever took place and depicts his imperial father as zealously designing peace during the fateful July days of that year.

Ex-Senator Martine of Jersey, Who Died In Florida Rooming House, Left $36,953

James E. Martine, former United States Senator from New Jersey, who died in a rooming house in Miami, Fla., on Feb. 26 last, left an estate appraised here yesterday at $36,953. Mr. Martine was a resident of Plainfield, N. J., where he had occupied the same home since 1855. The transfer tax proceedings were filed here by Frederick W. Yates, the administrator, in the belief that Mr. Martine had property in this State. The appraisal showed that he owned a $5 share of stock in the defunct Commonwealth Hotel Company, but the report of Deputy Tax Commissioner Loughman stated that there is no property taxable in New York.

The schedules of the New Jersey estate filed with the report yesterday show that the former United States Senator had an accrued income of $2,552 under a trust deed executed by Bessie Lorillard Redman, which was modified by a will of Mr. Martine's wife, Mrs. Julia Lorillard Martine, but the trust terminated at his death. He had cash amounting to $93 in his possession at the time he died and uncashed checks of $280. He had $14,967 deposited in banks in Washington and this city, and held thirty checks of the Treasurer of the United States for interest from 1920 to 1925, aggregating $800.

Mr. Martine owned three $500 Liberty bonds and had household effects, jewelry and clothing valued at $1,800. He had a quarter interest in 960 Cedarbrook Road, Plainfield, worth $4,400, and the same interest in 964 Kensington Avenue, Plainfield, worth $12,000. His funeral expenses were $1,630 and the administration expenses $500. He had debts of only $52, of which $40 was for an apartment in Washington.

PREDICTS GERMAN REVIVAL

SEATTLE, June 25.—Speaking on "American Banking and World Rehabilitation," Henry M. Robinson of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, today declared before the National Foreign Trade Convention that the imposition of conditions upon foreign borrowers, in order to protect our own nationals engaged in production and manufacturing, is, under normal conditions, "an unwise course."

From the practical business standpoint, he said, the free movement of credits outweighs other disadvantages.

He urged, however, that bankers "take into consideration the fact that loans should be made with a view to their effect on the business life of the country."

"To the extent that American loans made abroad are sound and not excessive," he said, "and to the extent that the making of such loans has reduced interest rates and made possible borrowing, theretofore impossible, the pressure to sell, irrespective of price, has been relieved, and to some degree at least competitive pressure has been reduced.

"May we not assume that such loans have contributed greatly to bring about that result? At the same time, an easier financial condition in a distressed country soon brings about demands for increases in wages, and soon their comparative cost level rises, and to that extent weakens their comparative competitive position."

Mr. Robinson said he expected to see a more serious effect on competitive conditions in world trade when the normal annuity to be paid by Germany is reached by the end of the fifth year of the Dawes plan. The amount of reparations collected in Germany to be deposited in the Reichsbank for the credit of the Allies then will be about $625,000,000 a year.

"When this amount is collected and placed to the credit of the Allies, unless Germany has made unlooked for expansions of exports over imports, the pressure of the drive to realize on these credits will result in many types of ingenious schemes for such reduced exports," he added.

"Germany," he said, "will be a great surplus exporter of goods, as a result of the reparation plan. In this case, the United States will be facing the forced exporting from Germany of goods for something more than half of the reparation annuities (possibly $350,000,000 a year), and the pressure will be either directly or indirectly against this country. The only way that other countries could continue to take German goods would be for America to continue to make investments and loans to those countries. To that extent, we have added a factor of additional pressure for investment in other countries. American bankers, therefore, both commercial and investment, will have, as I view it, a continuing and probably increasing incentive to handle foreign loans and investments. The industrialists, in turn, will be quite as anxious that such loans be made, especially if done with proper consideration for their problems."

Mr. Robinson suggested creation of a board for the coordination and compiling of available information.

"England and the United States, working together," he said, "have taken the most important forward step in the restoration of the gold standard in England, with the practical certainty that such action will follow by other important commercial countries to a similar action in the comparatively near future."

BELITTLE REMSEN JEWELS.

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—Gem experts today valued at $25,000 the jewels found in the safety deposit box of Mrs. Elizabeth Remsen of New York after her death at her Summer home in Pasadena. They declared that most of the jewels were of the motion picture variety. They had been said to be worth millions.

PLUNGES TO DEATH AT HOTEL BELMONT

Mrs. Alta Crouse, Syracuse Society Woman, Thought to Have Fallen Accidentally.

BODY ON ADJOINING ROOF

Identified by Chauffeur — Came Here for Medical Aid and Was Planning Trip Abroad.

Mrs. Alta Crouse, a social leader in Syracuse, N. Y., and widow of Charles E. Crouse, millionaire grocer of that city, plunged five stories to her death from her suite on the thirteenth floor of the Hotel Belmont, Forty-second Street and Park Avenue, early yesterday morning. Her body was found, clad in a night dress, on the roof of the eight-story building of the Lincoln Bank, adjoining the hotel, and directly under her bedroom window.

From the position of the body and an examination of the room and window from which Mrs. Crouse fell, the police believe death was accidental. The theory is that she went to the window to get a breath of air, leaned out, was seized with an attack of vertigo and toppled to her death. Fingerprints on the sill of the window showed that she had leaned out. There were no indications of suicide.

Identification of the body was made by her chauffeur, John Krause, who has been in her employ for the past five years.

Mrs. Crouse, who was about 55 years old, inherited a fortune of nearly $1,000,000 on the death of her husband in January, 1922, and was not only a Syracuse social leader, but was widely known as a virtuoso, a patron of music, and a connoisseur of antique furniture and china. Her maiden name was Alta Pease, and she was married to Mr. Crouse on Dec. 20, 1887, while a singer and a member of the famous Bostonians, a light opera company.

She motored to New York from Syracuse last Tuesday, coming here for medical treatment and to complete plans for an extended trip abroad. During her trips to New York she always stayed at the Belmont, and after her arrival there on Tuesday she made a motor trip to Long Island and seemed to be in good spirits. On Wednesday she dined with a friend, a member of the New York Yacht Club, and an old friend of the family, and retired early to her three-room suite in the hotel after asking to be called at 10 o'clock yesterday morning.

About 7 o'clock in the morning a pantryman on the eighth floor of the hotel looked out of the window and saw the woman's body 119 feet below. Dr. G. East Fortieth Street was summoned and pronounced her dead. The hotel then notified the police, and a detective from the East Thirty-fifth Street Station was detailed to make an investigation.

According to Assistant Medical Examiner Benjamin Schwartz, death was caused by a fractured skull and internal injuries and was instantaneous. Mrs. Crouse had been dead about two hours, he said.

Mrs. Crouse's brother, Elmer B. Pease, of 100 Highland Avenue, Somerville, Mass., arrived last night to take charge of the body and it will be shipped back to Syracuse today.

Mrs. Crouse lived at 980 James Street, Syracuse, and had traveled extensively since her husband's death. Two years ago she made a trip around the world. She frequently came to New York for short stays, and that she was planning an extended tour was indicated by the large wardrobe she brought with her on this last trip. Communications from several steamship agencies were found in her suite, and her luggage consisted of two large trunks.

WORLD PRESBYTERIANS SIDETRACK UNITY MOVE

CARDIFF, Wales, June 25 (AP).—The hopes of most of the American delegation that the present session of the Presbyterian Alliance Council would succeed in unifying the Presbyterian Churches of the world by adopting a common creed were defeated today when the council referred to the Business Committee a proposal that a committee be appointed to report on the advisability of a common creed and the drawing up of a tentative one.

Even if the motion is favored by the Business Committee, the committee will not report until the next meeting of the council in 1929.

MRS. SYMINGTON DENIES ALL CHARGES

Offers Proof That She Was With Husband When Chambers Says She Visited Him.

TELLS OF HOUSE PARTIES

Mrs. Ida May Symington denied yesterday the charges of infidelity upon which Thomas H. Symington, wealthy sportsman and dealer in railway supplies, bases the action for divorce now being tried before Justice Ford and a jury in the Supreme Court.

She declared that there had never been the slightest impropriety in her relations with Maurice Fatio, an architect, in her home at Morristown, N. J., or elsewhere, as is charged by her husband. On March 11, 1924, when Talbot W. Chambers, wealthy coal man, has sworn Mrs. Symington was with him at his apartment at 108 East Seventy-fifth Street, she told the jury she was constantly in her husband's company. Chambers has been charged with adultery as a result of his testimony against Mrs. Symington.

Mrs. Symington said that she and her husband dined together at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in the large dining room on that evening and that they went to the Vanderbilt Theatre. Returning to the hotel, she said, they shared a room and breakfasted together the next morning.

Records of the Rits offered in evidence showed that the Symingtons were there from March 10 to March 12. Louis Ringelheimer, an employe of Louis Cohen's theatre ticket agency at 204 West Forty-second Street, testified that two seats for the Vanderbilt Theatre for the same night had been charged to Symington. Two others for the Century Theatre for March 10 also were ordered in Mr. Symington's name, Ringelheimer said. Mrs. Symington testified that on that evening she had gone with her husband to see "The Miracle."

Mrs. Symington, who wore a small lavender hat and a tan coat trimmed with fur, gave her testimony unfalteringly and not once did she lose her composure. Under the questioning of Max D. Steuer, her counsel, she told the story of her life with Symington, which began with their marriage at Quisset, Mass., in October, 1916. On the same tone she might have used in a drawing room she detailed her husband's early devotion, his waning love and his gradual absorption in his horses and his fox hunting, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and in England. At last, Mrs. Symington told the jury, his interest in sport, and in the gay hunting set blotted out their life together and he ceased to care to be with her.

Once, when Mr. Steuer was arguing some point with opposing counsel, Mrs. Symington raised a jeweled hand to her eyes. The lids fluttered and drooped and she sat back like a woman who has reached the limit of physical endurance. But when her examination was resumed by Mr. Steuer she said I was going to take a trip and that, if he wished, I would not return."

Mrs. Symington said she never sent the letter but put it away where her husband found it when he got home. He showed it to the other members of his family and there was a conference at which his brother, Charles J., and his son, Tom Jr., advised Symington that he had better leave his wife and that she had married him solely for his money.

George Gordon Battle appeared yesterday as an associate counsel for Symington. Mr. Steuer objected until he had polled the jury and discovered that no one had relations with Mr. Battle which might prejudice him.

Justice Ford announced that he would not rule on Mr. Steuer's motion to dismiss the case on the ground of insufficient evidence until it had all been submitted.

Mrs. Symington will resume the stand at 10 o'clock this morning.

Says She Was Stripped of Funds.

At the request of her husband, Mrs. Symington said, she signed checks in blank and other papers so that by the middle of April, 1924, her bank account had vanished and she was stripped of all stocks, bonds and other securities. Symington, it was brought out, by that date had sold all his real estate holdings—his large home in Morristown and his place at Palm Beach. On May 2 papers in the divorce suit were served upon his wife.

At the afternoon session Mr. Steuer placed in evidence a number of letters addressed to Mrs. Symington in her husband's handwriting, which she said had been taken from her desk in the Morristown house sometime between April 21 and the time the divorce papers were served. She testified that her husband had told her he had gone through her desk and that he was accompanied on his visit to the house by Joan Wallace Burden, a friend, counsel and 'fiancée, Edward S. Pope of 30 East Fortieth Street.

"I want to say," interrupted Mr. Young, "that I never have been in Morristown in connection with this case nor, to the best of my belief, has any one connected with my office."

Mr. Steuer accepted Mr. Young's statement without question, he said.

At the Morristown house party during the week-end of April 11, 1925, when, according to servants who have testified for Symington, Maurice Fatio was seen coming from Mrs. Symington's room at an early hour, she said that her 13-year-old daughter, who passed the night on a sleeping porch adjoining, and a Mrs. and Miss Coffman, house guests, were in the room also. She said that Fatio had never been alone with her in her room at that time or at any other.

"Did you ever at any time have illicit relations with Mr. Fatio?" Mr. Steuer asked.

"Absolutely not!" Mrs. Symington answered vehemently.

On the following Saturday Mrs. Symington said that her husband, who had been in England hunting, returned to New York, bringing with him several horses he had purchased abroad, three or four women servants and a like number of men servants. She said that she and her daughter and her husband's brother, Captain Powers Symington, U. S. N., met him at the dock and that Mrs. Paris was also present. The next day they went to Morristown.

So one was arranged, Mrs. Symington said, at which Fatio was a guest. They dined at Pierre's and went to the theatre together afterward, and Fatio and Mr. Symington became fast friends, calling each other by their Christian names.

Never Drinks, She Declares.

About the middle of April Mrs. Symington said that she and her husband went to the Maryland Hunt Club in Harford County, Maryland, where a large party was given, Fatio being among the guests. She said the men habitually appeared in pajamas and dressing gowns at breakfast and the women wore negligee.

"Do you drink yourself?" Mr. Steuer inquired.

"Never," said Mrs. Symington.

After the party at the club—Mrs. Symington said she returned to Morristown. Her husband, she said, would "drop in" unannounced, remain a day or two and return to Maryland. During this period she admitted that Fatio was a frequent visitor, although he came to see others in the neighborhood as well as herself, she declared.

Then, in June, Symington came home, his wife said, and told her he intended selling both the cottage in which she was living in Morristown at the time and the large house there. She moved into the large house but the carpets had been sent to the club in Maryland and she was obliged to get along on bare floors, she declared.

"In July he asked me to make plans for my Summer," said Mrs. Symington. "I suggested that we plan to be together, but he said that hunting was his life and that he should go to Maryland. He suggested I rent a small place at East Hampton, L. I., and I did. I was ill much of the time and he came up for a week-end once or twice."

On the morning of March 12, 1924, at the Rits—the morning after the night Chambers swore Mrs. Symington was with him in his apartment—she testified that her husband told her he intended going to Maryland to hunt with his brothers and a group of men and women friends. She asked if she might not go, she said, but he told her he doubted if she would enjoy it.

"Aren't you ever going to take me on any of these trips" she said she asked him. "I don't believe your friends in Maryland believe you actually have a wife."

"Yes, we parted with ill feeling," said Mrs. Symington. "I felt helpless. I didn't know exactly what to do, so I called him on the telephone at his dentist's and asked him if he would have lunch with me before he took the train. He came back to the Ritz-Carlton and telephoned up to me to meet him in the large dining room. He was very, very pleasant and said he realized he was always going away and that it wasn't perhaps fair to me, but that if I would let him go that time we would talk everything over when he came back."

Then Mrs. Symington went to Morristown to take her personal effects from the large house which had been sold and, soon afterward, she said, she learned of the divorce suit.

During the first two years of their married life Symington was constantly at his wife's side, she told the jury. They made trips from their home in Morristown to New York, to Europe and to Palm Beach, where Symington joined the Everglades Club and bought a houseboat and a bungalow.

In the Autumn of 1922, Captain Powers Symington, her husband's brother, was married in California, Mrs. Symington said. She expressed delight at the prospect of the trip and reservations had been made when she was told that her husband had decided not to take her. He told her, she said, that the whole family was going and that it might not be pleasant for her. Although her husband's relatives maintained an apartment at the Waldorf-Astoria, Mrs. Symington said she had never been invited there. After her husband started for California, Mrs. Symington said she became ill.

"I suffered terribly," she went on, "and was so wretchedly unhappy I was forced to go to bed. The next day I got up and wrote him a letter, telling him how miserable I was. I said I couldn't go on this way. I told him I had married him because I loved him and wanted to make him happy, and that I had evidently failed because he cared more for his horses and his hunting than he did for me and that I sometimes felt I would rather be his horse than his wife. I said I was going to take a trip and that, if he wished, I would not return."

Mrs. Symington said she never sent the letter but put it away where her husband found it when he got home. He showed it to the other members of his family and there was a conference at which his brother, Charles J., and his son, Tom Jr., advised Symington that he had better leave his wife and that she had married him solely for his money.

George Gordon Battle appeared yesterday as an associate counsel for Symington. Mr. Steuer objected until he had polled the jury and discovered that no one had relations with Mr. Battle which might prejudice him.

Justice Ford announced that he would not rule on Mr. Steuer's motion to dismiss the case on the ground of insufficient evidence until it had all been submitted.

DECLARES MELLON BREAKS DRY LAW

PARIS, June 25 (AP).—Chauncey Hackett, general counsel of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, of Washington, D. C., was the chief speaker today at the sixth congress of international anti-prohibition organizations. France, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, Spain, Finland, Holland, Hungary, Italy, Portugal, Great Britain, Sweden, Switzerland and Norway were represented, in addition to the United States.

Mr. Hackett's description of the operation non-operation he called it—of the American dry law amused the delegates of the various nations assembled.

"Prohibition does not exist in America," he declared, "or, rather, it does not function. It has changed social customs, but not lessened social drinking.

"The officials themselves do not obey it. Even the present Secretary of the Treasury, charged with the enforcement of prohibition, is obliged, in order to serve wine at his table, to violate the law, which he has done either personally or through agents, by buying cellars of Washington liquors who, under the law, are not able to take out of the District of Columbia alcoholic beverages. I know that Mr. Mellon has done this, because he bought red wine that I wanted myself a few years ago."

When Mr. Hackett came to the reference to the Secretary of the Treasury and described the District of Columbia laws, which he said prevented the Secretary from replenishing his cellar legally, and added that prohibition does not inspire the respect of the average citizen; officials, Congressmen and Judges break it," the delegates seemed overjoyed, and M. de Luze of France, the newly elected President of the league, thanked him for his report.

TO BURN BOOKS USED BY LEPERS IN SCHOOL

All the books in the Avon Avenue public school in Newark will be burned today as a precaution against any possible spread of leprosy, as a result of the discovery that Learned and Frank George, former pupils, were suffering from that disease. The decision to burn the books and other school accessories with which the boys might have come in contact, was made by the Board of Education. The books will be burned under the direction of Dr. Charles V. Craster, of the Department of Health.

Dr. Craster said that the danger of any leprosy infection from articles the boys had handled was so slight as to be negligible. He said that the disease did not spread in this climate and that the boys probably contracted the disease in Bermuda, from where they came to this country with their parents six years ago. The other members of the family have been examined and show no signs of leprosy. They will undergo periodical examinations, Dr. Craster said.

Brothers From Scotland United Here After 50 Years

William B. Groat Sr. of 280 Jamaica Avenue, Astoria, an inspector of the United States Customs Service, yesterday had a reunion at his home for his brother, Captain John Groat, formerly of the United States Geodetic Society Service, from Tillamook, Ore. The brothers met late Wednesday night at the Grand Central Terminal in Manhattan for the first time in fifty years. They separated when they were boys at their home in Wick, Scotland. Captain John Groat took to the sea and after traveling all over the world settled in Oregon and entered the Government service. William Groat came to America and settled in Astoria.

The brothers lost all trace of each other. Some time ago in looking over Government reports William Groat came upon the name of his brother. By inquiry at Washington he learned the address and wrote to him. The brothers decided to meet and have made arrangements to leave on July 4 for a visit to their old home in Scotland.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Doubling the Government's present credit of 25 per cent. to Federal inheritance tax payers because of the State inheritance taxes has been agreed upon by Secretary Mellon and Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee as an essential of the new revenue bill.

It is possible that Congress may be asked to go even further and to allow on the Federal inheritance tax a full credit for the amount paid to the State, but this is contingent upon the States relinquishing the course followed in some instances of taxing property of non-resident decedents.

Mr. Green explained these proposals in a statement this afternoon, and later, although the Chairman would

Summer Lassitude Settles Over Most Markets—Stocks Moderately Firm, but Commodities Irregular.

The markets of the country pursued the even tenor of their way yesterday in much the same listless and desultory fashion that has prevailed all week. Stocks were moderately firm and easy managed to close the day with a slight gain. Trading on the Stock Exchange was once more under the "million-share" mark. The grains were lower, merely sagging of their own weight. In the foreign exchange market the outstanding feature, if one could be singled out from such an idle market, was the decline of the franc to 4.58¾ cents, a new low point for the year.

These various movements, more or less tame and uninteresting in themselves, reflect very accurately the present attitude of the country as a whole toward the markets. Evidently the usual Summer lassitude has overtaken the markets and trading in commodities and securities is at just about its lowest ebb for the year. Price fluctuations at the moment mean very little and give no hint whatever of any particular change in fundamentals. Dealings in all markets are particularly small. It might be said that the markets are neglected. As a result such deals as are consummated, and which establish prices from day to day, are ordinarily a compromise between buyer and seller. The approaching holiday probably has something to do with this. The usual Summer inactivity is in all likelihood mainly responsible. At any rate, most markets have drifted into what might be called a trading rut, in which the fluctuations are altogether meaningless and wholly without prophecy as to the trend of prices for the next few months.

On the Stock Exchange much was made of the fact that call money had advanced to 5 per cent. for the fifth time this year, and for the first time since March 30, and that stocks had "withstood the shock" in very good fashion. It is difficult to fathom the "shock" which a 5 per cent. rate should give to any market. What is most evident is that the financial district is merely preparing for the July 1 settlements and disbursements which always mean a heavy drain on the call money market. Even a 5 per cent. rate, low as it is judged by the yardstick of previous years, is not likely to prevail very long after the settlements now pending have been completed. However, leaving out of consideration the temporary advance in the call rate, stocks did very well yesterday. There were gains of from fractions to as much as three points in many of the issues which have been accepted as speculative vehicles. What is probably more important is that there was no weakness in any section and that a calm and dispassionate view is being taken generally of the outlook for business this Fall, which, of course, is always discounted weeks and often months before in Stock Exchange prices.

The bank statements yesterday were unusually interesting although the changes were not drastic. Discounts of the Federal Reserve Bank, it was shown, increased by $44,000,000, while the gold reserve declined by about $10,000,000. There were only fractional fluctuations in the ratio. The most remarkable part of the Bank of England statement was the contraction in circulation by £702,000. The gold reserve of the bank decreased by £412,000, and in consequence the ratio of reserve dropped from 25.61 in the previous week to 24.02. A moderate decrease occurred in the Bank of France circulation despite advances which were made to the Government. Yesterday's new "low mark" for the franc has evidently little relation to the actual bank statement. It is quite apparent that the markets of the world regard the French financial situation as in a fluid state and await word of the new plans with more or less anxiety.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, JUNE 25, 1925.

Heavy calling by the country banks in preparation for the July 1 coupon payments, put Stock Exchange call money up to 5 per cent., after interval of 4½ @ 4½. This is the highest charge since March 30. There was a concession of ½ to 4½ per cent. in the outside market, where funds were freely offered, and taken in some quantity. Time money market also hardened in tone, there being less of a supply than previously, banks recalling part of their earlier offerings. An occasional trade for four months' at 4, month were and there a loan for six months' at the same figure, formed the bulk of the day's activity. Renewals were placed at 4 per cent. Business money markets were steady, call loans against acceptances moving up ¼ to 3½ per cent., but bank bills remained unchanged.

ASKS BONDHOLDERS TO AID ST. PAUL PLAN

RECEIVERSHIP IS COSTLY

The Bondholders' Protective Committee for Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul bonds, the Chairman of which is Frederick H. Ecker, Vice President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, yesterday sent a circular to holders of the bonds. It declared that "nothing can be gained, but much may be lost, by the bondholders by continuing the receivership and delaying the reorganization in the hope that any increase in rates which may be authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission or any favorable developments in the Northwest will make the readjustment of the system's capital structure unnecessary or more advantageous to the bondholders."

In addition to Mr. Ecker, the circular is signed by the other members of the Protective Committee, who are Bertram Cutler, representing the John D. Rockefeller interests; Edward D. Duffield, President of the Prudential Insurance Company of America; Samuel H. Fisher, representing the Harkness interests; Jerome J. Hanauer of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; William E. Knox, President of the Bowery Savings Bank and of the American Bankers' Association; Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Bank of New York, and H. F. Whitcomb, representing the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company.

The committee says it believes that the reorganization of the St. Paul system under the proposed plan will be to the interest of the holders of the bonds of the issues which the committee represents, and that with the cooperation of such holders a long receivership can be avoided. The committee therefore urges all bondholders to deposit their bonds under the plan and agreement at once, and in any event before July 15 next.

"So long as the receivership continues," the circular says, "the entire income of the property not required for interest on underlying bonds will undoubtedly be devoted to capital expenditures (for which Coverdale and Colpitts recommend over $50,000,000), largely for equipment, during the three years 1925, 1926 and 1927; therefore the junior bondholders would be entirely deprived of income, and capital expenditures for which the income did not provide would either have to be postponed or be financed through the issue of short-time receivers' certificates, except in so far as part of the cost of new equipment could be financed by equipment obligations.

"Furthermore, the time when the Interstate Commerce Commission will act and the nature and extent of any relief which it may grant cannot be foretold. It is not believed that the continued insolvency of the system will in any way expedite a beneficial increase in rates, while if an early reorganization is accomplished the bondholders, as holders of new securities issuable under the plan, will be the first to receive the benefits of any increase which ultimately may be obtained.

"The committee also believes that, irrespective of any increase in rates which may be obtained, it would be distinctly unwise to reorganize the system in any manner which did not provide a financial structure capable of surviving a repetition of even such adverse conditions as have prevailed during recent years."

The circular is addressed to holders of the St. Paul 4 per cent. gold bonds, due 1925; the 4 per cent. fifteen-year European loan of 1910 bonds, due in 1925; the 4½ per cent. convertible gold bonds, due in 1932; the twenty-five-year 4 per cent. gold bonds of 1909, due in 1934; Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound Railway Company first mortgage 4 per cent. gold bonds, due in 1949, and the general and refunding mortgage gold bonds, Series A and B, due in 2014.

CHICAGO, June 25. (AP)—Payment by receivers of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad to the Federal Government of $300,000 interest on a note of $10,000,000 was approved today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The order was entered when expected objections failed to materialize. A telegram from Washington, signed "Shatford," stated that the action would be detrimental to other bond and stockholders but Judge Wilkerson ignored the message, saying that the author should have been in court.

The fifth annual Plattsburg luncheon tendered by members of the New York Stock Exchange to the boys of the financial district going to Plattsburg and other training camps was also held yesterday in the Mills Building.

RESTORES OLD SILVER COIN.

Guatemala Said to Have Put 50,000,000 Quetzales Into Circulation.

Advices received in the financial district yesterday stated that the Government of Guatemala had put into circulation 50,000,000 silver "quetzales," each worth the same as the American dollar, after twenty-five years of suspended circulation. Bankers regarded the action as another step in the tendency to stabilize the world's currency.

Since Britain's return to a gold standard there has been talk of other nations taking similar action. The effect of the Guatemalan decision is expected to have an effect on the price of silver, especially since Poland, Russia and other countries have been increasingly large factors in the market for silver for subsidiary coinage purposes. Silver prices have been strong the last few days. A further new high level for the year was reached yesterday, when the New York price went to 70⅝ cents per fine ounce, a gain of ⅜ cent from Wednesday. Most of this strength is attributed to the demand from China.

Crude Rubber Market Soft.

There was an easier tone in the spot and future positions in the crude rubber market yesterday. It was the first sign of reaction in the buoyant sessions of the present week. A slight drop in manufacturers' interest accounted for the easier tone, with prices on an average about 1 cent a pound below Wednesday's values. The London market also showed a tapering, sagging ½d to 38½d.

The quotation for ribbed smoked sheets for June was 83 cents, and for July, 82 cents, with August-September delivery at 74½ cents. Clean brown crepe thin was quoted at, 77 cents for June, 75 cents for July and 67½ cents for August-September. First latex crepe was ¾ cents for June, 81 cents for July and 74½ cents for August-September. Amber No. 3 and fine up-river Para showed proportionate declines.

Advance Is Attributed to Heavy Withdrawal of Funds to Meet July Requirements.

FOR INTEREST PAYMENTS

Currency Also Drawn to Interior for Fourth of July Needs—Condition Temporary, Bankers Say.

For the fifth time this year call money rates advanced to 5 per cent. yesterday. The rise was attributed to heavy withdrawals of funds in preparation for July 1 payments of dividends and interest. These disbursements are expected to be unusually heavy, as both quarterly and semi-annual payments must be made. The last previous time the rate was as high as 5 per cent. was on March 26.

The conditions yesterday were somewhat similar to those which resulted in an advance to 5 per cent in the call money rate on Jan. 2 last. The rate at that time was credited to the heavy payments of dividends and interest at the turn of the year. As soon as these were completed funds began to flow back into the money market, and by the second week in January the rate was down to 2½ per cent., the low point of the year. The rate touched 5 per cent. again on Feb. 24 and Feb. 27, but by the middle of March had dropped to 2 per cent. Once more, on March 30, at 5 per cent. rate was quoted, after which the figure again receded. During most of the last month the rate has been about 3½ per cent.

Bankers pointed out that in addition to the heavy dividend and interest payments due on July 1, the approach of the first of the month always tends to draw funds to the interior from New York for local settlements. Banks in various parts of the country also are said to be preparing for heavy calls for currency at the end of next week in connection with the Fourth of July holiday. In the case of last Decoration Day and other recent holidays, the currency demand has affected the money rate, as the banks, borrowing at the Federal Reserve, have withdrawn money from the loan market to keep their reserves in line.

Present conditions in the money market are regarded as purely transitory and it is expected that, with large funds still pressing into New York for investment, easy conditions will return as soon as the bank funds now withdrawn begin flowing back into the market the first week or so in July. Yesterday's advance in the rate had no apparent effect on prices in the stock market, though it tended somewhat to reduce the activity in trading.

LONDON, June 25.—Prices were firm on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols ¼ higher at 55⅝; British 5 per cent. war loan 99½; 4½ per cent. war loan 93⅝; both unchanged.

De Beers Mining 10⅝; Rand Mines 2⅛; both unchanged.

PARIS, June 25.—Prices were heavy on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 10 centimes lower at 42 francs 90 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan unchanged at 83 francs 95 centimes.

Exchange on London 48 centimes higher at 104 francs 83 centimes. The American dollar was quoted at 21 francs 58 centimes, against 21 francs 52½ centimes yesterday.

Copper Buyings on Small Scale.

Buying of copper metal was again on a small scale yesterday, and sales were reported at 13⅝ cents a pound, although some producers were said to be continuing to quote 13¾ cents. The recessions in prices, it is stated, are due to the desire of second hands, who overstayed their market on the last rally, to lighten their holdings.

Mr. E. L. Wast, President of Metropolitan Edison Company, has summarized his letter of June 23, 1925, to us as follows:

Business and Properties: The territory in which Metropolitan Edison Company and its subsidiaries supply electricity for light and power, includes active industrial centers of Eastern Pennsylvania, among which are Reading, York, Lebanon and Easton. The total population served, directly or through wholesale distribution, is estimated at 735,000, with 75,031 electric customers.

Valuations: The value of the Company's property and of its investment in subsidiary and associate companies (valuation of principal properties based on independent engineers' reports), plus proceeds of the present offering of Preferred Stock, is in excess of $35,600,000. After allowing for the amount of the Company's outstanding funded debt the balance is equivalent to more than $245 per share of Preferred Stock outstanding including this offering.

Super-power System: The Metropolitan Edison properties form a considerable portion of the Pennsylvania-New Jersey Power System of the General Gas & Electric Corporation. Being interconnected by high tension transmission lines, they are operated as a Super-Power system and are included in the Boston-Washington zone of the Super-Power Survey made for the Department of the Interior of the United States Government.

Gross and Net Earnings are the largest in the history of the companies. Operating Revenue and other Income for the year ended May 31, 1925, aggregate $8,406,576 as against $8,270,476 for the same period ended in 1924. After deductions from Total Income, including interest on funded debt, the balance, $1,694,946, is nearly two and two-thirds times annual dividend requirements of the Preferred Stock outstanding, including the present offering.

Maintenance and Depreciation: Liberal appropriations for these purposes are a stated policy of the Operating Managers, about 18% of the Operating Revenue having been so appropriated in the year ended May 31, 1925.

Franchises of the Company in all the communities served are, in the opinion of the Company's counsel, unlimited as to time and without unfavorable restrictions. There is no competition of similar class of service.

Management: The properties are under the management of The W. S. Barstow Management Association, Inc., New York City, and operations are supervised by men of long and varied experience in the public utility field.

As of June 20, 1925, the number of holders of Metropolitan Edison Company Preferred Stock was 5,902, in which are included about 100 banks and other corporations.

Dividends on the Preferred Stock have been paid regularly since issue and annual dividends at the rate of $4 per share are now being paid on the outstanding Common shares, a large majority of which is owned by General Gas & Electric Corporation.

All legal matters in connection with the issuance of this stock will be approved by Messrs. Pendleton, Anderson, Iselin & Riggs, of New York, Counsel for the Corporation, and are subject to the approval of Messrs. Davison & Monico, representing the underwriters.

The above stock is offered if, as and when issued and received by us and subject to the approval of Counsel and to prior sale.

WILSON OPTIMISTIC ON VENEZUELAN OIL

ADMINISTRATION FAVORS IT

Venezuelan oil production and the problems confronting it were discussed yesterday in an interview with Henry Lane Wilson, former Ambassador to Mexico, who returned recently from a trip of investigation as counsel for certain American oil interests active in the Maracaibo region. Mr. Wilson, who also served as Minister to Chile, Belgium and Greece at different times, was optimistic over a solution of the oil transportation problem in the Venezuelan fields, which problem is conceded in the oil industry to be the one big obstacle to the companies operating in this rich territory.

He said that the Venezuelan Congress now has before it a project for creating a new port on Bay Salina, in the Peninsula of Paraguana, which extends alongside Lake Maracaibo, and that if ratified the port of Maracaibo, the one now used for transporting the oil at seaboard, will be eliminated as a port of charge. At present the oil must be transported by shallow-draft boats through the mouth of Lake Maracaibo to the port of Maracaibo, a method very unsatisfactory because of the limitation it places on shipments in large quantities to seaboard. Only 2,000-ton tankers can be used on the lake, and as a solution the Gomez Administration is said to favor the establishment of a new port outside the lake, to which the oil will carried via pipe lines as well as by the existing method.

There are vast undeveloped riches still to be tapped, including large mineral deposits, according to Mr. Wilson.

"Until about fifteen years ago," he said, "Venezuela was practically, except for coffee production, an unexploited country, with little foreign commerce and practically no internal development. With the advent of the Gomez Government, a new era was ushered in, accompanied by a firm guarantee of protection to life, property and enterprise. The forward movement has continued to this day.

"Of course, the important thing, and the thing that appeals to the business mind, is the oil industry in Venezuela, in which that country must not only be credited with the greatest potential future, but must also be credited with the greatest present and actual oil production of all Latin-America except Mexico. Geological research reveals the fact that a very considerable part of the soil of Venezuela is underlaid with vast reservoirs of oil. It may be predicted that, as the production of oil falls off in other countries, it will correspondingly increase in Venezuela, if there is a solution of the oil transportation question.

"The shallow condition at the entrance to Lake Maracaibo continues down to the southern end of the lake. It is estimated that to clear the lake of its shifting sands and create a channel for heavy tanker boats adequate for the purpose of the oil companies would require the expenditure of $50,000,000, and probably $10,000,000 a year to maintain the channel. It is inconceivable that the oil companies will initiate this work and for political and other reasons no government of Venezuela will ever encourage it. What is needed, therefore, is a port outside the entrance, politically and commercially favored by the Government of Venezuela. This enterprise is already on foot in the Peninsula of Paraguana at Bay Salinas. This will solve the problem to a large extent, except for the British-owned Dutch Shell Company, which has already established its oil storage reserves."

Under the vote of the French Parliament on April 15 the legal limit on such advances is now 26,000,000,000 francs, against a previous 22,000,000,000,000. Largest amount ever reached by advances to the State, 27,000,000,000 in 1921; smallest during the last three years, 21,200,000,000 in March, 1922.

The principal items in the statement compare as follows with the same date one and two years ago, in thousands of francs:

	Gold.	Circulation.	Dsctsetc.

The lowest point reached by the bank's circulation in the concerted reduction of 1921-1922 was 35,281,790,000, to which it was reduced from 39,645,896,000 on Nov. 4, 1920, the highest figure ever reached until March of 1924.

GERMAN CITIES AIM TO GET LOANS HERE

COLOGNE TO GET $4,000,000

Large Volume of Municipals Planned, but German Ministry Has Caused Delay—Czech Report Revived.

Starting with a $15,000,000 City of Berlin loan soon to be offered by Speyer & Co., it is understood that many German cities will place municipal bond issues in the New York market in the near future. The Berlin offering is expected to be made next week. The one next nearest conclusion, it was reported in Wall Street yesterday, is a City of Cologne issue of about $4,000,000 which is now being negotiated by Lee, Higginson & Co.

Flotation of a large volume of German municipals is being delayed, it is understood, by the attitude of the central Government of Germany, which must pass on loan arrangements made by the cities. In some cases the cities and American bankers have agreed on terms for loans, but the German Finance Ministry has interposed objections to details. This has led to protracted discussions which still continue.

Diplomatic offices of a number of foreign countries are negotiating with American bankers for loans and some good-sized issues are expected when terms have been worked out. There was a revival of the report yesterday that a loan of about $10,000,000 to Czechoslovakia was under discussion, but it was declared that the United States Government would frown on such an undertaking until the Czechs made some arrangement for the funding of their debts to America.

It is declared likely, however, that a Czech loan eventually will be placed in the New York market, as London interests, which arranged for former borrowings of the country, have been estopped from further handling of new foreign financing by the Bank of England in connection with the return of Great Britain to the gold standard. When former loans to Czechoslovakia were arranged in London, part of the issues were apportioned to New York, and the offerings made here were handled by Lee, Higginson & Co. and the National City Bank. With the London market closed to it, Czechoslovakia is expected to turn direct to New York bankers for accommodation and to enter into a debt agreement as a necessary preliminary.

TIRE PRICES TO SOAR AGAIN

Another advance of 10 per cent. in automobile tire prices will be announced by the leading manufacturing companies next week according to reports in responsible quarters in the financial district yesterday. It is also expected that inner tube prices will be advanced 20 per cent. The new quotations are expected to take effect July 1.

The reason for the advance coming on top of the increases reported earlier in the year is attributed to the sharp rise in crude rubber prices since the beginning of the year. Crude rubber prices have more than trebled during the past six or eight months, and within the past week this product advanced about 15 cents a pound to around 86 cents.

Marland Oil Co. Retiring Notes.

The Marland Oil Company is gradually retiring its two-year 5 per cent. notes which were offered for it by J. P. Morgan & Co. last year. About $4,000,000 of the original $20,000,000 issue has been retired, and it is expected that another big block will be redeemed before this year ends. It is believed that the balance of the issue may be redeemed before next Autumn.

* Amount outstanding May 31st, 1925, 70,000 shares; 30,000 shares are now being issued and approximately 40,000 shares will be exchanged for the net assets of the Cinema Finance Corporation of Los Angeles.

HISTORY AND GROWTH: The Motion Picture Capital Corporation entered business in September, 1923, with a nominal capital of $100,000. Later, through the purchase of Preferred Stock at par, a few private investors furnished the Corporation with increasing amounts of capital as operations demonstrated its earning power and the soundness of its business. In this manner the cash capital was increased from time to time until, on January 31, 1925, the Corporation had a working capital and surplus of $784,002.74, against which there was outstanding 24,536 shares of Preferred Stock and 30,000 shares of Common Stock.

The Corporation does not produce nor distribute motion pictures but loans to producers and others on collateral and in turn re-hypothecates these loans at banks.

CINEMA FINANCE CORPORATION: Very recently the Motion Picture Capital Corporation came to an agreement with the Cinema Finance Corporation of Los Angeles by which the Motion Picture Capital Corporation will take over the Cinema Finance Corporation by issuing common stock for their entire preferred and common stock at the actual present book value.

The Cinema Finance Corporation was organized in Los Angeles five years ago, its principal stockholders being John E. Barber, Vice-President, First National Bank; Motley Flint, President Pacific Southwest Trust & Savings Bank; Thomas H. Ince, Producer; John B. Miller, President of the Southern California Edison Co., and other leading capitalists of Los Angeles. They had a cash capital of approximately $400,000 and their operations up to a recent date showed a surplus of $200,000. John E. Barber, Vice-President of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, and John B. Miller, President of the Southern California Edison Company, will become directors of Motion Picture Capital Corporation, and the present organization of Cinema Finance Corporation will act as the Western representation of the Motion Picture Capital Corporation.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS: At the beginning of the present calendar year the earnings applicable to dividends were at the rate of over $3.70 on the 30,000 shares of Common Stock then outstanding after allowing for the full 8 per cent on the outstanding Preferred Stock.

On account of the substantial increase in the amount of common stock to be outstanding, the rate per share in the immediate future is expected to be less until the new capital becomes operative. Current earnings from the 70,000 shares outstanding at this time, plus the current earnings from the Cinema Finance Corporation of Los Angeles, are more than sufficient to pay the $1.50 dividend on the one hundred and forty odd thousand shares to be outstanding.

Dividends at the full rate of 8 per cent on all outstanding Preferred Stock have been paid continuously to date. An initial dividend of 37½ cents per share on the Common Stock was paid June 15, 1925.

The working capital and surplus had on May 29, 1925, grown to $1,452,874, as against a total of $613,400 par value of Preferred outstanding. The present capital and surplus will be increased by approximately $1,050,000 from the proceeds of the sale of 30,000 shares of Common Stock now being issued and the absorption of the Cinema Finance Corporation of Los Angeles. These earnings are without any benefit from the present financings, exclusive of the earnings of the Cinema Finance Corporation of Los Angeles and with only partial earnings from the last issue of 40,000 shares of stock. As from time to time the Company increases its working capital through the sale of additional Common Stock, the margin of protection for the Preferred Stock will become increasingly greater.

MANAGEMENT: Mr. Frank R. Wilson, President of the Corporation, has been in charge of its affairs since its organization.

The full Directorate when the absorption of the Cinema Finance Corporation has been completed will be John E. Barber, Delos A. Blodgett, 2d, J. E. Brulatour, Charles H. Christie, H. Lester Cuddihy, Cecil B. DeMille, Stephen J. Leonard, John B. Miller, Clarkson Potter, John T. Pratt, Jr., H. A. Richards, Theodore Schulze, Theodore S. Watson, and Frank R. Wilson.

The books of the Corporation have been audited by Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Renewed selling of the French franc, forcing its quotation down to 4.58¾, a new low record for the year, was the feature in the foreign exchange market. Sterling was fractionally higher, closing the day at 4.86. Danish and Norwegian remittances continued their recent spurt, moving to new high levels for the year. Trading in lire was dull. Closing quotations on Madrid and Amsterdam displayed slight gains.

Invest July Funds
Yielding up to 6½%

NATURALLY you want the ultimate degree of safety with the most profitable interest yield that can be obtained for your July funds. The easiest, quickest and best solution of this problem is to invest in first mortgage real estate bonds which can be insured against loss, at the option of the investor.

There can be no question as to the high degree of safety in such bonds, for the unconditional guarantee of a great Surety Company as to principal and interest payment eliminates any possibility of loss.

Only with Adair Protected Bonds is this optional surety guarantee available with the bonds of any issue—where the investor may decide for himself whether or not he desires the guarantee, and further has the privilege of discontinuing it at any future date, thus converting his investment to a higher yield.

Offering very attractive interest yields (up to 6½% without the guarantee, and up to 6% with the guarantee) Adair Protected Bonds are the logical answer to the question—"How to Invest July Funds."

Mail the coupon today for descriptive literature of July offerings. You need not fill in the blanks unless you wish, but this information will enable us to better fulfill your needs,

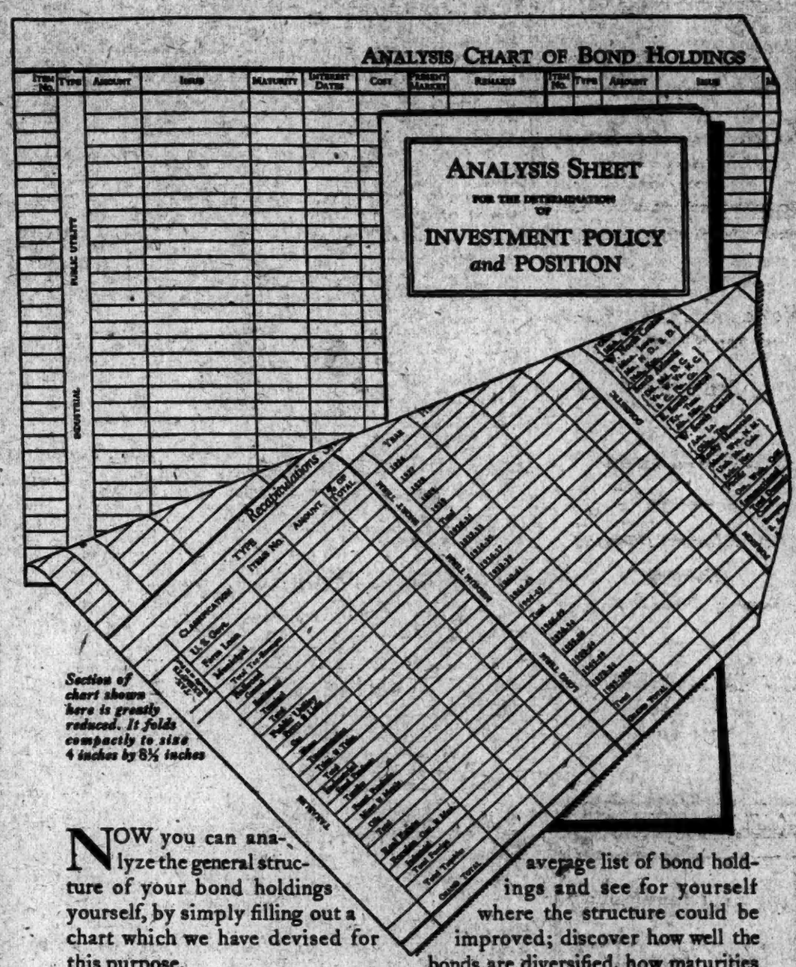
Analyze your bond holdings on this Chart
It will show how the structure of your investments may be improved



NOW you can analyze the general structure of your bond holdings yourself, by simply filling out a chart which we have devised for this purpose.

This chart is an adaptation, for the investor's own use, of the method we follow in making a more exhaustive analysis of bond holdings for banks, institutions and individuals whose lists are large and require periodic examination and study. It cannot take the place of expert analysis of the individual securities, but is a logical preliminary step.

All the instructions you need are included with this chart. It is laid out so that you can readily see what information should be entered and where. It takes but little time to chart the average list of bond holdings and see for yourself where the structure could be improved; discover how well the bonds are diversified, how maturities are distributed, etc.

To work out your bond holdings on this chart is an education in the importance of investing not in hit-or-miss fashion, but according to a definite policy which fits the individual needs and circumstances.

The distribution of this chart is in line with our policy of helping investors to know their requirements so that in buying bonds they will select issues which fit them. You need not be a customer of ours to get this chart. We shall be glad to send it to you without obligation.

Review of Road's Progress Since 1899 Set Forth in Testimonial to Him.

DIRECTORS APPROVE DAVIS

The election of J. M. Davis as President of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company and the resignation of W. H. Truesdale, its President since 1899, were formally approved by the directors yesterday. Both changes are effective July 1. A review of appreciation of Mr. Truesdale's service to the railroad drawn up by the directors provides a comprehensive sketch of the changes and progress that have been made since his incumbency began.

"During his administration," the appreciation says, "our main line from Hoboken to Buffalo was rock-ballasted and laid with heavy rail, tie plates and screw spikes on creosoted ties. All bridges were rebuilt of steel or concrete. One hundred and eighty-one new stations and freight houses were built, including extensive reconstruction of our Hoboken and Buffalo terminals. Block signals were installed throughout and all important points protected by interlocking plants. Upward of 200 grade crossings were eliminated. New locomotive and car shops were built at East Buffalo, Scranton and Kingsland. A second tunnel through Bergen Hill was constructed with many changes of line.

"The most notable of the works under his administration were the new construction through our suburban zone and the new lines built in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, known as the New Jersey and Scranton cut-off lines.

"Among the corporate changes which were consummated were the merger into our company of the Bangor & Portland Company, the formation by our stockholders of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Company, which took place over the merchandising of our coal, the lease of the Syracuse, Binghamton & New York Railroad Company, the issue of a 100 per cent. stock dividend and the formation of the Glen Alden Coal Company and the sale to it of our coal properties, all largely beneficial financially to stockholders."

Other points set forth to the credit of the Truesdale administration include the increase of the net railway income from an average of $3,750,000 in 1900-04 to an average of $8,000,000 in 1920-24 and dividends distributed increased from $1,834,000 in 1900 to $11,321,754 in 1924.

The company now has $123,000,000 of distributable surplus, compared with $5,500,000 in 1900. Since he became President $192,000,000 in cash dividends have been declared, whereas the market value of the properties in 1899 was less than $50,000,000.

GROSS EARNINGS OFF A MILLION IN A YEAR

NET PROFITS DECREASED

The report of the American Car and Foundry Company for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1925, submitted to stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday, shows a reduction in both gross earnings and net profits, due to the smaller amount of railroad buying during the year. The statement shows earnings equal to $6.77 a share on the 600,000 shares of no par value common stock outstanding, after allowing for all charges and preferred dividend requirements. This compares with $14.01 a share earned on the 300,000 shares of $100 par value common stock outstanding in the previous fiscal year.

Renew., repairs, &c.	3,616,982	4,461,607
Net income	6,164,103	6,324,966
Common dividends	3,600,000	3,600,000
Profit and loss surp.	37,742,569	37,278,465

The general balance sheet at the close of the last fiscal year showed the company had net current assets valued at $52,438,684 and net current liabilities amounting to $15,332,317, leaving working capital of £24,453,131, not including reserves of $12,653,435 set aside for dividends and other purposes. The net current assets included $7,696,678 cash on hand, Liberty bonds valued at $14,065,864 and stocks and bonds of other companies valued at $6,869,385; accounts and notes receivable $8,576,596 and inventory valued at $15,210,356.

W. H. Woodin, President, in his statement to stockholders, said in part:

"The buying of new equipment by the railroads during the year has been intermittent. The rebuilding and repairing of old equipment has been appreciably less in volume than in prior years. Buying for foreign delivery has been in small volume. Competition in all branches of the company's activities has been no less keen than heretofore—with a resulting narrow profit margin. An important factor in the production of the year's earnings has been the business done in the manufacture and sale of the company's miscellaneous products.

"The company enters upon its new year with a fair amount of business on its books. It may reasonably be expected that before the close of the year more current buying by the railroads will be resumed in increased volume, and that the company will obtain its full share of such business."

JAPANESE BUYING STEADIES COTTON

Substantial Purchases Are Reported for the Far East Account as Rallies Develop.

Notices were issued for about 100,000 bales of cotton out of the total certificated stock of 115,000 bales now in New York, and the result of these heavy deliveries was another extremely irregular cotton market yesterday. At first July changed hands even with October, but as contracts kept coming back on the market, reselling of July forced a discount of 30 points under October at one time. Japanese interests were reported to be buying considerable cotton, and July recovered during the afternoon to an extent that left final prices 5 to 15 points lower than Wednesday.

Showers prevailed in northeast, northwest and western Texas, with more moisture reported than for some time, but very little rain fell in southern and central portions of the State, where drought is the most severe. Temperatures generally were lower, while the Weather Bureau predicted showers and cooler weather for parts of the Southwest.

With a large block of notices in circulation, trading started under the most active conditions of the month. Though initial price changes proved slight in the local market, notices for 26,000 bales circulated in New Orleans broke July there half a cent to 22.40, compared with 23.30 in New York. At one time this month July in New Orleans sold 75 points over New York and 150 points over October there.

During the morning blocks of October and December were purchased by commission house and spot interests, contracts being taken at each five and ten point decline. Around 23.40 for December more contracts were wanted than could be readily supplied, and during the afternoon a demand for July developed a rally of over a quarter of a cent.

Exports passed the 8,000,000 mark, an excess of nearly 2,500,000 bales over last year to the corresponding date.

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Previous Day.

AUTO PRODUCTION BRISK.

The Seasonal Decline Not as Abrupt as in Former Years.

Production and sales of automobiles continues on a high scale for this season of the year, according to the weekly trade review compiled by Automotive Industries. Although the seasonal decline is under way, it is stated, it has not yet been as abrupt as in former years.

"Several of the factories" says the report, "are still producing at capacity, in response to the demand from the field. Fewer of the plants have closed down this month for the taking of inventories and to prepare for new models than is customary in the early Summer."

F. L. BURNS FORMS NEW COAL COMPANY

OLD ASSOCIATES JOIN

A new company has been organized for the distribution of coal in the metropolitan district by Frank L. Burns, former President of Burns Brothers Company. The new company, which is known as the Frank L. Burns Coal Company, has established offices at 30 Church Street and all arrangements have been made for obtaining and distributing coal.

Mr. Burns resigned as head of the old Burns Brothers Company, which was organized by his father forty years ago, when S. M. Schatzkin and his associates gained control of the property at the annual stockholders' meeting last week. The added competition of the new concern resulted in a drop of three or more points in the old Burns company shares, which are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

There will be no public offering of stock of the new company, at least for some time. Mr. Burns yesterday said that a number of his old associates were interested in the new company and that it was the aim of the sponsors for the new company "to keep it in the family." Numerous offers for stock in the new company have been received, according to Mr. Burns. One banking group has subscribed to a large block of the common stock, but none is expected to be placed on the market.

According to the incorporation papers, the new organization will have an authorized capital of 5,000 shares of cumulative 8 per cent. preferred stock of $100 a share par value and 25,000 shares of no par value common stock. The organization taxes, it is stated, indicate that a total capital of $3,000,000 has been paid into the company. The preferred stock is callable on ninety days' notice at $115. The voting power of both the common and preferred is equal, the preferred shares having five votes each and the common shares one vote.

Moos & Gonnet, who resigned as counsel for the Burns Brothers Company immediately following Mr. Burns's resignation as head of that company, will act as counsel for the new Frank L. Burns Coal Company. Many of the officers who resigned from the old company will also be associated with Mr. Burns in the new company. Mr. Burns is President of the new organization; Harry S. G. Brookes, former Vice President of the old company, will be Vice President in charge of construction and transportation; Grove D. Curtis, former Vice President of the old company, will be Vice President in charge of sales; James F. Cavanagh, Secretary; Joseph B. Chambers, former Secretary of the old company, will be Treasurer. These officers and Louis H. Moos, attorney, will constitute the Board of Directors for the present.

WHEAT GOES LOWER AS BUYING LAGS

RALLIES A BIT AT THE CLOSE

CHICAGO, June 25.—Failure of the outside trade to expand despite the continued reports of rust in the American Northwest resulted in general selling of futures and, with the unloading of a large line credited to an Eastern trader who was recently aggressive on the buying side, prices declined sharply. September touched $1.48¼, or 8¼ cents under the high point of yesterday.

Numerous stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down and support was lacking under September, which broke under $1.49. A strong rally came toward the last on short covering, and also reinstating of local lines sold out on the recent bulge, and the finish was at net losses of 7½@8¼ cents, with July showing the most strength.

The small movement of Winter wheat in the Southwest was a factor, and there was further talk of wet weather delaying harvesting and threshing.

Cromwell was out with a bearish summary of conditions in the American and Canadian Northwest, claiming that the excessive moisture this side of the line, while damaging the crop on the low lands, had helped the crop elsewhere, and he estimates the three Canadian provinces have a prospect for 400,000,000 to 500,000,000 bushels, compared with 248,000,000 harvested in 1924.

On the other hand, George Bryant, who returned from a trip in the American Northwest, estimated that the condition had been lowered around 10 points, as compared with June 1, due to losses from frost, rust and wet weather.

Winnipeg showed more strength than Chicago and closed 2¾ cents lower on October. Liverpool was off 1¼@2d, showing more strength than expected.

Foreign demand for cash wheat was less active with sales of 300,000 to 400,000 bushels in all positions.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 708,000 bushels; week ago, 636,000; last year, 558,000. Shipments were 418,000 bushels; week ago, 854,000; last year, 532,000.

Liquidation was on in corn early, with a break to $1.005 for July, a new low on the present downturn, and the lowest figures in over two months. On the decline there was aggressive short covering and the finish was on a good rally with prices ¾@1 cent lower on the old crop months, and ¾ cent higher on December.

Primary arrivals today were 419,000 bushels; week ago, 461,000; last year, 323,000, and shipments were 641,000 bushels; week ago, 714,000; last year, 453,000.

Oats were 1⅜@1¾ cents lower, and closed at the bottom with a lack of support, while rye was 2¾@7¼ cents lower in sympathy with wheat. Export sales of 100,000 bushels of oats and 200,000 to 250,000 of rye were reported at the seaboard.

Grains Here Cause Berlin Failure.

Cash grains tumbled rather sharply yesterday, as a result of the severe reaction in the contract grades. Wheat, corn, rye, oats and flour all yielded. Spot cotton and lard also gave ground. Dairy products were steady.

FERRY CONCESSION OFFERS REJECTED

Some idea of the high values placed upon refreshment stand concessions at the ferry house terminals and on other property under the jurisdiction of the Dock Department was obtained when the Sinking Fund Commission yesterday adopted the recommendation of Dock Commissioner Michael Cosgrove and rejected all the bids recently made for these privileges.

Virtually all these concessions are held by Greeks. The high bidder in the May competition for the coming year was Pericles Gianopoulos and in the ordinary course of business he would have received the award. One of his competitors, who had made a lower bid, was John D. Antonopulos, a pioneer in refreshment concessions. He objected to the action of the commission. As he left the City Hall he threatened to bring injunction proceedings to restrain the Dock Department from relieving the high bidder from the terms of his proffered contract.

Attorneys representing Antonopulos told the members of the commission that they had no power to release Gianopoulos, but Mayor Hylan held that the Dock Commissioner had the right to reject any or all bids. Then the attorneys protested that Gianopoulos, who is the present tenant under an old lease, even though forced to pay the higher rental after September, would get the cream of the Summer business.

After the Sinking Fund Commission had acted, Antonopulos made the following statement, throwing light upon the lucrative returns from these concessions:

"Action by the commission relieving Pericles Gianopoulos of the lease voluntarily entered into by him and readvertising the concessions will cause a loss of many thousands of dollars to the City of New York. Mr. Gianopoulos has been in the United States for twenty-two years, but in all of that time never was in business for himself until Mayor Hylan assumed office.

"In 1918 the City Administration gave to Mr. Gianopoulos three concessions. These were at 129th Street, in front of the Fort Lee Ferry; at Forty-second Street, opposite the Weehawken Ferry, and at Battery Park, opposite the Barge Office. For these concessions he paid $25, $35 and $40 per month. This continued for four years, when, because of general protest, these concessions were put up at auction. The high bidder for 129th Street offered $10,500, for the Battery $6,000 and for Forty-second Street Ferry $13,050.

"Commissioner Whalen thereafter gave the Staten Island ferryboat concession to Mr. Gianopoulos and permitted him to exercise the privileges free for one month. Afterward the rental of the ferryboat privileges was fixed at $2,500 a month, and Gianopoulos retained the concession for the Summers. He then appealed for a release from his contract, and Commissioner Whalen did so release him. The city thereby lost a rental of $18,000.

"Three years ago the city authorities invited bids for the privileges at 129th Street. Gianopoulos thereupon instituted a proceeding and obtained an injunction restraining the city from holding a public auction of the lease. This temporary injunction was in force for fifty days and was then dissolved. But with the dissolution of the injunction the Summer had passed and the concession could not be operated profitably.

"Again the concession was advertised and put up at auction. One Peter J. Cokenias was the high bidder, having offered $3,500 for the lease. All of the bids were rejected. On the day following this rejection the Commissioner of the Dock Department privately let the concession to Gianopoulos for $3,000 a year for one year.

"Mr. Gianopoulos was high bidder at the May auction of concessions, bidding $13,050 per year for Forty-second Street, $8,400 for Twenty-third Street, and for a concession at the Chambers Street Ferry $6,200. He seeks to be relieved and Mayor Hylan has agreed to his plan."

NATIONAL BANK TO SETTLE.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 25.—Depositors in the First National Bank of Carnegie, which closed its doors April 27, will be paid from 58 cents to 96 cents on the dollar, depeending upon the ultimate value of $512,000 "doubtful assets."

R. F. Marburger has been named receiver of this bank, and former Representative L. Rosenbloom of Wheeeling, W. Va., receiver of the Burgettstown National Bank, by the Controller of the Currency. The latter institution closed its doors May 12. The two national banks, along with the Carnegie Trust Company of Carnegie, were formerly headed by John A. Bell.

"The receivers' first report of the First National Bank of Carnegie has just been received by this office, and shows assets aggregating approximately $1,967,000, of which $1,138,000 are classed as good, $512,000 doubtful and $317,000 worthless. Liabilities are shown as approximately $1,707,000. Receiver is proceeding with the liquidation as rapidly as possible, and should within a reasonable time be prepared to make his first distribution to creditors by dividends.

"Receiver of the Burgettstown National Bank of Burgettstown is preparing his first report, and he, too, is liquidating as rapidly as assets of the bank can be collected."

WATER POWER RIGHTS SALE

New Brunswick Buys Grand Falls for Publicly Owned Plant.

The water power rights of the Grand Falls Company, which is two-thirds owned by the International Paper Company, located on the St. John River at Grand Falls, Canada, have been transferred to the Province of New Brunswick for $1,200,000. The Province, it is understood, will carry out a $9,000,000 development, to include the erection of a 50,000 horse power station operated on a public ownership basis. Payment will be made to the company on completion of this development.

The International Paper Company will receive $800,000 as its share for the water power rights. It has entered into a contract with the Provincial Government for 14,000 horsepower, which may eventually be used in a new mill at this point. The company has also contracted for additional power to be used elsewhere.

PENNSYLVANIA ENDS ITS WAGE CONFERENCE

Adjusted Program of Work Will Benefit 6,000 Telegraphers of the Road.

Negotiations for the revision of the wage and working conditions of the 6,000 telegraphers of the Pennsylvania Railroad system have been concluded after a series of conferences lasting several weeks. The negotiations were conducted under the employes' representation plan.

Adjustments of pay and changes in working conditions will be put into effect as a result of the negotiations. The sum appropriated and available for wage adjustment will be allotted to the various divisions.

The wage agreement has been the result largely of the work of the Joint Findings Committee, appointed earlier in the year to represent both the management and the employes. This committee presented its report some weeks ago, following which the negotiations were resumed. Whether the employes of the telegraph department will work seven or six days a week was discussed in conference, and it was agreed that the question should be left to the determination of the majority of the employes affected on each division. They were headed by M. J. Kelly, general manager of the craft.

Live Stock Markets at Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 25.—Hog prices were little changed early, with shippers and yard traders picking up the desirable kinds. Big packers held off, however, and later in the day plainer kinds and mixed droves were secured at 10 to 15 cents decline. The early top was $13.65 and the day's average $13.25, the latter being 5 cents under yesterday. The bulk of the 210-pound and upward averages sold at $13.50 to $13.60. Shippers took 1,000 of the fresh receipts of 26,000. The carry-over at the last was estimated at 14,000. Fat lambs advanced 25 cents, as did natives. A top of $16.90 was made on Idahoes, while the bulk of the desirable natives brought $16 to $16.50, with a top of $16.65 paid by city butchers. Sheep were strong to 25 cents higher, with heavy ewes at $6 and range weathers at $9.50. Receipts were 6,000. Heavy fed steers were generally 25 cents higher, with other kinds and yearlings strong. Demand was good, with a top of $15.60 on heavy steers. Choice yearlings showed a top of $12.25. Receipts were 9,000.

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Comparison of the Week's Items With Those of Preceding Periods.

Total gold holdings for the entire reserve system, as shown in yesterday's statement, are at the lowest for the year to date, while the outstanding note circulation has also reached a new low point for 1925. Rediscounts secured by other than Government collateral have reached the highest for the year to date. The New York Reserve Bank's ratio of reserve to notes on deposit reached a new high point for 1925, but it was below the high point of 1924, 1923, 1922 or 1921.

The following table shows the highest and lowest points reached thus far in 1925, and in a series of years past, by the important items in the Reserve Bank statements. Figures are in thousands of dollars:

STRAUS SEES BOOM IN BUILDING GOING ON

SAYS WE NOW LEAD WORLD

DETROIT, June 25.—The convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards was told today by Simon W. Straus, New York financier, President of S. W. Straus & Co., that America is in the midst of an era of building construction of such magnitude as to be no nation in history ever dreamed of undertaking. He predicted that last year's new building record of $5,750,000,000 would be exceeded by $250,000,000 in 1925.

"With a $6,000,000,000 building program outlined for the year," he said, "all business must move forward along prosperous lines; all trades and industries will be benefited.

"Europe and the Orient," he continued, "no longer furnish the world its ideas on building construction, city planning and community development. America, until recently a follower, has become a leader which now dominates, both in methods of financing and methods of executing huge development projects.

"We are not only developing our own types of buildings and improvements, we are leading and teaching the rest of the world in the arts and sciences of building, in community planning and civic development. The enterprise and vision of America's real estate men, her architects and her builders has brought about this transfer of leadership.

"We have entered a sweeping cycle of rebuilding," Mr. Straus declared. "Every city in the nation today is confronted by the fact that it must practically rebuild itself. They already are doing it as rapidly as the tools and implements of the builder permit."

Of the $320,000,000,000 of wealth in the United States, $155,000,000,000 or nearly one-half is represented in land and its built-up improvements, according to Mr. Straus, and although there may be no apparent housing shortage, the demand of Americans for modern homes, as well as business buildings, portends the early reconstruction of every building erected within the last 15 to 25 years.

"There may be enough roofs today to cover every citizen of our nation, and enough floor area in which to transact all the business of the country," he said; "but building on a large scale will go on just the same.

"The question is not whether there are enough buildings and enough homes. The question is whether those buildings and homes are of a kind that the people want and demand and are entitled to by right of their education to more wholesome modes of living and more wholesome customs.

"In every American city there are thousands upon thousands of apartments, individual homes and tenements which are obsolete. They were erected only fifteen, twenty, twenty-five years ago. Today they are marked for demolition by the oncoming forces of progress.

"Since the end of the war building operations in this country have been gradually mounting toward higher levels. There have been brief periods of recession, but the general trend of building operations has been continually upward, or decade or so ago, or even less, you and I thought in terms of millions. Today we think in terms of billions.

"Fifty years ago," he declared, "no one dreamed of a building reaching thirty stories into the sky. Another fifty years may bring about just as radical changes and the skyscraper of the closing decades of the twentieth century may attain heights and dimensions beyond the dream of any man living today.

"This may be brought about by the development of the airplane. Aerial navigation may produce as many changes in the lives of men, in the construction of our buildings and in the contour of city sky-lines as have the discovery of steam and the development of electricity."

Albert S. Adams, President of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, spoke on the subject "Do We Mean What We Say?" referring to the national board's code of ethics. He answered the question by pointing out that boards in Atlantic City, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Dallas, Dayton, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Madison, Minneapolis, New York, San Diego and Washington have expelled members guilty of unethical practices.

Other talks at the general session were made by Edgar A. Guest on "The Poetry in Real Estate," and Charles C. Nichols Jr., Vice President of A. A. Schuite, Inc., New York, on "A Comparison of Values in Various Cities."

Emphasizing the value of cooperation between investors, architects, public authorities and railroads in regional planning, T. C. Powell, New York, Vice President of the Erie Railroad, said:

"The industries in which the railroads are interested should be located so as to be effectively placed for their own operation, but to interfere as little as possible with the life, liberty and happiness of the surrounding residential communities; and on the other hand, the inconsiderate development of residential sections in the heart of an industrial area should be forestalled."

SENDING INVESTIGATOR TO SPANISH VINEYARDS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, June 25.—Espinosa De Los Monteros, Acting Minister of State, today telegraphed to Almeria grape growers that the United States Government is sending Dr. C. L. Marlatt, Chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, to investigate the Almeria grape situation personally.

Last year the Department of Agriculture, after a visit of inspection by Dr. Leslie Mann, rejected the petition of the Spanish Government and Almeria exporters and shipping interests that the embargo on Spanish grapes be lifted by the United States. The refusal angered the Spanish Government and grape growers, the latter exerting the greatest influence to have the Government refuse to prorogate the expiring commercial treaty with the United States, which was extended solely through the personal influence of Ambassador Moore.

YUGOSLAVIA BARS BULGARS.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, June 25.—The Yugoslav Government has issued orders that no Bulgarians be permitted to enter or travel through the country until further notice because of the arrest by Bulgarian officials of several Yugoslav subjects in connection with an outrage at Sveta Nedelia Cathedral.

The Bulgarian Government failed to reply to a diplomatic demand asking reasons for the arrests, and this further inflated the feeling, although an official communique denies that any other measures have been taken against Bulgaria as alleged in the press.

Thus far no one color is indicated to stand out in the development of the new season in men's wear tropicals. Instead, the lines stream a group of the lighter shades, particularly those on the order of tan, sand, grays and blues, according to mill representatives. This follows pretty much the same color trend evident this year. Patterns in these cloths likewise tend to the neat semi-conservative type, although the range of choice is wide. Market factors agree that the early business, judging from the interest already displayed, will come up to expectations.

Burlaps Active and Higher.

Burlaps were more active in this market yesterday, and spot prices of standard constructions were higher than they were a week ago. A good consuming demand was reported for spot and afloat heavyweights, and a good inquiry for lightweight cloths also told of. Calcutta was reported up 5 points or so for the day, and the price outlook both there and in this market is regarded as firm. Spot 40-inch 8-ounce burlaps were quoted at 7¼ cents here yesterday by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc., which is a rise of 20 points for the week. An advance of 80 points was reported in 40-inch 10½-ounce cloths, spots of which were quoted at 9.75 cents. July and July-September deliveries of the 8-ounce burlaps were priced at 7.55 cents, with similar deliveries of the 10½-inch fabrics held at 9.80 cents.

While the men's wear trade is gradually turning its full attention to the new lightweight lines, some selling agents still expect a good volume of orders for heavyweights to come. They base their views on the restricted early buying of many of the manufacturing clothiers, whom they credit with having but little goods on hand to cover their requirements for a normal demand this Fall. Some factors in the trade, however, do not anticipate any heavy demands and say that even if it did come they would not be in position for it to do them any good. The Fall situation remains pretty much of a puzzle, with the woolen jobbers standing to benefit mostly from any large demand for fabrics later on.

Hill Muslins Are Reduced.

New and lower prices were announced on Hill bleached muslins and cambrics yesterday by Catlin & Co., Inc. Four-quarter Hill muslins were priced at 18 cents for spot delivery, with all orders subject to confirmation as to quantity. For July, August and September delivery Hill bleached muslins were priced this way: Four-quarter, 18 cents; 40 and 42-inch, each 22½ cents, and 45-inch, 24½ cents. For 5.15 to 28 yards bleached cambrics for the same delivery were priced at 18 cents. All of the goods are offered free on board, Lewiston, Me., on terms of 2, 10, 60 extra.

Quiet Market in Broad Silks.

Conditions in the broad silk market continue rather quiet. General Fall buying has yet to start on an active scale. The mills have been closing out whatever stocks they have of seasonable goods, which are being well taken by both cutters-up and retailers. The latter are understood to be making preparations for silk sales during July and August, at which attractive values will be featured. Staple silks for Fall have been well ordered, according to manufacturers. Three are safe buys, as they are ordered in the gray, with colors specified later. Some of the novelties have been taking well, particularly the brocaded velvets, but it is generally agreed that this end of the demand has yet to develop. The pansy shade continues the highly favored color, but much doubt is felt as to any extended vogue for it later.

Call for Bathing Suits.

While there is not the vim to the demand for bathing suits that was the case a short while ago, a nice business in this merchandise is still being done, according to wholesalers here. Most of the inquiry is confined to knitted garments, although the high novelties for beach wear have sold in a restricted way to retailers in the larger Eastern cities and on the Pacific Coast. The market is credited with being quite bare of stocks. This will have its influence on the offerings of the lines for next year, which again stress the modified one-piece suit with short skirt. Prices are said to show no change from this year's levels.

Outerwear Trade Looks Better.

Reports from wholesalers continue to indicate improvement in the knitted outerwear situation. The demand from retailers has picked up substantially and covers rayon merchandise as well as the popular balbriggan suits. One of the leading jobbers said yesterday that he figured the market as being in the best position in more than a year. Stocks are low because of the restricted production during most of the Spring, and the manufacturers and jobbers are firmer in their price views. Fall lines likewise will be available early next month, and the predictions are that the trade will have a much more active period of business.

White Hose Are in Demand.

Reports that have reached the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers tell of an exceedingly active business in white hosiery. Orders from the retail stores in many cases call for five to ten dozen of a size, where until recently the color specifications were laid down in quarter dozens so far as this shade was concerned. According to the current news letter of the association, as high as 15,000 dozen whites are needed to fill the immediate demands made on some of the larger manufacturers. A single order for 1,100 dozen full-fashioned stockings was received by one prominent local jobber, who appears to be well stocked with white hose. The same concern reports a nice business in seamless white hose also.

Gray Goods Quiet Down.

Gray goods quieted down a little yesterday in this market. Printcloth sales embraced spot 39-inch 68-72s at 10¼ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 9¾ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 7⅝ cents, all in small quantities. Among the limited trading in sheetings were sales of 36-inch 5-yard cloths at 7¾ cents, with 7⅞ and 8¼ cents paid, respectively, for 36-inch 5.50s and 6.15s. Quite a nice business was reported in lightweight drills, and there was also trading in 37-inch, 2.95-yard goods at 9⅜ cents. Trading in the specialties included some buying of 72-80 pajama checks at 10 cents.

Gingham Situation Is Serious.

The meeting of gingham manufacturers here that is scheduled for next Monday promises to be one of the most important that has ever been held by this branch of the industry, and indications point to a 100 per cent. attendance. No definite plans have been laid in regard to the matters that will be discussed, it was learned yesterday, but the situation was said to be so bad that nothing which will tend to improve it will be overlooked. In one quarter it was said that the present situation in the gingham field is the worst in many years, and that something radical must be done to conserve the interests of the many persons, including thousands of mill operatives, who are affected by it. Both staple and dress ginghams are in a very bad way, it was further said, and current fashions were held primarily responsible for the condition.

Australia to Sell Wool July 13.

MELBOURNE, June 25 (AP).—The Australian Wool Growers' Council and the National Council of Wool Growing Brokers of Australia have decided to resume wool sales on July 13. During July 120,000 bales of wool will be offered and a like amount in August. It is hoped that the monthly sales, if started in that way, will be continued.

BUSINESS NOTES.

R. C. Montgomery, Vice President of the Knox Hat Company, Inc., was elected President of the National Association of Hat Manufacturers, Inc., at the annual meeting of the association yesterday. Frank H. Lee, President of the Frank H. Lee Company, Danbury, was chosen Vice President and Charles Berg, President of F. Berg & Co., Norwalk, Treasurer.

Seymour Herrman Company, converters of cotton wash goods and silks and cotton novelties, have just leased for a long term of years the store, basement and first loft of 57 Leonard Street. They will move into the new quarters about Aug. 1. The firm has been located for some time at 109 to 111 Worth Street.

The Finest Plan on Park Ave.

WHEN you consider that this building was erected before the war when labor and materials were a fraction of what they are now you will readily understand why we can offer rooms that are large, ceilings that are higher, and closets that cannot be duplicated elsewhere, at rentals no higher than those asked for other accommodations.

As an added feature the garden around which the building is erected assures you of perfect light and cross ventilation as well as a charming outlook.

These Orphans Stay at Home

Several thousand children are cared for and given homes and education in our various orphanages. Improved methods are constantly developed in keeping with the trend of the times.

Many cases occur today where Federation institutions deem it advisable to take care of children right in their own homes. A father dies, leaving a widow with several children. We furnish the mother with funds to support her family and she brings them up with loving care at home.

$38 Week

NEVER have we shown so many choice fabrics as this spring.

Never have they gone so fast or so early. Result—hundreds of finest worsteds, serges, cheviots, crashes, etc., are down to last ends.

And so—we dispose of them in a special collection. The price is a real Arnheim disposal price—$38. Previous prices $50 to $60. Made to order.
